THE NEW-YORK DAILY TIMES,
A Morning Newspaper, containing all news during the past twelve hours, is published every morning (Sundays excepted) at the office, No. 128 NASSAU-STREET, corner of Beekman, and is delivered to subscribers in New-York, Brooklyn, Williamsburg and Jersey City, for TWELVE SHILLINGS per annum; mailed to the Country, Single Copies, Two Cents. Mail Subscribers are required to pay in advance. Three Dollars in advance required in all cases where the Carrier does not leg. Postage on the DAILY TIMES sent to any part of the United States, paid in advance at the office where delivered, twenty cents per quarter or 81 cents per annum.

THE NEW-YORK EVENING TIMES,
Will be published every evening, (Sundays excepted.) One edition will be issued at 1, and the other at 7 o'clock P. M. It will be sent by mail or sold at the same rates as the DAILY TIMES.

THE NEW-YORK WEEKLY TIMES,
A Family Newspaper for the Country, is published every SATURDAY MORNING, at the low price of Two DOLLARS PER ANNUM. Two copies for THREE DOLLARS. Five copies for FIVE DOLLARS will be sent to one address, and the paper will in no case be continued beyond the time for which payment is made. Postage on the WEEKLY TIMES sent by mail one year, less follows:
Within the County ..... Free.
Within the State ..... 13 cents.
Within the United States ..... 26 cents.

THE SEMI-WEEKLY TIMES
Is Published EVERY TUESDAY and FRIDAY, at $2 per year, payable invariably in advance. This paper is made up expressly for the mails, and contains all the reading matter of the Daily.

THE TIMES FOR CALIFORNIA.
A Large Newspaper of Eight Pages, or Forty-Eight columns, made up expressly for circulating in California, Oregon and the Sandwich Islands, and containing only news of interest to readers in those sections of the country, is published on the departure of every Mail steamer. Price 10 cents per copy.
RAYMOND, HARPER & CO., Publishers.

New-York Daily Times.

THE KNOW NOTHINGS.

Close of the Convention—Completion of the State Ticket.

The Know-Nothing Convention resumed its labors yesterday morning, and finally closed its session with the going down of the sun. Its deliberations yesterday were, if possible, more boisterous, more confused and more disorderly than on the day previous. Barcombe raling about the Stars and Stripes—our glorious Republic—our American institutions—widespread ruin—foreign villains—the insidious wiles of the Romish Church—corrupt politicians—and designing wire pullers formed the staple of the speeches made—as far as could be heard. There were some sound sentiments uttered, some wise counsels given, some judicious acts suggested; but a friend who has unquestionably had excellent opportunities of judging, and who is always emphatic and sometime personal in his remarks, informs us that "they were unheard amid the railings of a SCHAEFER, a MUNN, a VAN COTT, a SANFORD, a SPARROW, a MALLORY, a BARKER, and a host of kindred and congenial spirits—who made up in howls and roars what they lacked in brains, in judgment, and in discretion."

The first business in order yesterday, was the nomination of a candidate for Lieutenant Governor. On the first ballot they obtained the following result:

Whole number of votes polled, 395.
HORATIO SEYMOUR, Jr., of Buffalo, received..278
ELIJAH FORD, of Buffalo, received..... 48
JACOB LANSING, of Albany, received..... 27
GEORGE R. BABCOCK, of Buffalo, received.... 23
Scattering..... 19

Mr. SEYMOUR was declared duly nominated, but that gentleman most respectfully declined, and warmly urged his brethren to unanimously adopt as their candidate ELIJAH FORD. He assured the Convention that he knew Mr. FORD well,—that he was a man of sound judgment and unimpeachable character,—that he was one of the very first to join the Order in Buffalo, and that his connection with it had done much to build it up in that locality. His remarks were received with loud applause, but failed to convince the members, who proceeded to a second ballot, which resulted thus:

Whole number of votes 345
Of which G. A. S. SCRAGGS, of Buffalo, received 227
ELIJAH FORD 45
—— WARD 26
Scattering 47

As G. A. S. SCRAGGS, of Erie County, was pronounced to be the choice of the order. SCRAGGS is a Militia General, a Hard Shell politician, and we believe a lawyer in moderate practice.

Next in order came the selection of a candidate for Canal Commissioner, for which Hon. JOSIAH B. WILLIAMS, of Ithaca, Tompkins County, received 284 votes to a few scattering for some nobodys. Mr. WILLIAMS is a representative in the State Senate from the counties of Tompkins, Seneca and Yates. He is a Whig of the Woolly-Head stripe, and was an aspirant for the Whig nomination for Governor from the Syracuse Convention. If he has a decided opinion it is that the Maine Law is a necessity.

The candidate for State Prison Inspector, next in order, was as easily selected as the nominee for Canal Commissioner. The only aspirants were two, between whom it was little odds which was chosen. They were both of the right material—the real genuine article for such a Convention—real bona fide do-any-things and know-nothings.

The vote was as follows:
J. P. SAUNDERS, of Westchester..... 236
HENRY STORRS, of Westchester..... 40

Evidently the hearts of the voters yearned towards both the brethren from Westchester, and had there been two such places there is no doubt both of them would have been put to use. Mr. SAUNDERS is a Soft-Shell politician, and, if elected, it is understood that he will not, of his own accord, pass any prohibitory Liquor Law.

This completed the ticket. It is made up on the fusion principle—one Silver-Gray, one Hard-Shell, one Woolly-Head, one Soft-Shell. Why it is put in nomination, there was a Committee appointed to communicate to the brethren in subordinate Councils assembled—which information, as it will be official, will no doubt be highly interesting, and it will be looked for with much interest, as just now there is a wide difference of opinion on the subject among both out and inside. Some say it is to defeat the Whigs, some that it is to defeat the Hard Shells; and judging from the following occurrence, which took place on the second day of the session, there was at least one of the fraternity who thought it was to help SEYMOUR wonderfully. During the proceedings, a small fat man, who was particularly strong in the support of the principles of the order, made an admirable and eloquent speech on the general subject, which was loudly cheered. After closing, he stepped outside the door and remarked to a by-stander that he had made his speech for the purpose of induciing the Convention to make a separate and independent nomination, and that the effect of that would be to elect SEYMOUR Governor.

Another delegate declared at the close of the proceedings that he had done all in his power to promote the success of the Soft ticket; and that during the last two days he had done more to secure SEYMOUR's election than had been done since the nomination at Syracuse.

Having completed the ticket, the Council proceeded to transact general business, such as suspending several individuals who did not work in the true spirit. As a sample of the manner in which this general business was transacted the following is given.

Affidavits were presented to the Convention from two persons, who stated that they had been trying for three months to get the Council to which they belonged recognized by the Grand Council of the State, but that their application had been rejected at three successive sessions. On Thursday morning last high officials in the Order, with a full knowledge of their condition, gave them the pass-words and introduced them into the Convention; and very soon after leaders of the party with whom they were expected to act told them to go for independent nominations, as that was necessary to secure the reelection of Governor SEYMOUR. Becoming thoroughly disgusted with the whole affair they feel called upon to make these statements, and verify their truth by their oaths.

The affidavits were read, and after an earnest debate were laid on the table, with cries of Pooh! from the officers.

That those interested in the result of the election may have a basis for estimating the influence which the nominations of the Grand Council may have, it may be as well to state that during the session of the Council, the Delegates were called upon to state how many members were enrolled in their respective Councils. The figures thus obtained showed a total of a few less than 60,000 members. Some of the Councils were largely estimated, and making allowance for such errors of judgment, the total was decreased to 60,000.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE

By Telegraph to the New-York Daily Times.

FROM WASHINGTON.

How the Politicians Fell—Appointments, &c.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Oct. 6.

Mr. GUTHRIE, Secretary of the Treasury, has gone on a visit to Kentucky. PETER G. WASHINGTON is Secretary ad interim.

JOSEPH SMITH has been appointed Navy Agent for Boston, vice ISAAC HULL WRIGHT, whose term has expired.

The Hards are not satisfied with the Union's endorsement of Gen. CASS' speech, which said Slavery was a social and political evil.

The Richmond Enquirer continues its severe and malignant strictures upon Gen. CASS. A friend of the General pronounces the Enquirer's attack "Greytownish."

The Know-Nothings here rejoice at ULLMAN's nomination, and Administrationists are delighted with the bad prospects of Judge BROWSON.

Old Whigs of the Anti-Nebraska school are confident of the election of MYRON H. CLARK and HENRY J. RAYMOND.

Mr. WHEELER's nomination is gratifying to the Hards. M.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Oct. 6.

The Union of this morning defends General CASS against the attacks of the Richmond Enquirer.

Terrible Explosion of a Steam-Boiler in A Rolling Mill.

DANVILLE, (Pa.) Friday, Oct. 6.

The boiler of the Montour rolling mill exploded this morning, carrying it one hundred feet from its foundation. It also demolished a frame dwelling and a stable, and tore away forty feet of the mill, burying several persons in the ruins.

A child of John Pudey's was killed, and another is dying; Barney Maguire and three children were severely injured; Peter Managhan and Laurence McBride, John Priest, John Diesinger, Alexander Wands, John Adams, Michael Levy, Isaac Hines, Wm. Butler and Joseph Shuggart are dangerously hurt. Four others received slight injuries. Chas. Search, a boy, has just died, and there are others still missing. The rubbish is now being removed and a search being made. It is said the boiler being empty of water was the cause of the explosion.

Supposed Loss of the Propellers Mount Vernon and Plymouth, on Lake Michigan.

DETROIT, Friday, Oct 6.

Captain ROUNDS, of the propeller Nile, arrived here, reports leaving at Presque Isle the propellers Plymouth, Louisville, and Mount Vernon. The last named came out shortly after the Nile, and suddenly disappeared. Captain R. supposed she had gone back, but the Louisville has since arrived here, and did not see either the Mount Vernon or Plymouth. It is therefore feared they that are lost.

Railroad Accident.

SYRACUSE, Friday, Oct. 6.

About twelve o'clock this afternoon, the emigrant train from Albany to Buffalo ran over a horse near Newark, throwing the engine, tender, and one car off the track. The fireman jumped off the tender to save himself, when it fell upon him and crushed him to death. No others were injured.

Court of Appeals.

ALBANY, Friday, Oct. 6—1 P.M.

In the Court of Appeals this morning Cases No. 76 and 73 were argued, 46 was submitted, and 74 is now on argument. In VAN WYCK against McINTOSH the order dismissing the appeal was vacated. No. 75 is next on the calendar.

Whig Nomination.

BOSTON, Friday, Oct. 6.

The Whigs of the First District have nominated Hon. THOMAS D. ELLIOTT, of New-Bedford, for reelection to Congress.

The Yellow Fever at Savannah.

BALTIMORE, Friday, Oct. 6.

We have no mail this morning south of Savannah.

The fever was steadily decreasing at Savannah, but the papers caution absentees against returning yet.

Highway Robbery and Shooting.

BRIDGETON, N. J., Friday, Oct. 6.

WILLIAM CARNEY of Millville, was shot last night a mile from that place, and robbed by two men, supposed to be Frenchmen. The wound he received is supposed to be mortal.

Loss of the Sloop Splendid.

BOSTON, Friday, Oct. 6.

The British schooner Splendid from Nova Scotia arrived at this port to-day, reports that she came in collision with the sloop Splendid, bound for Rockland, and sunk her. No lives were lost.

Marine Disaster.

NORFOLK, Friday, Oct. 6.

The schooner General Worth, from New-York, bound for Bayport, Florida, put into this port to-day, with the loss of spars, sails and rigging.

Fire at Springfield, Ills.

One of the shops occupied by the American Car Company was burned a few days since, and a number of first class passenger cars nearly finished for delivery.

ARSON.—On Friday last, a fire broke out in a house occupied by a Mr. ADAMS, in Poughkeepsie, which was, however, fortunately extinguished before much damage had been done. The building was believed to have been set on fire, and suspicion resting on a man named DIAMOND, and another, they were arrested, and after an examination, were discharged. Yesterday the same building was fired again, and considerable damage done. The men previously discharged were rearrested, and will be tried to-day on a charge of arson.

ONE WEEK LATER FROM EUROPE

ARRIVAL OF THE CANADA.

The Arctic Still at Sea—She Left Liverpool on her Regular Day.

Important War News.

Landing of the Allied Forces near Sebastopol.

RUMORS OF PEACE FROM THE CZAR.

SPANISH NEWS—MADRID TRANQUIL.

Cotton Dull—Breadstuffs Advancing—Consols 95 2-4.

The mail steamer Canada, from Liverpool, 10½ o'clock, morning of Saturday, 23d ult., arrived at this port early yesterday morning. She advises that the Collins steamer Arctic left Liverpool on her regular day, Wednesday, 20th September, with 200 passengers.

The steamer Petrel, Captain TINE, with 111 passengers, from Glasgow for New-York, had put back to the Clyde, where she arrived on the 18th, having met with severe weather; her masts carried away, decks swept, bulwarks driven in, and leaky. Five passengers had died.

The United States steamer San Jacinto had arrived at Southampton, and would leave in a few days.

The news is interesting. Liverpool Cotton Market continued dull; Breadstuffs buoyant.

General Summary of the News—The War—American Diplomacy, &c.

Special Correspondence of the N. Y. Daily Times.

LONDON, Friday, Sept. 22, 1854.

The expedition landed at Eupatoria, without having met with any opposition. So the telegraph says, and there is no reason to doubt it in the present instance, though the previously announced attack on Odessa seems to have been a fabrication. The latter part of that telegraphic information, however, is evidently a gratuitous addition of sanguine hopes, for it may be asserted safely that the allied armies did not direct themselves at once toward Sebastopol. They are too prudent to do such a thing without having first awaited the arrival of their reserves, and obtained some previous information about the real position and strength of the Russian forces in and around that stronghold. We hear, indeed, that the transport ships have been dispatched back to Varna to take in the reserve, and some more cavalry. This last element of strength is the weak side of the expedition, and if the Russian Commander-in-Chief is able to take advantage of his enemy's weakness, the Tartar cavalry, regular and irregular, may, by a harassing display of unceasing, though only apparent attack on all sides, during some four or five days and nights, totally unfit the expeditionary army for any effective enterprise.

Such is, here, the opinion of many persons, and especially of KOSSUTH, who thinks, moreover, that the fall of Sebastopol, if it should ever happen, will by no means have rendered the situation less indefinite than it is now. It would be, of course, a heavy blow to Russia and a great fact against Russian prestige, but beyond this prestige there is still some real strength, and this is not to be destroyed in the Crimea, nor, in truth, in the south of the Czar's dominions, but in the heart of the Empire, and there is a long and dreary way between that and Sebastopol. KOSSUTH means that the attack on Sebastopol is a mistake or a fresh proof of the diplomatic character of the war. Sebastopol was to be left for the last bit—pour la bonne bouche—and after the Russians should have been defeated in and expelled from Bessarabia and the provinces running to the Euxine. The Crimea with its stronghold is a point of weakness rather than of strength to the Czar, so long as the Black Sea is ruled by a superior hostile fleet. The necessity of providing for the security of Sebastopol did not only paralyze the movements of Russian armies, but actually deprives them of some 75,000 armed men, who must be kept on the menaced point, without their having any possibility to undertake any enterprise against the Allies, who dominate the Sea, and consequently the only road for such enterprises.

It is supposed that the Crimea contains now a Russian army—of all arms and character—of 150,000 men. Admiral DUNDAS reported that number two months ago, evidently exaggerating the numbers, in order to dissuade from the invasion, which he strongly opposed as more than hazardous. At that time there were certainly not the aforesaid numbers, but since there is much probability of such being their actual strength. Let half of that number perish in defence, and under the ruins of Sebastopol, and 75,000 will swell the ranks of the main army of Russian operations in their proper country. And it must never be forgotten, that the Czar is carrying on a real war, and is unscrupulous of sacrificing as many human lives, while the allies cannot help being somewhat more careful to avoid losses that are to be known to a man, in countries where people are used to think and to be discontented with their respective Governments. A Russian soldier will fight and starve without any one knowing of his fate, while an English soldier must be fed well, be paid well and not be expected recklessly, less the ministry should be looked upon as the real enemy. The Czar pays his men with the knout, and feeds them with orthodox superstition, and for 2,000 lost in the Alands he orders a levy of some 80,000 fresh troops, to be slaughtered, if need be, for some questionable advantage to the Imperial throne, but with more or less loss of the allies, who have no such uncontrolled power over the lives of their subjects.

These considerations must be pointed out in order to prevent the spreading of that delusion, that the fall of Sebastopol will conclude the war. Quite the contrary. It would render it longer and more fierce. But is this fall, then, so near at hand? The reader knows my views on that point, and I have not changed them since the last mail, though the telegraph has announced the unopposed landing. There is, however, a stop to reasoning; we must await events. Let me, therefore, speak to you of American matters, of which I have to tell you some rather curious facts.

A citizen of the United States came to London with the intention to take out here a patent for some invention. His machine—the nature and merit of which has nothing to do with what I am going to relate—was to be completed here, and, in order to elude the discovery of its secret, its different parts have been entrusted to the hands of different men. A machinist of Belgium was one of these, and he duly acquitted himself of the commission, when, lo! the police seized the artifice and the artificer, who could not tell what he had been working upon, and must accordingly have been constructing an infernal machine to destroy some divine throne and its heavenly inmates. He told, however, his tale in all innocence, and then he was allowed to prove the truth of what he said. The American inventor being called upon to state his claims and to exculpate the man whom he employed, applied at once to the Legation in London, through the instrumentality of which the whole affair was then put into the hands of the Legation in Brussels. The Belgian machinist remained, however, in prison. Fortunately he is a married man, and as a good wife has different reasons to wish her husband out of prison, so Madame ARENSTEIN—such is his name—went to the Legation and urged the matter. It seems to be a fashion just now with some of the American Ministers to be anywhere but on their posts. M. SIZEEL was accordingly not on his. Perhaps he went in the suite of LEOPOLD to compliment NAPOLEON III. at Boulogne. This supposition gains some degree of probability, if we may judge from the spirit of his Excellency's Secretary. This gentleman having listened to the personal request of Madame ARENSTEIN, replied in the following memorable terms:

"You may be glad, Madame, that his Excellency is not in Brussels, for he would not have moved a pen in the whole affair, while I ventured to make some steps in his absence. You may say what you like, but the matter is one of political conspiracy, and the Government of the United States is not inclined, and will not further any revolutionary schemes. We are, MADAME, tired of that RUDE EQUALITY, even in America, and hope to have in some years a good orderly monarchy."

Madame ARENSTEIN on this left the Legation somewhat puzzled, as it may easily be imagined, and I leave it to American readers to judge how far they partake of this official sentiment on rude equality.

I am happy to say that the Legation in London is animated with different feelings. And being on that point, I may tell, perhaps, that the Government at Washington received some time ago a confidential letter of remonstrance from Mr. BUCHANAN in respect to the question of passports. The NEW-YORK DAILY TIMES had recently an account of a Cabinet refusal to give a passport to a gentleman who renounced allegiance to any foreign Prince; and that was not an isolated case, nor was it accidental. The pen that wrote the KOSTKA letter gave very stringent instructions to all European Legations to avoid by all possible means the recurrence of another such case, and not to deliver passports to other than actual citizens. The intention to become so was duly used up for effect at the time, but the principles that have been laid down must not be acted upon. Mr. BUCHANAN, who, as well as other Ministers, had a great deal of annoyance in consequence of instructions so diametrically opposed to official professions of principle, wrote the above-mentioned confidential remonstrance. I am, of course, unacquainted with its words, but I think I know its character and meaning. Its character is straightforward, manly, and such that another Cabinet would have recalled the Minister who wrote so, though justly indignant. Mr. BUCHANAN does, however, not care to remain Ambassador, and so he may be suffered to act as a man and a good Republican.

As to the sense of that letter, it may be condensed into the following: The Government has perfectly the right to follow such policy as it pleases, its responsibility towards Congress and the people being its only point of direction—but the Government has no right to place its diplomatic agents in a false position, and to expose some to disagreeables, by giving them secret instructions that are totally opposed to the policy loudly and publicly professed and developed. No one will question the justness of that remonstrance, but its justness is a grave and sad accusation.

After such glances behind the curtain, it is really more than ludicrous to see the great panic that seems to have seized upon European Cabinets about the designs of American diplomacy, Republican policy in Europe. Where are they? What are they? In the troubled dreams of terrorizing and terrorstruck despots, who see Banquo's head at each of their orgies. A letter dated London, Sept. 7, and published by the Nacion of Madrid, contains such a vision of fright.

The Yankees form the reserve of that army of agitators. The intentions of the last are well known. Passports are issued by an Anglo-American minister from this great city to many ultra-Reds, who direct themselves to Gibraltar and Cadiz, as North American travelers. Money is not scarce, and it is known that a very large sum has been drawn in favor of a personage who has to receive it at Gibraltar.

And the Nacion remarks that "the person pointed out here as charged with distributing them amongst malcontents of all epochs and countries, is the ex-French citizen, the Minister of the United States to our Court, Monsieur PIERRE SOULE;" and the editor, though "nothing be further from his mind than to admit this accusation as true or even as likely," hopes, notwithstanding, that M. SOULE will contradict it. Well, Sir, if the Republicans would do only half of what Despotism and its minions suppose them to be capable and willing, Freedom would have to rejoice. But as affairs stand, the Nacion and its correspondent may perhaps be tranquillized by the knowledge that M. SOULE has been lately heard of as being in Toulouse, in company of Mr. SICKLES, who seems to have been at last more successful than the expedition in search of Sir JOHN FRANKLIN.

It is really pitiful, and I am not astonished at seeing, more and more, that this fright of European diplomacy at your "meddling policy" becomes daily more courageous, and tells you with rare impudence what you have to expect, in no distant time, for your "blind shots" against walls of the "Balance of Power." It would be impossible to notice all the recent revelations of fear-inspired plans against the "encroaching spirit of the West," but I may do so with some. The Morning Post, which, as you know, is the High Tory organ, and PALMERSTON's special trumpeter, being at the same time NAPOLEON's confidential admirer, had, the day before yesterday, a leader, in which the allied fleets were directed towards America. The courtly writer is frank,—even to a fault, against fashion—and tells you that your turn comes after the CZAR's. The fact is, that America is pretty much assimilated with Russia, and a fresh caricature in the Diogenes, or Punch—I am not now sure which—represents Brother Jonathan and NICHOLAS sitting close together, and in perfect friendship. When satire seizes upon an idea, it must have made a great advance in general belief.

You have read MAZZINI's admirable letter to the Swiss, that comes so quick fully to ratify Mr. SANDERS' views. You may see from that how Absolutism works, not by talk, but by action. Switzerland, the republican confederation in Europe, is made the gendarme of Despotism, which knows quite well that not to proceed is to remain behind. There is some sign that this letter and Mr. SANDERS' appeal will not remain without some good effect. A resolute Republican party is already in way of organization in Switzerland, and you will receive its programme by this mail.

I am also glad to state that at least one of the American Ministers on the Continent has fully embraced Mr. SANDERS' views, and looks upon European affairs in the light in which they ought to be considered by an American diplomat. This gentleman,—I am not allowed to tell his name,—bodes no good from the Western alliance for America, and sees matters as persons who have eyes to see cannot help seeing them.

I may add to this, that Mr. BUCHANAN was equally pleased with the late Consul's manifest. His Excellency will, perhaps, soon go to Manchester, (from where he returned just now, being there on a private visit to Mr. SIZEEL,) and give some public utterance to his views in a banquet, which is said to be in preparation in his honor. These international festivities of a mercantile nature are, however, hardly to be expected to be a fair opportunity for declarations of real policy.

MAZZINI—as the Daily News now states it—is not arrested. CAMPANELLA, who was arrested instead of him, has been set at liberty,—but there are, unfortunately, other tidings from a different quarter, from Bukarest, where M. MORITZ HARTMAN, one of the best living poets of Germany, and one of the very few energetic members of the late Parliament of Frankfort, has been arrested and carried away to Vienna by the Austrians. Such acts fall like curses on the head of that accursed alliance of England with despotic Powers. I know HARTMAN personally. He is a man of most exalted feelings, of a generous heart, and great accomplishments. He is a poet, with heart and head, but his heart is not senseless, and his head is not heartless. He went to the East as the Correspondent of the Gazette, of Cologne, and believed himself safe under the flags of that "rainbow of freedom," and ventured to go to Bukarest after the Austrian eagle had seized upon that deserted town. And he was arrested and sent to be hanged or to be amnestied to twenty years' imprisonment. What do you say to that war of civilization against barbarism, right against wrong? But how can we expect safety for "foreigners," and what is more, "exiles," from a Government that dares not, or will not protect its own subjects? The Austrians have not only arrested HARTMAN, but they have dismissed all the English correspondents from Bukarest. The correspondent of the Chronicle was actually put into prison, and afterwards left the East disgusted with his country's policy. The correspondent of the Times followed the confidential advice given to him, and left the occupied province for Constantinople. The correspondent of the Daily News was, until lately, struggling against intrigues, and will no doubt prove unable to resist them.

And what are the Cabinets doing? Well, Sir, they are alarmed, but dare not act; and so they send military spies to the headquarters of Gen. HESS, in order to observe matters, and to call themselves Aides-de-camp to the Austrian Commander-in-Chief. Such is the mission of the French General LEFANC, and such will be that of an English officer, perhaps of the 40th, who shall accept that honorable post of trust. What a glorious policy! It makes, it seems, even the Times blush,—at least it talked yesterday most vehemently against Austria—but then the Times is easily reconciled to whatever is bad, base and vile. It is patriotic by fits, but there is no morality in its mind, and so we cannot ascribe, as would otherwise be the case, any importance to its yesterday's fierce attack on Austria. It was a mere escapade, nothing more.

The Globe of this evening gives a fresh testimony to the above words. The Ministerial paper has a leader on KOSSUTH, who, it pretends, delayed his going to Newcastle because he sees that Austria is acting honestly. Now the fact is, that KOSSUTH, as every one else, is awaiting the fate of the Crimea expedition. Why he alone would not be allowed to suspend the further development of his views, in face of an eventuality, which may produce immediate changes in the policy of hitherto neutral States, is not very obvious, except to Governmental organs in need to excuse the atrocious connivance of its masters with Austrian rule in the Danubian Provinces.

I see that M. TONSOT has lost his case against the Clamor Publico. The Spanish Jury has decided with five voices against one, that "France is under despotism, and NAPOLEON is a despot." The great news!—the Europe, a half-republican organ, three times suppressed, has again reappeared, and has a strong editorial against the Cabinet, which issues warrants against OSMONA, proscribes its friend, and is courting diplomacy. The double intrigue against the exiles and America is carried on relentlessly, and Mr. BUCHANAN is himself accused now of furthering the progress of the hydra of anarchy.

The Belgian Ministerial crisis is at an end, and so is my letter: we both stop.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

To arrive at Sebastopol, the allied army will be obliged to make a detour towards the left, and then to bend to the right on Simferopol, where they may probably fall in with the enemy. The allied troops will have to cross two rivers, the Kaltcha and Belbeck, and it is not improbable that the existence of those two streams has been one of the causes which have determined the Generals-in-Chief to select Eupatoria for their landing place, in order to insure water for the troops; for in other parts of the Crimea there is no water fit to drink, except in wells, which the Russians could poison if they pleased. About two or three days will be required to effect the landing, and entrench the position taken up. The movement on Sebastopol could not therefore have taken place before the 17th or 18th; and as the distance to be gone over requires at least three days' march, it is only the 21st, or the next day, that the first encounter of the Anglo-French troops with the enemy will probably have taken place, unless, indeed, the latter should have thought fit to come forward and meet them. But that supposition is not very probable. It seems more likely that the Russians, not having been in a position to oppose the landing, will await an attack by supporting themselves on Simferopol and Theodosia.

The Baltic.

A dispatch from Dantzic to the London Morning Herald says: "On receipt of dispatches, (from England,) all the Admirals met on board the Duke of Wellington. Sveaborg and Cronstadt are not to be attacked. The French Admirals and French fleet return to France; they left on the 19th.

The Crimea.

There is no later news, and none is looked for under a week hence. A letter says that the troops will take an easterly inland direction, and then turn towards Sebastopol.

The Norwegian coasting trade is opened to British vessels.

Consols closed 95¼@95¾. Money in good demand at 5 per cent. Bullion in bank decreased £51,449 sterling.

Paris Bourse, 23d, closing prices were 4½ per cent. Rentes 98.80; 3 per cent. Rentes 74.95; Bank shares 2,940.

Reported Acceptance of the Conditions of Peace!

Accounts from Constantinople, of September 10, bring news of great importance if true. The statement was that the Czar had consented to accept the four propositions of the Western Powers, and that an armistice would be the consequence. It was said that, on the morning of the 7th, the Porte and the Austrian internuncio received dispatches signifying the Czar's willingness to accept the four propositions as the basis of negotiations. The same day a steamer was dispatched to learn the whereabouts of the the allied expedition, and on the succeeding day, the 8th, another small steamer, called the Dessie, was sent with pressing dispatches to the fleet, supposed by that time to be at Serpent's Isle. As the steamer was small,—and the weather boisterous,—it could not have arrived before the expedition disembarked.

This important news is yet unconfirmed, but is positively asserted.

THE WAR.

Landing of the Crimean Expedition at Eupatoria—The Army Marching on Sebastopol.

The first news of the landing of the expedition against the Crimea comes from Vienna, dated evening 20 h, as follows:

"Fifty-eight thousand men landed at Eupatoria on on the 14th."

The next was the following official announcement forwarded from the (British) War Department to the London Times, of the 22d, for publication:

"Telegraphic accounts have been received by Her Majesty's Government, from Vienna and Bucharest, announcing that the allied forces, consisting of 25,000 English, 26,000 French, and 8,000 Turkish troops, landed on the 14th at Eupatoria without meeting any resistance, and had commenced marching on Sebastopol."

Our Paris correspondence of date 21st, says: "An official dispatch, posted up on the Bourse to-day, confirms the news of the landing of the Crimea Expedition on the 14th, at Eupatoria.

"This intelligence was sent on the 19th by the Austrian Internuncio at Constantinople, to Gen. CORONINI at Bucharest."

A number of transports had returned to Varna for the French reserve of 14,000 men. Some of the allied ships are lying off the fortress of Kinburn and island of Tendra, near Odessa, with the object of intercepting any Russian reinforcements intended for the Crimea.

Odessa Again Bombarded.

According to the newspaper Premdem Blatt, all the strand batteries recently erected at Odessa were destroyed by some ships of the Allied fleet. Previous advices stated that eight Anglo-French steamers had taken up a position before the town. To this, however, we must append a private dispatch, which says from Vienna, evening 19th: "The account given yesterday of the bombardment of Odessa appears doubtful; a letter of the 10th makes no mention of it."

The Russians Not Idle.

It is positively stated that while the greater portion of the British fleet was at Balaklava disembarking troops, the Russians succeeded in sending a strong reinforcement by sea from Odessa to Sebastopol. They crept out of the port by night, and the troops being conveyed in the large shallow lighters and floats, used for loading corn on the Danube, were towed close along shore, and thus escaped the Allied cruisers. Nay more, a Russian steamer came to the entrance of Balaklava Bay, while the fleets were there, and sent in two boats to reconnoitre! On the 7th, a Russian steamer landed a detachment of Cossacks at Galatz, who destroyed the magazines of the (Austrian) Danubian Steamship Company, and stopped the coals. Since August 24, Prince MENSCHIKOFF has been in incessant activity between Perekop and Sebastopol, organizing a levy en masse.

Russian Preparations for Defence.

Odessa letters of the 6th state that all the troops in the Crimea have been marched to Sebastopol, and reinforcements were hurrying from Nikolajeff and Alexchki towards Perekop. Prince MENSCHIKOFF has exhausted every means of defence in order to render Sebastopol impregnable, as well from the land as from the seaside. Between Sebastopol and Balaklava there are five strong detached forts, sufficiently garrisoned. The road from Balaklava to Yalta is rendered impassable, and partly mined. There are three forts at Eupatoria—one on the north, a second on the east, a third on the west, and the place is garrisoned by 15,000 men. The heights in the rear of Sebastopol are encircled by redoubts and trenches, and armed with eighteen batteries, and defended by 20,000 men. The garrison of Sebastopol itself is only 10,000 strong. (It is said that reinforcements have been since thrown in from Odessa.) There now 15,000 sailors on board the fleet in harbor. Prince MENSCHIKOFF issued a proclamation on the occasion of his departure, the contents of which are to resistance to the last extremity. In this proclamation, he enumerates all the victories gained by the Russian arms during the present century, and calls on his soldiers to show themselves equal to their predecessors in bravery, and power of endurance. If the enemy, (he says,) owing to the inscrutable will of Heaven, should obtain a victory, then let the whole store of powder go with him and them into the air. The proclamation concludes—"Rather let us die than surrender!"

On the other hand, the Vienna Lloyd states that the Russian line of defence is too extended to be successfully maintained, and that, from the nature of the soil, the entrenched works just constructed by the Russians, on the land side of Sebastopol, cannot be very formidable.

A private letter from Russia describes General GORTSCHAKOFF as a highly educated man, well read in the literature of all countries, but at the same time an elderly, used-up man, without a spark of military fire; a General fit only to parade. PARKIEWITCH, it speaks of, irreverently, as "an antiquated coxcomb." After lamenting the lack of able Generals in the Russian army, the writer states that the best General the Russians have is NICHOLAS himself, and the second best, his son CONSTANTINE.

From Vienna, morning of the 20th, it is telegraphed that the main body of the allied fleet had reappeared before Sebastopol, and the Russian fleet had again run into port. There is a rumor that the English have captured a Russian express steamer off Sebastopol, with important dispatches.

Nine thousand men continue to work incessantly at the fortifications of Cracow, which place it is intended to make one of the strongholds of the Russian Empire. It will be some years ere the works are complete. The advanced works extend nearly five English miles beyond the city.

INVASION OF THE CRIMEA.

Landing of the Allied Troops—What they Propose to Do—The Scene of Operations.

From the London Times, Sept. 22.

The long expected blow has at last been struck, and the allied armies have entered the Crimea. Authentic intelligence was received yesterday by the English and French Governments in confirmation of the intelligence transmitted to us in the preceding night from Vienna, to the effect that 60,000 men of the allied troops landed at Eupatoria on the 14th inst. without encountering resistance, and proceeded to march at once in the direction of Sebastopol. Thus far, then, the first and least certain part of this gigantic undertaking has been favorably accomplished. So the preparations for a maritime invasion what they may—and never were they so vast or so complete as in the present instance—the fate of such an expedition must always in some degree depend upon the winds and waves, and many a huge armada has ere this perished within sight of the strand it was intended to conquer. This danger our gallant countrymen and allies have already escaped, and, for an army to set foot upon the territory of an enemy, after only a week's confinement at sea, united, prepared, and ardent for battle, is already a first pledge of victory. The preparations for the voyage had been made with consummate skill. In Baltschik Bay the British transports and steamers to the number of upwards of 100 large vessels, exclusive of the fleet, lay in five lines, corresponding to the five divisions of the army. Each of the steamers took two transports in tow; the infantry were principally embarked on the steam vessels; the artillery filled 32 transports; and the rest conveyed the stores of the army. In this order the flotilla proceeded from Baltschik, coasting along the Bulgarian shore till it reached the place of rendezvous at Fidonisi, the Isle of Serpents. From this spot to Cape Tarkan, the extreme western promontory of the Crimea, the distance is about 150 miles due east, so that in 24 hours from the time of sailing the fleet must have been within sight of the enemy's coast, and, after making Cape Tarkan, it would run down the shore in smooth water till it entered Kalamita Bay, the wind being in the north, as it constantly is in the Black Sea during Summer. This judicious mode of directing the course of the expedition, so as to reduce the passage from land to land to the narrowest compass, naturally led the fleet to Eupatoria, or Khozlev, the first port which offered a good roadstead, and there the disembarkation of the army took place.

The town of Eupatoria was, in the time of the Genoese, one of the principal mercantile stations of the Crimea, and it still contains about 10,000 inhabitants. Three forts had lately been erected to defend the place, in addition to the old Genoese wall, and the garrison has been loosely stated at 15,000 men. The Russians, however, were not in a condition to resist so formidable an enemy. The part line to the east of Lake Sasik, one of those vast salt marshes for which the Crimea is remarkable; and this tract is separated from the sea by a narrow tongue of land, along which the road passes to the interior and to the southern part of the peninsula. This position, therefore, must at once have placed the army and such of its stores as were landed in safety, for the lake of the north would prevent the enemy from attacking our troops on the land side. We are further informed that the forces immediately proceeded to advance to the south, and, indeed it would be necessary for so large a body of men to deploy, without delay, beyond this narrow isthmus. The question, then, arises, what is the precise direction they will follow, and the next object of the campaign? Eupatoria, Sebastopol and Simpheropol form the three angles of an equilateral triangle, of which each side or base is about 40 miles in length. The high road indicated on our maps follows two sides of this triangle, and consequently brings the traveler to Sebastopol by way of Simpheropol—a considerable round. The country, however, is open; it consists of grassy steppes, with villages, cultivation, and abundance of cattle, and it is not unlikely that a more direct course may be taken.

We are confirmed in this supposition by the narrative of Marshal MUNICH's campaign in 1736 over the same ground, and some of the particulars of that war will be read with interest at the present time. After forcing the lines of Perecop, the Russian army marched in ten days to Eupatoria as now a country singularly deficient in water and all other supplies. As Eupatoria MUNICH found himself in the same position in which our army is now placed, except that he had not the advantage of an enormous fleet to assist his operations by sea. On the 21st of June, 1736, the Russian General resumed his march upon Bakscht Sarai, following the coast of the Black Sea, and the historian of the war adds that since the troops had entered the Crimea they had nowhere found such an abundance of victuals and provisions as by this route. In six days' march the Russian army reached the gorges of the mountains which crown the flat ground in the environs of Bakschi Sarai, which was then the residence of the Khan of CRIM TARTARY, and there a decisive battle was fought. Lord RAGLAN and Marshal ST. ARNAUD have, therefore, now to choose whether they will follow the main road which conducts them further into the interior of the country, or whether they will, like Marshal MUNICH, adhere to the tracts parallel with the coast. The latter course has several obvious advantages; the sea protects the right of the army, and affords an easy means of conveying all the heavy portion of the baggage and stores; and, if the enemy should give us battle in the course of the march, the whole army could be rapidly concentrated to oppose him. The passage of the Alma and the Katcha may be disputed, but the first strong position appears to be at the mouth of the valley in which Bakschi Sarai is situated. By the coast route Sebastopol would be about six days' march from Eupatoria; by the interior, twice as long.

It remains to be seen what the Russian plan of campaign is, and whether they are resolved to oppose to the invasion a direct and open resistance, or to fall back upon their ordinary tactics of retreating before the enemy and laying waste the country behind them. Prince MENSCHIKOFF is in supreme military and naval command in the Crimea, and it is by a sort of poetical justice that the insolent emissary who drew down these calamities on his country should now bear the brunt of them in his own person; but his military talents inspire us with but little apprehension. The extent of country to be crossed by our armies, the nature of those operations, and the time which must elapse before Sebastopol can be invested, appear to justify a strong hope that before the siege is commenced the allied forces will force the enemy to a battle, for the Russians can hardly resign themselves to witness the rapid progress of an invasion advancing to capture their stronghold, without at least some attempt to oppose this hostile advance. If such a battle be fought and won, as we trust it will be, by the prowess of the two bravest armies on the face of the earth, assisted by a picked body of 12,000 Turks, Sebastopol itself will that day be half taken; for the garrison will know that their chance of relief from without is greatly diminished, and the prestige of the allied troops will give irresistible force to their attack.

To ourselves, confident as we have long been that this expedition would proceed, and would direct its whole force against the Crimea and Sebastopol, the commencement of this campaign only realizes expectations we had long formed and expressed. But there are many in this and in other parts of the world who (affected to the least incredibility they mistook for wisdom) had doubts, misgivings, even wanting when a great enterprise is in hand. Even as late as the 20th of September, after the expedition had actually sailed, we learn from our correspondents that an absurd report found currency in Constantinople, that Russia had accepted the four conditions and that the fighting was at an end, although seven days before, the Russian answer had reached Vienna, declaring that the fortune of war could alone determine the basis of future negotiations. To the whole race of cavillers, sceptics, and alarmists, both here and abroad, the successful landing of the expedition at Eupatoria is, as far as it goes, an answer. It has already accomplished the greatest combined enterprise of modern warfare, and one which even the first military writers of the last generation held to be impossible; for to defeat a Russian army, and even to capture Sebastopol, are ordinary operations of war in comparison with the extraordinary attempt to convey an army of 60,000 men, completely equipped for the field and for a great seige, across 300 miles of sea. We most heartily, therefore, congratulate the country on this auspicious commencement of the campaign, which already realizes our expectations and promises to crown with victory our strongest hopes.

Incidents of the Departure—Cholera among the Troops, &c.

Correspondence of the London Times.

VARNA BAY, OFF VARNA, Sept. 4, 1854.

We are all ready to go. As these lines will reach England and be read long after the expedition has actually landed on the shores of the Crimea, there can be no possible mischief in giving the following information to the public as to the plan of the attack and landing—so far, at least, as the transport service is concerned. I do not know what order the fleet will take, and I believe that it is not yet certain whether the French will be on the right or the left the line.

As the post is about to close and I am about to plunge into all the horrors of moving on board a ship with mats and equipage in a seaway, I cannot do more than put some odds and ends of correspondence together at present. The embarkation of our army may now be said to have terminated. Every available man almost is on board his ship. Sir GEORGE CATHCART has arrived in the Himalaya out from England, and took the command of his division on Friday.

It would appear that the place of embarkation has not yet been fixed on, for the very good reason that they will be landed where there is the least appearance of successful opposition. Lord RAGLAN is close to a degree. He consults none of his Generals, save perhaps that he takes into his confidence Sir GEORGE BROWN, who knows how to keep a secret as well as his chief.

Nearly every one looks with confidence to the result, and places full reliance on Lord RAGLAN's soundness of head and clearness of judgment. It is probable that the landing will take place at a considerable distance from Sebastopol, and I am firmly persuaded that the patience of people at home who are hungering and thirsting for "the fall of Sebastopol" will be severely tried, and that the chances are a little against the incidents of its capture being ready by Christmas for repetition at Astley's. It is certain the Russians are in force at or near all our pet places of landing, and, although Sir E. LYONS guarantees the army against any fear of attack within a mile of the beach, it is scarcely to be expected that with forces inferior to the garrison of the town we can be in a fit state to invest at once such a fortress as Sebastopol.

A rumor—one which I scarcely like to allude to, and of which I would not say a word, were it not so generally circulated and believed at Varna—is, that the garrison of Odessa has contrived to send a very strong reinforcement to the garrison of Sebastopol. The naval officers assert it is absurd to say so, and that if any reinforcement was sent, it must have been dispatched by land round to the neck of the isthmus; but there are many persons who insist on the truth of the story that these men were sent by sea while our fleet was at Baltschik—that they gave the blockading squadron the slip by night, and that they were conveyed in the large shallow vessels and floats used for loading ships with corn at the Danubian ports, which, keeping close in shore, managed to evade our cruisers.

I confess that I withhold my credence to the story, but I have no better reason for my disbelief than "the want of probability" of the narrative, and that is a weak one in these days. It is late, very late in the year, for such a siege as there is before us, and I should not be surprised if we were forced to content ourselves with the occupation of a portion of the Crimea, which might become the basis of larger and more successful operations next year. This army has already lost close upon 700 men by the cholera alone, and fever promises to do its work. Then to this must be added the loss by ordinary sickness, and the average of invaliding, which is swelled by the unhealthiness of the climate to a larger per centage than it is at home, and it will be seen that with the shock to its morale arising from depressed spirits, inactivity, and the spectacle of sudden death, the army is not by any means in the condition in which it landed. In truth, it may be taken as an actual fact that, physically and morally, each division of the army has been weakened by nearly one regiment, and that the division of Sir GEORGE CATHCART does little more than raise the force to its original strength. Sickness, I regret to state, has not left the fleet either here or at Baltschik. On Friday, I dined in company with poor Captain LONSMOAR, of the 8th Royal Irish Hussars. He was seized with illness (the cholera) on Saturday; at 6 o'clock on Sunday morning he died on board the Himalaya, and at 11 o'clock I witnessed his remains interred on shore, in a rude coffin, hastily made on board ship, and laid to rest on a ridge of land overlooking the bay, where frequent wooden crosses mark the graves of the French sailors who perished from the cholera. He was an excellent officer, and Lord CARDIGAN speaks highly of his conduct when commanding the 8th, in the recent reconnaissance to the Danube.

Poor Colonel BOYLE! Who does not remember the boyish-looking member for Frome, as he walked quietly about the House, or bustled through the lobbies on State occasions, the gentlest and most amiable of men? He, too, is dead. He sank yesterday (Sunday, Sept. 3,) under the attacks of fever. By the directions of Admiral DUNDAS, to whom he was related, and to whom a telegraph had been sent from Varna to Baltschik for instructions, his body was placed in a boat, taken out a little way to sea, and thrown overboard. The same day Lieutenant A. SALTMARSHE, of the 11th Hussars, died of cholera. He appeared in excellent health and spirits the evening previously.

Three cases of cholera were landed from the Emperor yesterday. The ships at Baltschick are not quite free from it yet.

As I write (Monday) the Admiral has just telegraphed up from Baltschik to the fleet here to prepare for sailing forthwith, and to get all light canvas ready aloft. There is and has been a strong breeze for the last few days setting into the bay dead in our teeth, and there is a good deal of surf on the beach, but this is all the better for us, once we get to the other side.

On Friday there was a sad catastrophe. A Turkish steamer, used to tow off the troop-boats from the pier to the transports, ran down a lighter with 40 Zouaves on board. As the men were fully equipped and laden with their knapsacks, &c., they sank like stones to the bottom. Ten were saved by clinging to the sides of the lighter. The captain of the boat has been arrested, and placed in prison. This event has much disheartened the Zouaves, just as they were beginning to recover from the depression created by their losses in the Dobrudscha.

Varna will soon be abandoned to all but its original dreariness. The French, indeed, are building storehouses and magazines on a large scale, and seem inclined to establish their central dépôt for the army there; but it is probable that we shall move down to Constantinople when Winter comes on. Every convenience for the "hybernation" of our army can be found in that capital or in its neighborhood, and contracts can be made their with comparative ease for the supply of provisions and necessaries. The presence of our army has indeed affected the prices of food very considerably, and Mr. FILDES has, I believe, been able to make contracts for the army on very advantageous terms.

Many of the 88th were still suffering from illness, and dropping out of the ranks or almost tottering under the weight of their kits, but they would come on in spite of their weakness. The regiment suffered another heavy loss on the march from Alaghra to Varna. Major MACKAY was seized with cholera on the route, and died in a few hours. The deceased officer was a great favorite with the regiment, and they carried his body with them on the march till they could inter it with a little decent solemnity after their halt. His remains were followed to the grave, ere the regiment renewed its march, by most of the men and officers. They rest in a field by the wayside, about three miles from Varna.

Soon after the Guards embarked in the Simoon, Captain TATHAM, a few cases of cholera appeared among the men, and, as some of her crew and her former captain had died of that disease, it was deemed expedient to shift the Guards to other vessels. Two companies were sent on board the Vengeance, and orders were given to Lord GEORGE PAULET to prepare for the reception of five hundred more on board of the Bellerophon, but up to present time they have not been sent on board that ship.

MONDAY EVENING—5 o'clock.

Everything is now ready for starting. The steam transports have not got their steam up, but are all ready to do so. Lord RAGLAN and staff will proceed on board the Cœsar, Lieutenant DERRIMAN, R. N., to the Crimea. Nearly all the officers of departments have left the town, and have proceeded on board ship, and the postmaster has been desired to take his place in one of the transports.

End and Failure of the Campaign in the Baltic.

From the London Times, Sep.

If, as there is great reason to apprehend, the return of a portion of the forces from the Baltic, and the tenor of Sir CHARLES NAPIER's last dispatches indicate the termination of the present naval campaign in the north of Europe, it must be acknowledged that the results of these operations fall much below what was expected from the gigantic naval armament which sailed a few months ago from the Downs. There is an obvious disproportion between preparations of such magnitude and the effects produced by them upon the power of the enemy; and, with a view to the more efficient conduct of the next campaign, even more than for the purpose of unavailing recrimination, it is desirable that the causes of this disappointment should be fully considered and understood. Mistakes have, of course, been committed—some from want of knowledge, some from want of judgment, and some from want of resolution; but on the other hand, an amount of experience has been gained in this peculiar warfare which ought to render the recurrence of such blunders impossible another year. Most, we think, might have been effected, but until the operations in the Black Sea have accomplished the grand object of the destruction of Sebastopol, the campaign in the Baltic was a matter of secondary interest and it is to be regretted that by far the more powerful of our two fleets, especially in steam line-of-battle ships has been employed throughout the Summer where there was least work to be performed.

In any case we trust that from the present time the Naval departments of England and France will proceed unremittingly to consider and prepare for more regular operations in the Baltic that those of the past season. At Sebastopol we may destroy the influence of Russia over the East; but unless that blow should reduce the Emperor NICHOLAS to ask for terms, it is only by opening the road to St. Petersburg that we can reckon on dictating a secure and honorable peace. Cronstadt once taken and destroyed, the Capital of the Northern Empire is for the future without defence against the maritime Powers, and the fear of such a catastrophe is more likely than any other means to secure our triumph.

Hints as to the Basis of a Peace Negotiation.

Correspondence of the London Times.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sunday, Sept. 10.

Now that the Danubian Provinces are freed from the Russian troops, and the Sultan's Empire, if not at peace, is yet no longer exposed to the dangers or harrassed by the expenses of war, it seems time to turn attention once more to its future internal state, and the relations which the friendly Powers bear to the country they have saved. In these cases events occur suddenly and unexpectedly, and no one need be surprised at finding the future rights and duties of England and her allies the subject of discussion before a few weeks are over. It would be no slight calamity for the advent of political action, to find public opinion as unformed as it was previous to the commencement of these events, and statesmen called upon to legislate for ages while they are only intent on the dispatch of brawny Sonthemen and 10-inch guns. Before this time, probably, the mode of conducting the conferences which must precede a peace have received the attention of politicians; but it is not unlikely that the precedent of last year will be followed, and the final acceptance or rejection of each detail will depend on the decision of what is called the Government at Constantinople. Now, if there is one thing that a friend of Europe and its pacification should insist upon, it is that negotiations should be carried on and completed free from the influences of this place. There are men in the Turkish empire belonging to a more enlightened school, who yet cannot be suspected of any want of patriotism or any feebleness of judgment. Among this small but estimable body one or more plenipotentiaries might be chosen to conduct at Vienna, London, or Paris, the negotiations for a lasting settlement; and it is no extravagant demand on the Porte, that the acquiescence of these functionaries should carry with it the consent of less able and less reputable rulers in the capital. The voice of Europe would point out such men as FUAD EFFENDI or ACHMET EFFENDI for the task, and the dignity and security of their country would be safe in their hands. But if the united opinion of the chief statesmen of Europe, the just and well-weighed stipulations which have received the assent of moderate men of every nation, are to be set at nought by such influences as prevail in Pera and at the Porte, then the prospects of the future are indeed clouded. The world has too often had experience of good measures rejected because they originated with others, and propositions carped at because their acceptance would confer credit on a rival's name. It is no new thing for States to reap the evil of personal ambition and personal pique, and the malady is the more dangerous as it for the most part works unseen. Whatever may be the course of this war, it will be as well to guard against its objects being defeated when all but attained.

It is no slight sign of the sincerity of the three friendly Powers that they have declared their willingness to forego those exclusive religious claims which defeated all hopes of tranquillity, and were only kept up through a mistaken sense of honor. If the French Emperor yields his hereditary right of interference in favor of the Catholics, he will have conferred a service on the world, and even, whatever they may think, on the Levantines themselves. Above all, he will render the policy of France more reputable and her influence really stronger, as it will no longer be in the hands of a class which is far from popular.

But each nation has its part to perform. The most complete cooperation ought to reign between the three Powers. No ambition of exclusive influence ought to have a place either here or in Egypt. If analysed, the cause of this perpetual struggle will be found to be a secret expectation of the dissolution of the Ottoman Empire, or at least of certain provinces escaping from its yoke, which each nation wished to obtain, or to prevent its rival from obtaining. But now all that is over. Turkey will be taken into the European system. Whatever may be the internal changes, the integrity of the fabric is guaranteed by the good faith of Europe and the opinion of mankind; and no nation can look to gain anything except through the peaceable means of intercourse and trade. There will be no necessity for the assertion of national privileges when every country enjoys what is just under a common guarantee. As to the national reputation to be enjoyed by supremacy in the councils of the Porte, the sense of Englishmen at least must see that it is a delusion. As yet the study of the Turkish, and still more of the Pasha nature, has been no ennobling pursuit; and yet it is to proficiency in this study that influence must be due. It may be acquired by any man of strength of purpose who has been for some years in the country, and it is possessed by men incapable of learning anything else. For one nation to be pleased or even tranquil at the failure of its neighbor, and to take a pride in its own successful intrigues, will be in the future condition of Turkey a most mischievous policy.

The Danube, &c.

Not a Russian remained in Wallachia on the 6th instant. The Russians destroyed all the bridges after they crossed the Sereth. It is said that OMAR PACHA had received orders not to pass into Bessarabia. The evacuation of Moldavia is complete, the Russian rear-guard having crossed the Pruth.

General PHILIPPESCO, commander of the Moldavian Artillery, has been sent under escort to Russia.

An order has been sent by the Sultan to Prince STIRBEY, at Baden, ordering him to return to his post as Hospodar of Wallachia. He was to leave on the 25th ult.

OMAR PACHA has presented the Wallachian militia with six Russian cannon to recompense for six which the Russians carried away.

The Grand Duke CONSTANTINE was expected at Simferopol.

On the 12th a powder magazine exploded at Perekop, killing a great many Russians and damaging two of the allies ships. A Turkish magazine, containing 26 loads of powder, was wilfully fired by a dervish at Erzeroum.

The Turkish Government has promulgated a hatti-scherif, reprobating the corrupt practices of certain officials, and ordering a purer administration of the laws. The execution of the "tanzimat" is placed under the surveillance of a special council, composed of five Moslems, four Greeks or Armenians, three Roman Catholics and one Jew.

SELIM PACHA, ex-commander of the army in Asia, has returned to Constantinople. When on board the Tiskiomeh steamer he thus discoursed respecting his recent generalship: "The Russians attacked my army, it is true, but it was not my fault, for I was asleep in the village two hours off, and of course could not prevent them. I came up with a reinforcement, but could do nothing, for we had forgotten our cartridges. The Russians took all our tents, but they were so rotten that they can be of no manner of use to them; and as for the 15 pieces of cannon, I will pay for them out of my own pocket!" This explanation was considered by his auditors to be satisfactory.

Affairs in Asia.

Between the 26th of August and 1st of September, SCHAMYL entered the northern part of Georgia with 18,000 men, and advanced to the Kour. The centre, which he commanded in person, was at Achalgore on the 28th of August; the right wing, under the Emir HASSAN ENIN, was at Goti, on the Kour, at the same date; and the left wing, under the Emir CHUPH ENIN, was at Mychi, a little to the north of Tedie. The Russians were taken completely by surprise, and retreated, after a very feeble resistance, into the mountains. SCHAMYL carried off a great quantity of booty and made some prisoners of high rank. The effect of these movements has been to compel the Russians to relinquish all idea of conquest in Turkish Armenia. FEHRAD PASHA (Gen. STEIN) has been appointed Quartermaster-General to Asiatic in room of GUYON.

Since the 7th, the squadron under Admiral LYONS had been blockading Anapa and Kertch.

It is said to be in contemplation to place Circassia and Georgia, and the Crimea, under the suzerainty of the Sublime Porte, and under the protection of Europe—preserving to them, as well as to the Danubian Principalities, their right of being governed by their own laws.

The French division of Gen. LEVAILLANT, which was encamped at Gallipoli, is to be sent to Asia. Gen. FOREY's division remains at Varna.

Gen. GUYON has been definitely recalled from Kars. The Poles, headed by YARIP PACHA, demanded his removal from the command, and have been successful in obtaining it.

PERSIA.

The Journal de Constantinople contains a notice, inserted by the Persian Ambassador, stating that there is no truth in the report of a rupture between Persia and the Porte.

Persia is menaced by the Turcomans, who have taken the fortress of Merv and Meschid.

Austro-Prussian Negotiations.

Negotiations are being carried on between Prussia and Austria, but they proceed very slowly, under a consciousness of how little avail are any such negotiations so long as the event of the expedition against Sebastopol is unknown. Until decisive information on this point is received, no result is to be expected, and not until the negotiations between the two Powers have been brought to a harmonious close will any report be presented at Frankfort, by the Political Committee of the Bund.

It had been reported, (but the report must be received with caution,) that Russia had proposed to Austria a joint protectorate over the Principalities, excluding all participation by the Western Powers.

GREECE.

A private letter from Athens of 12th, announces that the Greek Government had dispatched to Constantinople M. BAROZZI, late Greek Consul at Adrianople, furnished with letters to RESCHID PACHA and to the representatives of the foreign Powers. The Greek Government acknowledges its many offences against the Sultan, and appeals to his generosity. Greece proposes to grant a Treaty of Commerce to the Porte as an indemnity for the late insurrection. A similar treaty was proposed a few years since, but King OTHO refused his signature. The present treaty defines the boundaries of the two States, and will consequently force OTHO to acknowledge the existing limits of Turkey, in a more formal manner than he has hitherto done.

SPANISH AFFAIRS.

Rumored Conspiracies—Implication of the United States Minister.

Correspondence of the London Times.

MADRID, Friday, Sept. 15.

The Nacion of yesterday published an interesting letter, addressed to it from London on the 7th inst., which acquires particular weight and importance from the source whence I have strong reason to believe it to proceed. The writer says that England applauds the Spanish revolution, and is disposed "to respect and to make respected the acts of the new power installed in the Peninsula;" that France is completely agreed with England in this respect, and that both will support the new Administration.

"In high regions," continues the letter, "the exit of CHRISTINA and the manner of accomplishing it have been highly approved. A few nights ago Lord CLARENDON expressed, in a private conversation, his satisfaction at an event which saves the Government and country from a conflict.

"But, although the Spanish Cabinet need not for an instant doubt of the sincere adherence of the Cabinets of England and France, although it may be certain that these will efficiently second it, serious dangers of another kind may arise in Spain, and the Government presided over by General ESPARTERO needs to be energetic as well as zealous if it would refute the accusations brought against it, of being lukewarm and deficient in resolution. In my opinion, it is the duty of the Spanish Cabinet to place itself in the van of reform, and so to silence those who tax it with indolence and with incapacity to carry out the reputation in the good cause of the word. To do nothing is to give arms into deadly enemies, who combine to promote disturbances and to keep alive uneasiness and anxiety.

"I have spoken of efforts to combat the political situation of Spain, and will now give my reasons for so expressing myself. The English Government, which penetrates all plans, and is acquainted, thanks to its intelligent and sharp-sighted Administration, with all the machinations that go on in the world, knows that there exists in Spain heterogeneous elements of disorder, which conjointly plot to bring about one result. The men who were lately overthrown are ready to kindle the flame of anarchy, if, by its light, they are to be enabled, or think they will be able, to revenge themselves on the revolution, which put a stop to their embezzlement of the national wealth. The Carlists figure in the second line. It is positive that they are at work. Their chiefs have orders to support the demands of the Socialists, whose ranks are swollen by a phalanx of French and Italians now resident in the Peninsula. The Yankees form the reserve of this army of agitation. The intentions of these last are well enough known. The Anglo-American Minister in London gives passports to a great number of exaggerated Red Republicans, who proceed to Gibraltar and Cadiz as North American travelers. Money is not wanting, and it is known that a very important sum has been placed to the credit of a person who is to receive it from Gibraltar. The English Government also know that Carlist, Democratic and Polaco Clubs exist in Madrid, actively at work and sufficiently well organized not to have much fear of detection.

"Such are the elements that environ the situation which the events of July created in Spain. If the Government does not exercise the utmost vigilance—if its good counsels and its conduct do not enable it to triumph at the elections, thence obtaining a strong support and a sanction that will give it strength—if the Constituent Chamber do not contribute to the consolidation of the new order of things—believe me that the Peninsula has still to pass through new and difficult trials, and to find itself engaged in most serious conflicts, which may perhaps become complicated with the actual situation of Europe."

With reference to this letter, the Nacion publishes a leading article, in which it fully confirms its correspondent's statements, especially as regards clubs and conspiracies, and proceeds to say.

"Money is scattered in profusion, and at each moment, as if in obedience to a word of command, a thousand alarming rumors are spread abroad, with the object of keeping the public in a constant state of excitement, of producing weariness, and provoking the desired reaction."

This is the exact state of things in Madrid at present. Morning, noon, and night we have dinned into our ears some fresh falsehood. There is to be an insurrection, barricades—to-morrow night is the last date I have heard fixed for this event—or there are dissensions in the Ministry; and two or three of its members are about to resign, or the army is disaffected, and we are to have a military pronunciamiento in a reactionary sense. All these lies, devised by the mischievous and evil-disposed, are propagated by the credulous and idle persons who abound in Madrid. But I must extract one more paragraph from the article in the Nacion:

"The letter from London tells us that large sums are sent to the Peninsula, and we must add that the persons designated have as appointed to distribute them among the malcontents of all periods and Countries to the ex-French citizen, now Minister of the United States at our Court—Mr. Pierre Soulé. Nothing is further from our intention than to admit this accusation as certain, or even verisimilar; but it is publicly talked, and we hope that the said gentleman will hasten to deny the participation attributed to him in plans of which he is supposed to be the centre and chief instigator. Candor being our motto, we hope he will reply to us candidly, and that the Country, which has a right to know what is plotting against it, may not remain ignorant of that which should not be concealed from it. If Mr. SOULÉ understands our patriotism, he, who is the adopted son of a Country of publicity, will appear at the bar of public opinion to deny the charges made against him, repelling such imputations as calumnious; he will tell the Country, that he has not abused its confidence and doing him justice, will no longer harbor a suspicion, and tranquility will again reign. Mr. SOULÉ, a gentleman, and the representative of a proud and great people, cannot refuse an exigence which public vengeance and his own honor render imperative. Let us know who are the factious and who the loyal."

You will probably remark how closely the contents of the letter from London and the paragraphs of the article in the Nacion coincide with what I have lately written to you on the same subjects, and notably with passages in my letters of the 31st of August and 1st of September, relating to the conduct of the American Minister at this Court.

With respect to the clubs of conspirators referred to in the Nacion, I have ascertained that positive information has been obtained of the existence of three in this capital—two Carlist and one Democratic; but, since the revolution, there has been hardly any police here. That which exists is very inefficient, and the precautions taken by the secret societies in question have hitherto baffled detection. That the conspirators have money is perfectly true. There exists in the Bank of England, under the name of a person not likely to be suspected, a sum of money, of which the management is vested in three or four confidential and trustworthy agents of the Carlist cause. I am told that it was raised in Catalonia by CABRERA, who, when the war was over, paid it into the hands of the Carlist agents. There is reason to believe that this money has not been touched—at least, not for the furtherance of the manœuvres now in progress. I have not been able to ascertain whence the funds proceed that are now being employed. The Carlists here are believed to have exhausted their resources, and the money must therefore flow from a foreign source. The opinion of the Nacion evidently is that it comes from beyond the Atlantic; others are suggested that it might be a subsidy from the Emperor NICHOLAS, with whom it is known, as I mentioned in a former letter, that Carlist agents were lately in communication, and received from him promises of support. One way in which the cash in question, whencesoever it may come, is at present employed is in enlisting officers of the army for the service of Don CARLOS. Some of these officers formerly served in the Carlist ranks, but the enlistment is not confined to them. The way the agents proceed is this;—after sounding their man, and making pretty sure that he is disaffected or corruptible, they ask him if he is willing to serve Don CARLOS. If he accepts, they appoint him to his rank—captain or colonel, as it may be—an agreement is signed, with sans-de-guerre on both sides, and a month's pay is given to him, for which he is required to do nothing but wait for orders, and probably (fact of this I am not certain) to make proselytes, if he can. An officer who had entered into a contract of this description, but who, on reflection, repented the step, revealed the mode of proceeding; but, owing to the false signatures and the excellent precautions of the Carlists, his information has not led to discoveries of any importance.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Politics—The British Scientific Association—Lieut. Maury—Kossuth—Mr. Buchanan at Manchester.

Political news is again avoid.

The British Association for the advancement of science was yet in session at Liverpool, and attended by the usual corps of scientific men. The Association holds its meetings in the magnificent new office, St. George's Hall. Among the subjects brought before the Association, was Lieut. MAURY's improvements in navigation. On this subject the representatives of the Association had had interviews with the Board of Trade, and the British Government had organized a department, and voted £3,200 sterling for the collection of data. Captain FITZROY, placed at the head of the department, was busied in advancing the details; some ships will be supplied with instruments and documents in October, and it was hoped the department would be fully organized in the succeeding month.

KOSSUTH has informed the Committee who invited him to visit Newcastle, that he will await the result of the attack on Sebastopol before again addressing the public.

Mr. BUCHANAN has been staying a few days at Manchester on a private visit to Mr. STELL, of the firm of CRAFTS & STELL. There is talk of giving Mr. BUCHANAN a public dinner at Manchester.

A disgraceful outrage, having its origin in the wretched Irish-Catholic-against-Protestant feuds, has caused much indignation and horror. An excursion train, with 900 passengers, including most of the Protestant gentry of the county, had been on a visit from Enniskillen to Londonderry, and on returning at night the train was thrown off the track by huge blocks of stone placed so as to throw the cars over a precipitous embankment. Owing to the caution of Lord ENNISKILLEN, who placed himself on the engine with the driver, the train was proceeding at a very slow pace, otherwise the consequences must have been fearful. As it was, several persons were killed and wounded.

FRANCE.

The Camp—Russian Prisoners—Operations of French and American Ships in Chinese Seas.

The troops in camp at Honfleur are employed in constructing a road along the sands to the camp. It will, when completed, which will be soon, prove a great convenience. It has been decided to retain the four camps until Spring; then the troops will be sent to Russia, although persons do not hesitate to say that if Prussia continues to act doubtfully they will advance to the Rhine.

One thousand of the Russian prisoners taken at Bomarsund are now in confinement in the Island of Aix. Gen. BODISCO has taken up his residence at Evreux. A portion of the prisoners are to be employed in repairing the fortifications of Toulon.

The Minister of Marine had received accounts from the Rear-Admiral commanding the French naval division in the Chinese Seas. Dispatch is dated July 18. It mentions an attack by a united French, Portuguese and American force on sixteen piratical junks, two of which were taken and the rest dispersed.

ITALY.

Sardinia.

The questions at issue between the Prince of Monaco and the Sardinian Government have been mutually submitted to M. DROUYN DE LHUYS. The Prince wishes to retain possession of the town and port of Monaco, and proposes to cede to Sardinia the cities of Menton and Rochebrune, for a sum of 4,000,000 francs, or 200,000 francs annually. He requires, also, that the Sardinian garrison of Bonaco shall be replaced by French troops. The Sardinian Minister in Paris is not satisfied with these propositions. M. DROUYN DE LHUYS has not yet made known his decision.

SWEDEN.

The Swedish Government requires the Diet to vote additional supplies for the purpose of maintaining neutrality.

BELGIUM.

The Crisis over.

The Moniteur Belge announces the end of the Ministerial crisis, in these terms:

"The King presided yesterday, at the Council of Ministers; at the close of the meeting, the Ministers consented to withdraw their resignations."

The American Ship Alcotra.

COWES, Tuesday, Sept. 19, 1854.

This vessel arrived here on the 10th inst., having one of the crew (a Portuguese) in irons, for stabbing the chief mate, on the 15th of August, on the high sea, mid-voyage from Havana, the *mate dying on the same day. An extradition war*rant, under the Ashburton Treaty, was obtained from the Secretary of State, on a charge of murder, and the case was brought on here to-day before Capt. BERNERS. The facts proved were, that the prisoner threw his breakfast on the deck, and, on being desired by the deceased to clean it up, refused to do so. Some altercation and scuffling ensued, during which the prisoner drew his knife and stabbed the mate in the breast. The mate appears to have appealed to the Captain, who reprimanded the prisoner, and for sauciness struck him, making use also of some expressions in a general sense, which the crew, as also the magistrate, construed to have a particular bearing upon the case. More scuffling ensued between the mate and the prisoner, during which the latter again drew the knife and stabbed the mate on the right hip and in the left arm, from which the blood flowed profusely. The mate fainted, became insensible, and in seven or eight hours died. The magistrate having satisfied himself that this was not murder, declined the jurisdiction, not considering himself bound to go on with the case as one of manslaughter, which, under the general law of England, he might otherwise have done; and, consequently, the prisoner was discharged.

An American Lecturer in England.

On Wednesday, at the meeting of the Sheffield Town Council, Mr. IRONSIDE moved, "That the Council regrets to observe that the Borough Bench of Magistrates have attempted to put a stop to the free expression of opinion on speculative subjects, by refusing to grant a license to Mrs. SCOTT, of the Adelphi Theatre, on the ground that she had let the theatre for a series of lectures on the divine authority of the Bible." It appears that Mr. JOSEPH BARKER had lectured at the theatre some time ago, on the divine authority of the Bible, and when Mrs. SCOTT, the proprietress, applied to the magistrates for her license on the 30th ult., Alderman DUNN had blamed Mrs. SCOTT for letting the theatre to Mr. BARKER for the delivery of lectures against the Bible, remarking that they were calculated to injure the morals of the youth of the town. The application was adjourned for a fortnight. From this, Mr. IRONSIDE argued that it was clear the adjournment was because the theatre had been let for a "demoralizing purpose," as it was alleged, and that the magistrates might have time to consider the case. Mr. IRONSIDE's motion elicited a long and warm discussion, and was ultimately negatived by 23 to 4.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

London Markets.

Per Canada.] LONDON, Friday, Sept. 22—5 P. M.

There has been a general fairness in the Colonial and Foreign Produce markets, with the exception of Tea, holders, however, have but shown any disposition to yield in prices. MONEY is in good demand at 5@5½ best. CONSOLS leave off 95½@95¾. AMERICAN EAGLES 78s@

THE LORING TRAGEDY.

Trial of Robert H. Graham, M. D., for the Murder of Col. Charles Loring.

COURT OF OYER AND TERMINER.

FRIDAY, Oct. 6.

Before Hon. Judge Mitchell.

Reported Specially for the Daily Times, by Roberts and Warburton.

The Court sat at 10 o'clock, and jurors and counsel being punctually in attendance, the trial was proceeded with.

[In the report of Officer JOHNSON'S testimony, that part stating that Dr. Graham had told him, when arrested, that "what he had done was done in self-defence" was inadvertently omitted.]

Dr. Uhl—Called and cross-examined by Mr. Whiting.

Question—At what time of the day, Doctor, was the post mortem examination conducted?

Answer—At 11½ o'clock in the morning.

Q.—At the orifice of the wound where the instrument entered the body, what was its appearance? A.—It was a clean wound; the edges were not ragged or torn, presenting somewhat the appearance of an incised wound. It was exactly the shape of the sword which was shown to me at the time.

Q.—If the instrument had been turned in the body, would you have found the evidence of it at the orifice of the wound? A.—I should think it would; I should judge so; it was exactly the size and the shape of the sword.

Q.—From your examination of the wound, was there any evidence from the wound that the sword had been turned at all in the body? A.—There was not; I examined particularly with reference to that.

Q.—If the instrument had been twisted in the body after it had entered, would it not have left evident marks of it? A.—I should think it would; I should judge it would.

Q.—May not the point of the instrument have come in contact with the lung without giving it an incised wound, and have been lacerated, as you have described, by withdrawing the instrument? Q.—I think that the way the laceration was produced was by withdrawing the instrument.

A Juror—Put that question again.

Q.—May not the point of the instrument have come in contact with the lung, and caused a laceration by withdrawing it? A.—I think the laceration was produced by withdrawing the instrument.

Q.—I understood you that the instrument passed upwards and forwards? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—The instrument may, therefore, have passed in by the application of force in one direction, and it might have been drawn out by the application of force in a little different direction? A.—That is the case; I think that is the case; I think it was introduced in one direction and drawn out in another, in a different one from which it entered, and this produced the laceration.

Q.—You found sufficient in there to account for this laceration? A.—Yes.

Q.—The instrument, you say, passed upwards and forwards, and entered between the ninth and tenth ribs? A.—Yes.

Q.—Will you have the kindness to show us about how low the ninth and tenth ribs are?

(The position of the ribs was pointed out by the witness.)

Q.—That would be twelve inches below the middle of the shoulders? A.—Yes.

Q.—What is the whole number of ribs? A.—There are twelve ribs upon each side.

Q.—Will you then describe about the line upwards that the wound took?

Mr. O'Conor—The angle.

The Witness—About that angle. (Describing it.)

Mr. Whiting—I understand you, doctor, that the point of the instrument reached within four inches of the clavicle? A.—About that.

Q.—That describes the angle of the wound upwards? A.—That describes the angle of the wound upwards.

The Court—Describe what the clavicle is. A.—It is a small bone that goes from the shoulder to the sternum; it is a sort of lever to the arm; it is the first bone above the breast-bone.

Mr. O'Conor—It corresponds in back to the collar-bone in front? A.—It is the back part of the collar-bone; it is united to that and to the breast-bone.

Q.—Repeat that. A.—It is united at one point to the back bone, and at the other to the sternum or back-bone.

Mr. O'Conor—It corresponds in rear to the bone in front? A.—Yes.

A Juror—Is it a very prominent bone? A.—It is a very prominent bone.

A Juror—Can you feel it distinctly? A.—Yes, by putting your hand upon the bone of the neck.

A Juror—I understand the Doctor to say that the point of the instrument reached about four inches below that bone? A.—Below that line.

Mr. Whiting—Which clavicle did you refer to—the right or left? A.—The left clavicle.

Q.—Now, Doctor, this instrument seems to be bent. Will you state, in your own judgment, how that bend is to be accounted for, supposing it to be the instrument with which the wound was inflicted? A.—I think that the sword, as I have stated before, was introduced perpendicularly—upwards, or nearly so—and then this portion would come in contact with the bone of the chest, and the sword must consequently either bend or break. You could not get it out unless it were either bent or broken. Of course a portion of the lungs would be between the bones of the chest and the sword, and that would account for the laceration.

Q.—Drawing it would account not only for the laceration, but also for the bending of the instrument? A.—I think that was the way it was produced.

Q.—What was the size of Col. Loring? A.—He was a large man, full six feet, if not more, although I did not measure his height. Judging from appearances he was a very large and muscular man—a very powerful man.

Q.—About what weight? A.—As near as I can come at it, I think he weighed over 200 lbs. I am not in the habit of seeing persons weighed, and my judgment is not worth much.

Q.—To the best of your judgment he weighed over 200 lbs.? A.—I should judge so.

Q.—He was not a fat man, but bony and muscular? A.—Yes, he was bony and muscular—somewhat fleshy about the abdomen, but not much so for a man of his size.

Q.—About what depth of chest had he? A.—I did not measure it; I should think, however, he must have measured 45 inches round the lower portion of the chest.

Q.—Was the form of the chest round? A.—Large, round, and with a great deal of muscle—a broad chest.

Q.—About what age was he, do you think? A.—I should judge from 40 to 45 years of age.

Q.—From the course of that wound, could it have been inflicted by a man standing in front of him, and one foot or 18 inches off from him? A.—I do not think it could; I do not see how it could have been done—it would have been impossible.

Q.—Could that wound have been inflicted by a person standing from one foot to 18 inches in front from the deceased? A.—I do not think it could; I do not see how it could have been done.

Q.—Your answer before was that it was impossible? A.—I do not think that wound could have been produced in that place at a distance of 18 inches from the body.

Q.—If the parties stood in front of each other when the wound was inflicted, how close must they have been together? A.—They must have been very close together—right against one another—close together as they could be; he would have to reach his arm round to produce the stab, and he could not do it if he were not in contact.

Q.—Such a wound could be inflicted by a person in such close contact? A.—Yes, I think so.

Q.—Would it be scarcely in the range of possibility for a man to inflict such a wound, standing up from behind?

Mr. Shepard—That is a question which, of course, every man in this Court-room can judge as well of as the Doctor. It is a mere mechanical and not a medical question.

Mr. O'Conor thought the question might be waived, as all could judge of its impossibility, and none were likely to disagree about it.

Recommined by Mr. Shepard—Q.—Now, Doctor, I want to ask you whether this instrument could have been worked in that way (twisting his hand) without enlarging the orifice of the wound? A.—I do not think it could have been done without producing some marks on the external wound that would have been shown.

Q.—You do not think it could? A.—I do not think it could; I would state that when I came to make this examination I had heard that the sword had been turned in the body, and I was particular on that point.

Q.—I want to ask you how you account for a force being applied sufficiently strong to bend this instrument in this way without leaving any mark on the orifice of the wound? A.—I account for that easily, because, the sword could be pressed up against the lower portion of the ribs, and the long portion of the sword would be brought in contact with the front of the chest; it might be bent in that way more easily than in any other, and without a great deal of force.

Q.—What part of the front of the chest was this the sword brought in contact with, if you judge, from the form of the wound? A.—The lungs fill nearly the whole cavity of the side of the chest, and it was brought in contact with the front of the lungs and the bony portion of the chest—the lungs intervening.

Q.—Did the instrument, so far as you have discovered from the post mortem examination, strike any bone? A.—No, I did not discover that it struck any bone.

Q.—If it had struck a bone, in your opinion, would the point have been blunted? A.—That would depend altogether on the force with which it was done.

Q.—I think you said the lungs were spongy? A.—Spongy in texture.

Q.—How much force would it require, with an instrument of this kind, to lacerate the lungs as the lungs of Col. Loring were lacerated? It would require considerable force—a considerable amount. I cannot arrive at the precise amount it would require.

Q.—Do you think if while this instrument was in the body of Col. Loring, if it had been drawn up in that way, (jerking up his hand,) it would have produced such a laceration as you found? A.—I think it would—just such a laceration.

Q.—How far was the point of the instrument, as indicated by the point upon the section to the right and left, from the perpendicular line drawn through the wound? (referring to a diagram)—how far to the right or left did the blade pass? A.—It passed nearly upwards; if anything, a little to the right, but not much.

Q.—I understand upon this drawing you have made, you have given us the direction of the instrument on the section of a man, through the back and breast bone. Is that so? A.—That is what I intended.

Q.—Now I want the direction of the wound upon a section made the other way—straight down.

The witness drew the direction of the wound as required, stating that the laceration must have been three or four inches from the spinal column; the laceration was not very much below.

Q.—Now Doctor, in your judgment how was that instrument held? A.—If you will hand me the instrument I will tell you about that perhaps. (The sword was handed to the Doctor.) This part was up, (describing it.)

Q.—Was there anything in the wound which indicated to you the way in which Dr. Graham held the instrument in his hand? A.—I cannot say that; there was nothing in the wound to lead me to judge in regard to that.

Q.—If the instrument had been held in that way, do you mean to say that a person at a distance of twelve or eighteen inches from another, and standing by his side, a little facing him, could not have inflicted that wound? A.—I do not think he could; I do not think so.

Q.—Now, suppose the Doctor was somewhat shorter than Col. Loring, could he not more easily inflict the wound in that way (illustrating by standing a foot from witness, in a side direction, half facing him, and holding the sword to his back, pointing it upwards)? A.—If he were shorter, and stooping, he could more easily have inflicted the wound than if he were of the same size, standing up.

Q.—Then, if the parties had stood facing each other, and quartering, you think the matter might have been done by the instrument held as said? A.—I say as I said before; I do not think, considering the direction of the wound, that it could have been done at eighteen inches; I think in that case the sword would have been likely to have penetrated the aorta or large vessel, near the spinal column.

Q.—Supposing the parties stood a foot apart? A.—Then the wound could be more easily produced.

Q.—And suppose they had been standing a distance of from six to nine inches? A.—It would be more easily produced.

Q.—I ask you now at the distance of a foot could it be more easily produced? A.—I judge from the direction of the wound; I do not think the wound would have taken that direction; I think it would have taken a different direction inflicted at that distance; that is what I mean to say.

Q.—At a distance of from six to twelve inches? A.—I have just answered twelve inches; this is six. Q.—Well, six inches? A.—I think at that distance it might probably have been produced.

Q.—How far was the nearest portion of the wound from the left clavicle? A.—It must have been within an inch of it.

Q.—How long is the left clavicle? A.—That would depend in some measure upon the size of the heart.

Q.—In the case of Col. Loring how long was the left clavicle? A.—I cannot state how long it was, for I did not measure it.

Q.—I do not suppose you can state to a line, but I suppose you can very nearly. A.—Between three and four inches long.

Q.—Now, when you say the wound came within an inch of the left clavicle, what portion of the clavicle do you measure from? A.—I mean the left side of the clavicle—the left side of the heart.

Q.—Will you show me, upon my person, where the left side of the clavicle is?

[The learned Counsel subjected himself to the examination of the Doctor.]

Witness—Between the fifth and sixth ribs two and a half inches from the sternum.

Q.—Then the sword came within about an inch? A.—Yes.

Q.—Doctor, supposing that there was evidence of a positive character conflicting with your idea that the wound could not have been inflicted at the distance of eighteen inches, what would be the effect of that evidence to modify your judgment?

Mr. O'Conor—We object to that question.

Mr. Shepard—If it is objected to, I will not put it.

Mr. O'Conor—We object to it.

Mr. Shepard—Then I will withdraw it, for I will put no question to which objection can be taken.

A Juror—Could a person have drawn that instrument out, supposing it went into the line you have described in your post mortem examination, as the person was going from the one who made the thrust, stepping off, as it were—stepping from him, or he stepping backward from the person into whom he had thrust the weapon—could he have drawn it out with one jerk, or would it require more than one jerk to do so? A.—It would require more than one jerk; I think he had to jerk the instrument with some force to pull it out.

Q.—Could he have done it with one jerk of the hand? A.—I think not.

Q.—Could he do it with two jerks? A.—Yes; that is the idea I have formed.

Dr. Quackenboss called and sworn. Examined by Mr. Shepard:

Q.—Did you aid in making a post mortem examination on the body of Colonel Loring? A.—I did.

Q.—Describe the body. A.—We found a punctured and lacerated wound of the left lung, extending from behind, forward and upward; it was the inferior flap of the left lung which was wounded; the chest was filled with blood, and the wound between the ninth and tenth ribs behind, five inches left of the spinal column, twelve inches by measurement from the top of the shoulder.

Q.—What do you mean by the top of the shoulder? A.—The blade of the shoulder; the heart, arteries, and veins were not injured.

Q.—What was the extent of the laceration? A.—The laceration extended nine inches in one way, and about three in another.

Q.—At what point of the wound was the laceration about three inches in extent—that is, measuring from the orifice to its extreme depth? A.—At the lower point the laceration was less, because there was less lung there.

Q.—What do you mean by the lower point? For the sake of distinctness let me say this: We will call, for the sake of being definite, the orifice of the wound the lower point of the wound, and the end, measuring longways, the upper part of the wound. Now, then, at what point of the wound was the laceration greatest? A.—The lung appeared to have been pierced and cut down; it was at the upper portion of the wound that the lung was penetrated; the instrument first entered the lung above.

Q.—Did the instrument pass quite though the lung? A.—It did; it seemed to have penetrated about 8 or 9 inches.

Q.—How far from the orifice of the wound was the lung where entered? A.—It was immediately close to the orifice.

Q.—The laceration of three inches in extent was in the lower part of the wound? A.—Yes.

Q.—What produced the laceration? A.—That instrument.

Q.—Could the laceration have been produced by a straight puncture and straight withdrawal of the instrument? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—How then did it happen? A.—I cannot answer certainly; it may have happened by Col. Loring turning, or by the party falling.

Q.—Assuming that the party stood still, how might it have happened? A.—By pulling out the instrument in a direct line, instead of upwards; in drawing out the instrument, the point may have produced laceration; the lung is a spongy material, and would tear very differently from other parts of the organization.

Q.—Did the instrument touch any vital part beyond the lung? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—If the instrument had been drawn out straight, and not moved in the wound, either by motion of the party stabbed or of the party stabbing, what in your judgment would have been the probability of recovery of the person stabbed? A.—His chances of recovery would have been much greater.

Cross-examined by Mr. O'Conor.—Q.—How long have you been in practice in this City? A.—Since 1839; I am a native of New-York, and have been brought up to the medical profession.

Q.—Have you had very extensive opportunities of observing cases of stabs and wounds that have been the subject of judicial examination? A.—I have seen a good many examinations; I have been frequently called to testify to injuries.

Q.—If that sword had been turned or twisted in the body of Col. Loring, by the hand of the defendant, would you or not have seen in the orifice some traces of that act? A.—You mean the external orifice or the skin?

Q.—Yes. A.—The external orifice was a smooth and even puncture, no larger than the size of that instrument.

Q.—In your judgment, as a medical man, would that have been the character of the puncture in case the instrument had been turned or twisted, or moved upwards and downwards, or sideways, while it was in the body? A.—I should say, Sir, that very great violence used would have made a different wound externally.

Q.—Having examined the character of the wound, externally and internally, and noted the extent and character of the laceration, I would ask you, if the sword was straight when inserted, to what, in your judgment, is the present bent condition of it to be imputed?

Mr. Shepard—That is purely a mechanical question, but I have no objection to it, provided the Jury know that they have the same liberty to form an opinion.

A.—I would say that inserting the sword in the body of a man, by the man turning, it might cause the instrument to be bent; but in that case they must have been both muscular men; by the wounded man falling or lagging down, the rib catching the sword, it might be bent; these are likely ways to account for it.

Q.—In the second way named by you, the person holding the sword should continue to hold it firmly? A.—Yes.

Q.—Would not any change in the position of the parties account for the sword being drawn out in a different direction from that in which it was inserted? A.—The latter, I think.

Q.—Could you say whether the force causing the operation was applied upwards or downwards? A.—The laceration was such as to be caused, I think, in the act of drawing out the instrument; I looked particularly at the time, and I think it was caused in withdrawing the instrument.

Q.—In respect to size, weight, and strength, what was the appearance of Col. Loring?

A.—He measured six feet two inches; he was remarkable for fine muscular development; his weight was, I think, at least 230 lbs.; he was not over fat; the muscles of his chest and arms were wonderfully developed; he was not too fat to interfere with his activity, or muscular power.

Witness was shown the course of the wound, as described on paper by Dr. Uhl, and asked if that corresponded with his recollection? A.—The wound was upward and forwards.

Q.—How near a perpendicular? Witness described the direction of the wound to be at an angle, upwards and forwards, of about 45 degrees; The wound inclined slightly towards the chest-bone.

Q.—Have you remarked Dr. Graham's figure? A.—Yes.

Q.—If Dr. Graham had been standing in front of Major Loring at a distance of 12 inches, could he have inflicted that wound? A.—I do not think he could have reached around so large a person as Major Loring at that distance, to have inflicted the wound.

Q.—Taking into consideration the extent and direction of the wound, what would you understand to be the position of the parties at the time? A.—Col. Loring may have been standing with his back directly in front of Dr. Graham; or they may have been standing nearly side by side, very close to each other, say a foot or a foot and a half apart; I cannot place them in any other position.

Q.—Is not the direction of the wound very unlike one that would have been inflicted if Colonel Loring's back were towards Dr. Graham? A.—If Dr. Graham were a step or two below him on the stairs, it would be likely.

Q.—But suppose them on a level? A.—I do not know why the sword should take an upward turn.

Q.—Is there any position likely in which, during a conversation between them, the wound might be given? A.—If Col. Loring were turned a little round.

Q.—How about the upward direction? A.—That I never could account for, as I saw no sign of the blade glancing off the rib.

Q.—Supposing the hands of Col. Loring were over the shoulders of Dr. Graham, and a close scuffle were going on between the parties, how then could the wound have been occasioned? Might it have been occasioned by Dr. Graham's arms being thrown round the body of Col. Loring? A.—It might be so.

Q.—Does not that account for the upward direction of the wound—Dr. Graham being pressed down by Col. Loring? A.—I should say it could easily be accounted for in that manner—Dr. Graham being pressed down, and rising with the instrument.

By a Juror—If there had been no laceration, would there have been a probability of recovery? A.—I should say that his chance of recovery would have been very small. Falling upon his face tended to promote death. If the body had been turned over it would have made no difference in this case. If the orifice had been larger, so as to let out the blood, the chance of recovery would be greater.

By Mr. Shepard—Could the bending of the instrument have been produced by violently drawing it out upwards? A.—Yes, the point of the blade catching on a rib.

By a Juror—Could the weapon have been drawn out in any other way than horizontally, if the deceased turned? A.—If the party staggered or turned suddenly, and the point of the weapon were caught between the ribs, the handle being held firmly by Dr. Graham, it would cause the blade to be bent.

Dr. Randolph sworn: examined by Mr. Shepard—I was present at the examination of the body of Col. Loring; the wound entered between the ninth and tenth ribs from behind, and went in a direction forward and upwards at an angle thus, (illustrating) an angle of about 45 degrees; great motion might be given to the instrument without showing it on the lungs, they being of a spongy nature.

Q.—How near to the breast-bone did the point of the instrument come? A.—The instrument traversed diagonally, within the cavity of the chest, within two or three inches of the breast-bone.

Q.—Was the stab a perpendicular, or at what angle? A.—The stab appeared to be at an angle of about 45 degrees.

Q.—What was the direction of the stab from the orifice, to the right or the left? A.—The stab appeared upwards, towards the collar-bone of the right side.

Q.—Assuming that this instrument was bent in the body, what in your judgment was the mode in which it was bent? A.—I do not think it could have been bent in any other way than by the action of the person inflicting the wound; the hilt of the instrument must have rested on one of the ribs, and he must have got a pry on some bony structure within to bend the instrument in that manner.

By Mr. O'Conor—Did you assist in the examination, or only stand by? A.—I only stood by, and may have assisted in sponging the chest.

[The Court here took a recess for 20 minutes.]

Mrs. Cornelia Loring recalled and examined by the District Attorney.

Q.—Mrs. Loring, after the first ringing of the bell of which you spoke, and your husband had gone to the door, what did your husband say? A.—"Ah, Sir, is it you?" The man said he had been ringing the bell in his room for two hours, and could not get a servant. My husband said "I scarcely think you will get one at so early an hour."

Q.—What then took place? A.—Nothing further occurred then. He went to the watch and found it was precisely ten minutes past five.

Q.—What then did Col. Loring do? A.—He came back to bed.

Q.—What next occurred? A.—After being in bed a few minutes the bell rang violently; my husband went to the door and said, "You will oblige me, Sir, by not ringing the bell so loudly, as my wife is quite sick;" the man replied that he had been ringing his bell two hours and could not get an answer, and that he rang that bell to get a servant; my husband then remarked that that bell called the maid of that hall only; the man said he would have the maid or any one who answered to that bell; my husband remarked that if he wanted to see the maid he had better go into his room and put on his pants, as he was not in a fit condition to see the maid or the man either.

Q.—What next took place? A.—The man said he did not care a d——n for the maid, or any woman in the house; that he would dress as he d——d pleased; the man then remarked that "he would break his head—he would cut out his heart when he did come."

Mr. Shepard here took his position near the witness, which was objected to by Mr. O'Conor. Mr. Shepard said he saw no impropriety in the position, and would retain it.

Q.—What next took place? A.—There was some remark then which I did not hear, and to which my husband answered—"Do not repeat those words, Sir, or I will smash your head;" my husband then closed the door, and came immediately into bed; he had scarcely lain down when the bell rung again.

Q.—How long was it rung? A.—Thirty times; it struck deliberately thirty times; I counted them; my husband then got up, put on his pants, and slipping one arm into his coat, went to the door; when going across the hill of the door he said, "I'll see if I cannot find a servant," and at the same time putting his hand back to me, he said "Go back, child, don't fear."

Q.—What next took place? A.—Going out of the door he walked down the hall; looking out, I saw a man near the bell, with no clothes but his shirt on; my husband went down the hall in the direction of Broadway; the man in his shirt went down the hall in the direction of Mercer-street; he had not gone more than five or six steps from the bell when I first saw him; when the bell was first rung, it was rung very rapidly for 15 or 20 times.

Q.—Did you hear the man in his shirt say anything as he went down the hall toward Mercer-street? A.—He said, "I'll be d——d if ——; I heard nothing more of the sentence.

Q.—Had Major Loring any weapons? A.—None with him; in his room he had a loaded pistol and two canes; he always traited with a cane; he took no cane out of the room with him that morning; they were not sword-canes.

Q.—What was the height of the man you saw in his shirt? A.—I did not take sufficient notice to say.

Q.—Had Major Loring any neckhandkerchief on that morning. A.—No, Sir, nor any vest; he had slippers on his feet.

Cross-examined by Mr. O'Conor—Was this loaded pistol a single or double-barrel? A.—It was a Colt's revolver—a six-shooter.

Q.—What was Col. Loring's age? A.—He would be 48 on the 4th of this month; he had resided four years in California; his native place was Wilmington, N. C.

Q.—Madam, you have stated that the man who had been ringing the bell said he did not care a d——n for the maid or any woman in the house—he would dress as he d——d pleased; did he say anything more before the observation from your husband? State what that was. A.—A great many oaths and swearing; he then said, "He would smash his head—he would cut his heart out;" that I distinctly heard.

Q.—Give the words as the man used them. A.—"He'd smash his head—he'd cut his heart out."

Q.—Are those the very words the man used? A.—Using oaths with them—"He'd be d——d if he would not smash his head—he'd cut his heart out."

Q.—Did he use the use the word "he" or "I?" A.—He used the word "I."

Q.—Now please to repeat the precise words, in the language he gave them in. A.—"I'll be d——d if I don't smash his head—I'll cut his heart out."

Q.—Are they the precise words the man used? A.—They are.

Q.—Madam, were all the barrels of the pistol loaded? A.—Yes; it was lying in the pistol case, on the bureau.

A Juror wished to know what the threats alluded to.

Mr. O'Conor said that would be a question for them to decide. The witness could only give evidence as to the language used.

Mr. Shepard—Q.—Do you know where Col. Loring got that pistol? A.—Yes; he got it in California, from a cousin of mine; he had been in town from California only three days.

Mr. O'Conor said that it was agreed to by the District Attorney that the testimony of Mrs. Loring before the Coroner should be read to the Jury, to save lengthening the examination now.

The District Attorney said that the case for the prosecution here closed.

Mr. O'Conor said it was always usual in cases like the present—and it was proper—that the public prosecutor should produce all the witnesses who were present at the transaction, and whose names were on the indictment. In his opening, he had stated some remarks made by Col. Loring to a person below stairs, a few minutes before his death, threatening the accused. Having alluded to this in his opening, it was his duty to produce the witness. It would, he thought, be like a high misdemeanor for the District Attorney to make any statement in his opening which he did not produce a witness to prove.

Mr. Shepard replied that, in old times, when the prisoner was not allowed counsel, there was a rule obliging the public prosecutor to produce all witnesses. But then the public prosecutor was supposed to be counsel for the defence also. Now the prisoner was represented by able counsel, who conducted his case, and it was in their power to produce any witnesses whose evidence they considered would be favorable to the prisoner.

Mr. O'Conor cited some recent decisions in the Nisi Prius Courts of England, where the rule required the public prosecutor to produce all witnesses whose names were on the back of the indictment.

Mr. Shepard said, that undoubtedly the English rule obliged the District Attorney to produce all witnesses entered on the back of the indictment, but such was not the American law, and the matter was one within his discretion. He could not be called upon to produce witnesses whom he considered mistaken.

His Honor reserved his decision on the question until morning.

The District Attorney (seeing Mr. Wilson, book-keeper at the St. Nicholas, in Court,) said that he had no objection to put him upon the stand, but his objection would remain against bringing forward John Conahan.

Wm. B. Wilson, sworn: Examined by Mr. Shepard—On the 2d of August last I was book-keeper at the St. Nicholas Hotel; I saw Dr. Graham on that morning, about 5½ o'clock; he was coming down the main staircase from the first landing; he had a sword-cane in his hand, (identified the one produced;) he had only the blade in his hand; he stepped aside from the foot of the stairs a step or two, and threw the sword into a closet at the right; I had heard a noise previously; when I heard the noise I was at the book-keeper's desk, inside of a counter in the office; when I met Dr. Graham, I was about ascending the stairs; upon meeting the Doctor I asked what had occurred—what was the matter; he replied, he did not know.

Q.—Did he say anything else. A.—He said he had been struck or knocked down (I don't recollect the exact words, but I think they were "knocked down") by a man, and he had stabbed him, he believed.

Q.—What happened then? A.—He threw the cane into the pantry, which is about eight feet from the stairs; he then took my arm and walked along the passage towards Mercer-street, towards the bar-room; I said to him, "Doctor, you should never drink." He said, "I am not drunk; but for that d——d bell this would have never occurred;" he then went into one of the water-closets and remained there for a few minutes; he then came out, and we went together to the bar-room and drank some lie-water or Congress-water, or both; he then said he wanted to see his wife, and wanted to go up stairs for the purpose; this I thought imprudent, under the circumstances, and objected to; he then asked me to see his wife, tell her of the difficulty and send for Randall Hunt, as he wanted to see him before he left the hotel; I then left him in charge of a police officer, and went up stairs and saw his wife.

Q.—What further did Dr. Graham do? A.—I had no further conversation with him, and did not see him after he left the hotel until I saw him in Court.

Q.—Do you know anything about the bell in the corridor opposite room No. 35? A.—I did not then, Sir.

Cross-examined by Mr. Whiting—Dr. Graham and his wife had arrived at the hotel the day previous; Col. Loring and his wife had arrived about a week or ten days previous; had not known Col. Loring before he came to the hotel; I had seen Col. Loring that morning before I saw Dr. Graham; about three minutes before; he came to my desk at the outside of the counter; after he left me he went up the stairs.

Q.—As he left you, or about the time, did he make any threat against any one, and if so, what was it?

Mr. Shepard objected to the question as leading.

Question allowed.

A.—He said that if I, or we, did not take Dr. Graham away, or the person we spoke of, he would shoot him dead at his door.

Q.—In what tone of voice was that said? A.—He was excited and angry, and spoke in a boisterous voice.

Q.—Was his voice naturally loud? A.—His voice was full toned.

Q.—Was there any swearing in connection with the threat? A.—He said he'd be d——d if he would not shoot him at the door.

Q.—When he left you, did he go away rapidly? A.—That I cannot say.

Mr. Shepard—State all the conversation between you and Col. Loring. A.—When he came down first, he asked who it was that was ringing or banging at a bell before his door; I then asked him what was the number of his room, or where he was situated; and, reflecting a moment, I came to the conclusion that it must be Dr. Graham; I then stated that I knew the gentleman—and knew him to be a gentleman—and endeavored to excuse him, adding that I would go up and see him, and remove the difficulty; he then replied, "Well, Sir, you must take him away or I'll shoot him dead at the door—I'll be d——d if I don't;" he then left me.

Q.—How soon after did you hear the noise? A.—About half a minute.

Q.—How far is the book-keeper's room from the staircase? A.—About 45 feet from the foot of the stairs.

Q.—Do you think the conversation you mentioned could have been heard by a person walking in the hall above? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—But, standing at the head of the stairs, on the second floor, could it be heard? A.—I heard the noise of the quarrel above at that distance, when below, but could not say if any one above could have heard our conversation; a person at the head of the stairs would have likely heard it, but could not say if he could distinguish the words.

To a Juror—The Major spoke in a tone much louder than ordinary conversation; he was facing me, in the act of turning away, his right side towards the stairs.

To Mr. Whiting—(Looking at the diagram)—The distance of the place from where Col. Loring stood to the foot of the stairs must have been more than thirty-six feet; I have paced it, and it is fourteen or fifteen paces; the pitcher room indicated on the diagram is that where Dr. Graham threw the sword-cane; I was with him at the time, and saw him throw it in; I could at the time have put my hand on his shoulder.

Q.—Did he go into the room and kick anything over it? A.—Not that I saw.

Q.—Could he do it without your seeing it? A.—I should think not; there was no attempt at concealment.

Q.—What was the rubbish there? A.—It was the sweepings of the hall which is left there in the morning.

Mr. Shepard—Did you notice any motion of his foot after throwing it in there? A.—I did not, Sir.

To Mr. Whiting—It was after I had addressed him the first question, and after he had answered it, that Dr. Graham threw the cane in; it was after he told me that the man had knocked him down, and that he had stabbed him.

THE DEFENCE.

Mr. A. O. Hall opened the case for the defence, as follows:

Mr. Foreman and Gentlemen of the Jury: The responsibility of appearing in a capital case of this kind, whether for the prosecution or the defence, is a duty neither to be coverted nor to be shunned. I say neither for the prosecution nor for the defence. We are here in the investigation of truth—the illustration and not the elimination of truth. One spirit actuates both the prosecution (as we feel here to-day it does) and the defence, and that feeling is in the words I have just used—the illustration of truth, and not its elimination. In that spirit we are bound to concede that the prosecution have so far conducted their case and unfolded their theory; and you, gentlemen of the jury, need not be assured, as you must have already been it indicated by the progress of the evidence in this case, that the same course of duty and the same feeling has actuated the counsel for the defence. I myself, being a very humble party in this investigation, gentlemen, have felt very much the responsibility, slight as mine may be. The responsibility of any counsel is great, and how much greater that of yours, to which I may come presently to advert; and the very discussion which we have just had this afternoon, in regard to the practice of prosecution or of defence, in regard to certain matters affecting the life or death of those who are arraigned in Court, suggests to my mind a gleaming back to the history of cases of this kind, whether capital or otherwise, not many years ago; for it is not many years ago when a prisoner stood in Court without counsel, and more than that, he could not have his counsel; while, at the same time, the crown (as it was called in those days,) was represented by the most eloquent advocates in the world. The crown had every opportunity afforded itself of preparation—it had every incentive toward prosecution. In those days, thank God! it is not so. Now, no prosecution becomes a persecution. There was a time when there could have arisen no dispute whether the defence were entitled to have the names of the witnesses given to them, or when the proofs of the witnesses were given to them, whether they should be called, because there was a positive prohibition; and the defendant came into court very often upon the day succeeding the crime for which he was arraigned, and was studiously kept in ignorance of the witnesses, however important they might be, until then came upon the stand. Times have changed, and, with other things, so in that. Time ameliorated the hard rules of policy and justice, and the prisoner was allowed to know, a certain time before his trial, the names of the witnesses who would be called against him, and he was allowed to have counsel to stand beside and advise him, but not to open his mouth against the eloquence of the District Attorney or of the Attorney-General for the Crown, as he was called in those days. The prisoner might say what he pleased. Time went on, and the rule was still more ameliorated, and by the side of the prisoner counsel might stand and argue the questions of law which might be presented in the case, but he could not sum up the facts and present them to the Jury. Finally, however, as it is now, the counsel took the place of the client in every respect. He was allowed to stand into the dock of the client, as an honorable man might. He was, in every respect, the mouth-piece of his client. It was his duty to stand in the place of his client, as an honorable man might, and speak for his client.

In that spirit, gentlemen, I have come before you to-day. It is a pleasure, I have no doubt, for Dr. Graham, so far as I am concerned, to know that the heart of his friend prompts, to-day, and at all times, to utterance that which the head of the advocate may have conceived. For very agitating thoughts have passed through my mind's eye during the time I have stood here in the progress of this cause, and I should depart from the record if I allowed myself to recur to the thoughts which those agitations have made. Shall I go back to the time when I knew Robert M. Graham, not as now, a alleged malefactor, but as you have heard from one of the witnesses for the prosecution to-day—a gentleman in every respect? As I stand here to-day I remember him as a man of high chivalrous bearing—the resident of a distant State; and he thinks with me at this time of that far distant home. And I trust, gentlemen, that, so far as the justice of this case will allow you, you will do well to think of his position; for, as upon the one hand, the Jury are rightfully to be appealed to, by the sympathy which has been exhibited, (and most natural and creditable they were to every instinct of the human heart,) so you will remember that the living—that the living, gentlemen—have those same instincts of affection to remember and to preserve. And as I look forward to that distant city, I know far beyond the confines of this Court-room, and those who are within hearing of my humble voice, that there are are not only hundreds but thousands watching day by day the deliberation of this case—watching day by day the unfolding of evidence that comes from the learned prosecutor—watching the path the defence will take in the case—and they will watch your deliberations with the same anxiety. Perhaps it is wrong I should refer to these things. Perhaps it was rather a part of prudence that I should not allude to them. But, gentlemen, we are not only judges, we are not only counsel; we are not only jurors—we are men. We have not only brains and mind to hear and sift evidence, but we have hearts to feel, and the heart and the head should always go together when they can. I remember some particularly, among these, the watchers of these deliberations, and I might, if I chose, individualize them, but I will not trust myself to that; and I could not help thinking when that stricken widow upon the stand—(with her, as you all saw, we sympathized deeply, at the same time that we gave our respect and attention to the living,)—when she went upon that stand in weeds of woe and told her story, what she could tell of the events of that morning, which are of graver importance to be determined hereafter, I could not help remembering that there was one who sat behind me and shared in all the feelings that she could have, but whose mouth, by the inexorable rules of law, was closed. We do not complain of the rule of law—we do not arraign the rule of law. We bow to and respect the law. We know that it has hardships, and one of these hardships certainly is that perhaps the only mouth in the world that could unravel the direful mystery of that morning, and could give to you the key to this whole transaction, by that irreconcilable rule of law is closed, so far as this case is concerned, for ever. As counsel in this case, as the evidence progresses word by word, through the mouths of the witnesses, I cannot describe, although I may feel, the anxiety of removing from the mind by myself or the counsel associated with me, the clouds of prejudice which settled upon this case, and which had shadowed many of the Jurors who had come up here to be sworn, and whom we were compelled against our own feelings to turn away. But those clouds which have shadowed so much prejudice have passed away. The sunshine is breaking—that sunshine which it is to be hoped will deepen as this case now proceeds—will deepen (if I may be allowed the expression) in brilliancy, until my client, represented hereto-day, underneath that sunshine shall walk forth to the brighter sunshine of liberty, under your favor and your justice.

Oh! the privilege of cross-examination! I never have respected it so much as within the last three or four days. In yonder hotel this direful tragedy—this calamity, which my client to-day regrets as much as any man, and would give his heart's best blood if he could bring that man back to life who in that moment of misadventure lost it; and as I remember that Coroner's Inquest—the witnesses, honest, no doubt, but excited—(and there is the danger in all immediate investigations upon calamities of this kind, bringing to mind the strong points of the affair against the accused, while those in his favor are not allowed to appear)—as I saw those matters of prejudice—as we all saw them rolling away—it increased my respect for the right of cross-examination. And as you are sworn in that box, before that anxiety was removed, you might, perhaps, have shared in it. As each juror rose in his place, and the prisoner rose in his place, and the words were spoken through the lips of the Clerk, "Juror, look upon the prisoner—prisoner look upon the Juror," and the oath was administered, more than one of us thought of the olden time when the Crier came in with his prayer—which may yet be breathed in secret, and should be breathed in secret in every investigation of this kind—as he, too, looked upon the prisoner, "God send you a safe deliverance!

The duty of opening a case, gentlemen, is one of the most difficult that can be assigned to counsel. There is so much to avoid in encroaching upon the time of the Jury and upon the time of the Court. It is rather the preface to the volume of the testimony which may be taken, as the summing up may possibly be a criticism. As a preface it should be terse. It should be terse, and should be to the point. Therefore, I now desire to bring to your minds, as we proceed with this case, the circumstances under which we stand—the circumstances under which we are to proceed, and to shadow forth to you, gentlemen, to skeletonize, so to speak, the evidence which shall be fully given and developed to you hereafter by more competent and skillful hands than mine; and I am doubly reminded of the delicacy of the opening of the case, when I refer to the opening of the learned District Attorney, and find so much in it different from the evidence. It is so easy, with the kindest motives in the world—it is so easy with the kindest amount of human charity (which does, I know, belong to my friend upon the other side)—to color this matter. Yet while upon the one hand we claim that it does in the eye of the law bear against the prosecution, we do not propose to over color the testimony for the defence. It is ten times worse, for it would bear against the prisoner. I might, if I chose, allude to several matters in the learned

New-York Daily Times.

NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, OCT. 7, 1854.

The Times for the Mails.

The DAILY TIMES (Morning and Evening) is issued every day except Sundays, and sent to subscribers by mail in any part of the country at SIX DOLLARS per annum.

The SEMI-WEEKLY TIMES is published on Tuesday and Friday of each week, containing all the reading matter of the Daily, and is sent to subscribers at THREE DOLLARS per annum.

The WEEKLY TIMES contains a selection from the reading matter of the Daily, and is sent to mail subscribers at TWO DOLLARS per annum. TEN copies will be sent for FIFTEEN Dollars.

Payment in all cases must be made in advance.

Another Ticket.

The Order of Know-Nothings closed the session of its Grand State Council yesterday. A complete State Ticket was put in nomination, made up as follows:

Governor—DANIEL ULLMANN.
Lieutenant Governor—G. A. S. SCROGGS.
Canal Commissioner—JOSIAH B. WILLIAMS.
State Prison Inspector—JAMES P. SAUNDERS.

The Convention is to be congratulated on the successful close of its labors. Fears were at one time entertained, according to outside rumor—which, of course, is all the authority of which the nature of the case admits—that the Convention would break up in confusion. A large majority of the Delegates, however, having taken their departure, the business was fully completed by those who remained. The ticket was nominated and an address to the subordinate councils was ordered to be prepared. All these proceedings, of course, are to be kept profoundly secret. No one outside the organization will know anything of the arrangement, nor will the names of the candidates to be supported by the Order be allowed to transpire until after they have been counted at the polls. The profound secrecy of their operations is considered the main element of their success; and no pains will be spared to preserve it inviolate.

The Foreign News.

The Canada's arrival off Sandy Hook at 3 o'clock yesterday, was announced in our Morning Edition; and if her officers had seconded the earnest and expensive efforts of the City Press, we should have published an outline of her news at the same time. We give this morning a full summary of the intelligence, with copious and interesting extracts from our foreign files.

Concerning the Arctic we have no information by this arrival, except that she sailed on her regular day with over 200 passengers, whose names will be found in another column. She has probably been disabled at sea, by some accident to her machinery. No fears for her safety are as yet entertained.

Another step in advance has been taken in the Eastern war. A large detachment of the allied force, amounting to 75,000 men, has actually been landed in the Crimea, and is expected to proceed to the investment of Sebastopol. The English papers exult over the landing, in which no enemy met even the sight, as loudly as if the Crimea had actually been conquered. Grave doubts are nevertheless expressed in various quarters, that the reduction of Sebastopol will be found impossible this season.

A Constantinople correspondent of the London Times intimates that negotiations for peace may soon be resumed, and earnestly insists that they shall not be carried on at the Turkish Capital. We see no intimation of a willingness on the part of the Czar to treat on any basis which the allies have deemed acceptable hitherto:—but we have no doubt that strenuous efforts will be made by all the Western powers this Winter to prevent a renewal of the war in the Spring. If they can reduce and hold Sebastopol, they will consider that an excellent position from which peace proposals can be invited.

In Spain the public mind is still disturbed by rumors of attempted and intended revolutions. A Madrid letter in the Times asserts that large sums of money are disbursed to foment insurrections there, and that Mr. SOULE is believed to be the disbursing agent. The remarks of our London correspondent on this point, as well as several others, will be found worthy of perusal.

Senator Douglas and his New Organ.

We have heard GARIBALDI, than whom they said there was no greater singer. Our soul is so far satisfied. Thousands of us have looked on a State Fair this week, who never before saw such a gathering of fat cattle, or any sort of a State Fair before. And our visual organs are comforted. We have eaten a cheap pudding, prepared by the great SOYER's recipe, which shamed the most costly of puddings as they come from the hands of the old culinary professors. Our appetite is sated. But we have another desire, which must be gratified before we consent to say "Now let us die, being satisfied." We want to see Senator DOUGLAS' new organ, the Chicago Times. Strange rumors are current of its contents. It is said to give fits to some of the Anti-Nebraska candidates for office, on the ground of a sufficient lack of hostility to the extension of Slavery; that it asserts of the Nebraska-Democratic candidates, that they are all personally opposed to Slavery; that "were the question of its existence or suppression a question which, under the Constitution of their country, they had a right to decide, they would cheerfully decide to set the captives free."

That no mistake is made here, appears evident, from the fact that the Washington Union notes and apologizes for these Abolition sentiments. But we should think they meant no more than do the protestations of Mr. SEYMOUR's friends, when they preface a statement as to their intentions on Election day with the assurance that they are "as much for temperance as anybody," were it not that it has been openly asserted that there are some 200 "captives," more or less, in North Carolina and Mississippi, whom Senator DOUGLAS is perfectly at liberty to set free at any hour. One of our evening cotemporaries attempts mischievously to arouse the suspicions of the South against the great Original Jacobs of the Nebraska policy, pointing to his organic utterances through the Chicago Times for proof. But if this statement of Mr. DOUGLAS' wealth in slave property is truth, and no fiction, there is no sort of danger but that he will prove faithful enough to the South, and faithless as ever to his constituency. His organ, the South may be satisfied, like the boy's whistle in school, "toots itself" without any of his aid. The Cleveland (Ohio) Leader gives an exposition of Mr. DOUGLAS' relation to the Slavery question, which we published yesterday, from which it appears that Mr. DOUGLAS is the virtual proprietor of about 200 negroes in the State of Mississippi, who came into his possession through his marriage in North Carolina.

There are, therefore, 200 sound and able-bodied reasons for believing that the Senator is quite safe on the Slavery question, in spite of the asseverations of any organ to the contrary. Still we should like to see the Times and hear the tunes it grinds out, for ourselves. It is possible that New-York is not to be permitted to monopolize all the fun at the Fall Elections.

A New Work on the Constitution of the United States.

For some time past, it has been understood, that a distinguished citizen of New-England has been engaged in the elaborate preparation of a work on the Origin, Formation and Adoption of the Constitution of the United States. At the proper period, we shall give our views in full of this important contribution to our permanent literature. As it is nearly ready to appear, the public mind of the country, and especially its philosophic intellect, will soon have an opportunity of forming an estimate of its merits. Meanwhile it may be said, that its publication at this juncture is not only fortunate but highly desirable. None can doubt, that a reliable book on this subject—one of thorough historic analysis, lucid argument, methodical arrangement and collateral illustrations—is greatly needed. We have had no special work on this branch of our political science. Historical sketches, essays, reports of debates, and other matters of interest in connection with the Constitution, have been multiplied. But such a volume as is wanted to cover the whole ground and to take its place among the acknowledged authorities of political wisdom, yet remains a desideratum. How far the forthcoming history will meet this demand time only can determine. Every book is an experiment; but we are warranted in believing that the present work, the fruit of ripe scholarship, patient industry and fine abilities, will be heartily welcomed to a position of commanding influence.

The theme itself, appealing to our national intelligence no less than to our national pride, is certainly worthy of the best effort that can be made. It is known that Mr. WEBSTER, for some time before his death, contemplated such an undertaking. Familiar as he was with the structure of the Constitution, and accustomed to trace the history of every great principle standing out in its provisions; educated besides in its practical working for forty years; he was eminently fitted both by his prodigious powers and ripe experience to leave his permanent impress on it. But death denied him the opportunity to execute his favorite project. The author of the present work seems to be fully aware of the greatness of the task, and we cannot but think that the reverential spirit in which he has pursued it has gone far towards placing his mind in the most suitable position to appreciate the points that came up for discussion. Of one thing we are sure, and that is, the History has a genuine American heart in it. Our literature needs this just as much as our statesmanship. It is quite as important to the writer as to the actor—to the philosopher in his study as to the general on the battle-field. Our own men, born and reared among the institutions of freedom; to whom the great sentiments of the country are impulses rather than logical ideas, and whose throbbing blood leaps to the sublime inspiration of its future hopes; such men must give life and form to American Philosophy. The valuable histories by GRAHAME and BOTTA, remarkable as they are in many respects, are the productions of foreigners. We have learned much from GUIZOT and DE TOCQUEVILLE. But after all, the field remains to our native intellects. The genius of our own soil must accomplish the work, if it ever rises to the high dignity of profound and enduring literature.

The greatest triumph that our wisdom has ever achieved was the formation and acceptance of the Constitution. It was far easier to throw off the tyranny of Great Britain and to secure our independence, than to unite the diversified interests of the country into one compact and organic whole. Yet it was done. A system was agreed upon and adopted which preserved local rights and State sovereignties, while it combined the different parts into a Federal Republic. It harmonized jarring sectionalisms, and made us one people. Its foresight appears equally in what it took from the States and what it left. Outside of its imperative law, in the open margin it has refused to occupy, it has shown the prudence of self-restraint as strikingly as it has done in asserting its just prerogatives over the general interests of the country. On the one side, it gives citizenship a new and nobler meaning than it ever had before; on the other, it leaves the inherent manhood of its subjects to develop its own peculiar traits in single obedience to the laws of private conscience and public opinion. It is on such ground that it stands and challenges our fervent admiration. Whoever remembers the difficulties that beset its origination—the prejudices it had to subdue—the favor it had to create, will not want evidences of its superior sagacity and singular adaptation to the ends proposed. And if such an one will think of what an educative power it has exerted over successive generations—how it has risen in every emergency to a still more exalted position, and demonstrated itself to be equal to any trial—he will not wonder at the calm confidence with which its most intelligent and discriminating friends rest on its principles for the security and sanctity of popular liberty. Whatever life we have has flowed from its truths. Itself a living power, it has breathed vitality into everything. And yet it is unwasted and unspent. Its strength is as fresh and as full as ever, and its spirit abides in the purity of its early anointing.

British Relations with Persia.

We learn from private sources by the Canada, that the British Government have determined to extend and consolidate its relations with Persia. The Embassy to Teheran has hitherto been comparatively an unimportant one. Sir JOHN MALCOLM was the last representative of any weight. Sir JOHN M. NEIL and Colonel JUSTIN SHEIL were little more than official non-entities. The new Envoy and Ambassador Extraordinary to Persia is the Hon. C. A. MURRAY, the British Minister to Switzerland, formerly Consul-General at Cairo, and well-known in this country. Mr. MURRAY, who was long attached to the Royal household at Buckingham Palace, is the personal friend of Queen VICTORIA.

Mr. MURRAY was to have left England a fortnight ago, and proceed through Egypt to Aden, where a steamer would await his arrival, and take him up the Persian Gulf. He will travel by way of Berne, (his late residence,) to take away his effects. His successor to the Swiss Cantons has not yet been nominated. His own appointment to Persia had not been officially announced in the London Gazette when the Canada left Liverpool, but our correspondent assures us that it had been signed by the Queen, as well as his Letter of Credence, and that he had seen both.

There is little doubt that Persia has been inclined, for some time, to aid Turkey against their common enemy and dangerous neighbor, the Czar, and that it is at the particular desire of the Government at Teheran that Great Britain now accredits an Ambassador a gentleman of talent and political experience like Mr. MURRAY.

Mr. Hale's Speech.

If a man invites us to a dinner, we do not dispute his right to treat us to the roast pig off which a party dined at his table yesterday. If a sharp newsboy gets off an old extra with the Canada's arrival a month or two ago instead of yesterday, we do not insinuate that the buyer has any right to abuse the boy. Such things are very much matters of taste, and tastes differ considerably. So we doubt if it would be right to blame Mr. HALE for treating the company who paid a quarter and entered the State Fair grounds to hear his speech yesterday, to the same excellent address that he delivered some years ago at the Massachusetts State Agricultural Fair. This has been a very busy season. There have been a great many Conventions held, which this eloquent and effective champion of Liberty and Free Speech had to attend. If a speech is a good one, is it not after all a reprehensible curiosity which insists it shall be new, too? But the public taste may need educating to see it so. Meantime we should have been glad to publish Mr. HALE's remarks; but the advent of newer and more imperative matter renders it impossible.

The Colored Folk.

Our people are as much afraid of colored people as if the color would really rub off and soil passers by. We suspect that some really think their color is like lamp-black or fresh paint from the brush, and that their presence here, though they behave like the best of citizens, is a thing to be grieved over. There should be more Uncle Tobys in our land. His noble sentiment, uttered as he gave to the fly liberty to rove and buzz where he would, "There is room enough in the world for both me and thee," should be taught in the Common Schools and repeated from the press, until it is the common sentiment that there is room enough in America for men of both colors. The colonization of Africa is one of those excellent projects which are well worthy the self-denials of the best of men. But to treat any native American, of whatever color, as if it were his duty to leave his land to help colonize Africa, or any other country, is unjust and oppressive. Efforts have lately been made to induce colored settlers to abandon their homes in the United States and emigrate to Demerara. The inducements held up are, a climate hot enough, and plenty of work in producing the plantain fibre, India rubber, and other articles for which our markets are always eager. But while there are thousands of unfilled acres in the oldest States demanding cultivation, and thousands of square miles in the new States and Territories for them to settle in, we do not wonder that these new schemes of colonization are treated like older plans of expatriation. We are negotiating for the annexation of the Sandwich Islands, with their 80,000 colored inhabitants, why need we fret so much to be rid of the few thousand natives whose color scarcely averages a deeper hue?

The Arctic's Passengers.

The following is a list of the passengers which embarked on the Arctic at Liverpool,

Mr. Dupasseur, and friend,	Miss Revell,	Mr. W. Barber,
Mr. E. Burch,	Mr. Robinson,	Mr. James Smith,
Mr. F. Henry,	Mr. H. H. Roon,	Mr. J. Thompson,
Mr. F. Durant,	Mr. B. Reed,	Mrs. Bryan,
lady and child,	Mr. C. Springer,	Mr. T. Ladiman,
T. C. Jones,	Mr. Eggers,	Mr. Pratt,
J. G. Smith,	Mr. E. Gaynett and family,	Mr. Sheldon,
Miss Jane Minton,	Mr. Hurst and family,	Mrs. Mary Hodson and infant,
Miss Smith,	Mr. Hernett and lady,	Miss Ford,
Mr. W. B. Brown and lady,	Mr. Hinds and friend,	Mr. John Fryer,
Miss Brown,	Mr. Wallace,	Mr. Shebourn,
Mr. Babcock and lady,	Mr. Waterman,	Mr. Theodore,
Mr. Babcock, jr.,	Mr. Major, friend and child,	Mr. Winterburne,
Mr. C. T. Mitchell,	Mr. D. Gunnett and family,	Mr. S. Culner,
Dr. Mayer,	Mr. Major and friend,	Mr. Gunlian,
Mr. J. B. Cooke,	Miss Brun,	Miss Hayes,
Mr. A. Bauch,	Mr. Ravenscroft,	Mr. H. Arnoldie,
Mr. W. V. Rathbone,	Mr. S. M. Woodruff,	Mr. W. Coop,
Mr. Guinette and family,	Mr. W. J. Hanessey,	Mr. Ferguson,
Mr. Barnes,	Mr. W. Gilmore,	Mr. Lenerre and family,
Mr. W. Day and family,	Mr. J. Young,	Mr. Hallbrown,
Mr. F. Thompson,	Mr. W. Adams,	Mr. E. Gardiner,
Mrs. Stone and family,	Mr. Brady,	Miss A. Lewis,
Mr. Schertzler,	Mr. T. Catchwood,	Mr. T. Newman,
Mr. H. Thomas,	Mr. J. Harrill,	Mr. Dougnase,
Mr. J. Lindsey,	Mr. E. Collier,	Mr. D. Madder,
Miss Munsley,	Mr. Woodcraft and lady,	Mr. Mitchell and friend,
Mr. C. B. Johnson,	Mr. Collins,	Mr. James Smith,
Mr. S. L. Neakes,	Mr. Hilger and friend,	Mrs. Bridge and friend,
Mr. C. Petrie and lady,	Mr. Hollins,	Mr. Bedford and friend,
Mrs. Ferrin,	Mr. Niven,	Mr. G. Brown,
Mr. E. Sandford,	Mr. C. St. John,	Mr. Mayer,
Mr. E. C. Ward,	Mr. E. Moore,	Mr. Cooke,
Mr. Millestie,	Mr. W. Perkins,	Mr. H. Christian and friend,
Mr. G. F. Pearson,	Lady J. Smith,	Mr. P. T. Greer,
Mr. G. F. Allen and lady,	Mr. M'Glynn,	Mr. T. Robson,
Mr. Brown and family,	Mr. E. Madison,	Mr. S. Deeds,
Mr. S. P. Williams and lady,	Mr. E. A. Collier and daughter,	Mr. Pascoe and four friends,
Mr. Delgrat,	Mr. M. Jenkins and lady,	Mr. Webery and friends,
Mr. G. C. M'Cauchen,	Mr. Schmidt,	Mr. Mayer,
Mr. Morris,	Mr. Waring,	Mr. Green and lady,
Mr. North,	Capt. D. Pratt and family,	Mr. W. Nicolas,
Mr. A. Benedict and lady,	Mr. Hernett and lady,	Mr. Puss and friends,
Mr. C. Fabbicotti,	Mr. D. Stewart,	Mrs. Edgecombe and child,
Mr. J. B. Hogg,	Mrs. Drew,	Mr. Frank,
Mr. Dunson and lady,	Mr. J. Holbrook,	Mr. F. Kluse,
Mrs. Roper,	Miss Jones,	Mr. Calmad,
Mrs. Child and daughter,	Miss A. Coats,	Mr. P. Bush and son,
	Mr. J. Muirhead,	Mr. Petersen,
		Mrs. Craige,
		Mrs. Benjamin.

NEW BAD.—The following is said to be the motto upon a tombstone in the Western country—"After life's fitful fever and ague he sleeps well."

CITY POLITICS.

Whig Primary Elections.

The Whig Primary Elections for Delegates to the City, Congressional and Assembly Conventions, were held yesterday morning between the hours of 6½ and 8½. The polls were quiet, but considerable opposition existed in the Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth and Fourteenth Wards, and in the Twelfth the votes were not fully canvassed until a late hour in the afternoon. We give below a list of Delegates elected to the Mayoralty Convention, as indicative of the general character of the result:

1—T. Nesbit.	9—S. A. Cunningham.	15—J. Delamater.
R. S. Collins.	W. H. Gadsey.	J. Romer.
Henry Smith.	W. A. Smith.	M. Jenkins.
2—A. J. Williams.	16—R. W. Osborn.	17—M. H. Chase.
John Decker.	A. W. Barnes.	J. C. Pinckney.
John Hooper.	W. L. Miller.	S. Ward.
3—R. G. Millard.	11—F. Spencer.	18—J. H. Valentine.
J. A. Stickney.	L. C. Styles.	W. Lambert, Jr.
Th. Ostwald.	M. A. Smith.	J. M. Thompson.
4—D. McLaughlin	12—J. B. Frink.	19—R. W. Gatch.
W. H. Adams.	Chas. Sutton.	W. T. Jennings.
G. R. Shultz.	J. Quackenbush.	J. G. Lightbody
5—A. M. C. Smith.	13—A. T. Howell.	20—D. D. Conover.
T. Flender.	J. H. Briggs.	Thos. Childs.
F. W. Weiss.	J. H. Pratt.	O. H. Tucker.
6—G. W. Williams.	*14—J. Hooper.	21—F. P. Harris.
O. W. Brennan.	B. H. Flatt.	J. D. Cooper.
D. Murray.	J. McLove.	C. Warner.
7—W. D. Andrews.	*16—J. Johnstone.	22—Free.
E. Merritt.	Wm. Lyons.	Robert Mackey.
J. D. Westlake.	W. W. Kahn.	John Smith.
8—A. E. Ridder.	15—W. N. Bleakman.
W. F. T. Chapman.	John P. Hoyt.
Jas. Webb.	Ph'p H. Jones.

* Split.

INCIDENTS.

First Ward—No opposition, the ticket receiving 62 votes.

Third Ward—Three tickets were run, but not the least disturbance occurred.

Tenth Ward—Ticket elected by 236 majority.

Eleventh Ward—Two tickets polled. The contest was a close one. The principal ticket was elected by only ten majority.

Thirteenth Ward—In the Thirteenth Ward there was a very spirited contest.

Fourteenth Ward—Two tickets and two polls. Each elected.

Twentieth Ward—The election in this Ward passed off very quietly. About 600 votes were polled for the ticket headed D. D. Conover; no opposition.

Twenty-first Ward.—The ticket headed FRANCIS L. HARRIS had a majority of three to one over the W. F. JACKSON ticket. The Judiciary Delegates will go for SIDNEY H. STEWART for City Judge, the County for JOHN J. DOANE for Register, and the Congressional for Alderman WAKEMAN. There was considerable feeling manifested, but no serious breach of the peace occurred. About 900 votes were polled.

Twenty-second Ward—The issue in this Ward turned on Temperance, and the BLACK (Temperance) ticket was elected by 476 votes. There were two other tickets in the field, one headed by J. MCCOY, which received 271 votes, and the other by A. NEWELL, which only polled 74. The election here was also comparatively quiet, and no actual disturbance took place.

The tickets elected in the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Wards, are friendly to the nomination of MERWIN R. BASWER for Mayor, and CHRISTIAN W. SCHAFFER, the Secretary of the Whig General Committee, for the office of Commissioner of Streets and Lamps.

There was very little opposition in either of the Wards. "Young America" appeared to have it all their own way.

Young Men's Democratic National Club.

The Young Men's National Club met at the Stuyvesant Institute last night. Mr. JAMES T. BRADY, the President, was in the Chair for the first time since his return from Europe.

The President desired to say to the members of the Club, before they made their nominations, that one of the principal objects, besides that of having the pleasure of taking his associates by the hand, was, in case any member might wish to bring his name forward in competition with the Presidency, to decline such an honor. He desired to leave the Chair, and enrol himself among the rank and file. He did not intend, nor would it be in the power of any man or men to make him leave this station. He belonged, as all were aware, to the Democratic party, and intended to participate as a private citizen hereafter on all topics of interest. The platforms of the two sections of the Democracy were the same—he could see not a particle of difference between them; but the distinction in which the present Administration was held made it clear that FRANKLIN PIERCE was to go down to oblivion. The last campaign, where none of the members of the Club had anything to hope, and in which they participated so devotedly, would be always a high matter of gratification to remember the efforts then made by the Club. He would now return to the members his heartfelt thanks. Alluding to the Nebraska bill and Senator DOUGLAS, he said he would not now allude to a measure, which, during his absence in Europe, had been widely discussed in our country, or to the aspirations of its author—opinions which might not be shared by the members of the Club. In concluding, he expressed the hope that the Club would soon go on prospering, till it would attain the power and position it was entitled to.

Mr. BRADY's remarks were frequently interrupted by applause, especially that portion relating to the PIERCE Administration.

Notwithstanding his declination, he was unanimously reelected, which brought him again to his feet, declaring he did not intend to Bronsonize, which was now rather fashionable, and had been lately done by Governor Seymour.

Twenty-five Vice-Presidents were then elected, and also Secretaries and Treasurers.

Mr. HENRY H. MORANGE moved the following resolution:

Resolved, That a Committee of three be appointed to take the necessary steps for a Ratification Meeting to respond to the State, City and County nominations.

Adopted, and Messrs. MORANGE, GUNTHER and CLINTON appointed. The Club then adjourned.

Tammany Deserted by Her Children.

The Union Club (Soft-Shell) held a meeting last night at the Chinese Assembly Rooms, and appointed a Committee for a Ratification Meeting—resolving, however, that it shall not be held at Tammany Hall, owing to some disagreement between the Club and the powers that be, in Tammany.

Organization of a Central Seymour Club.

A meeting was held last evening at Tammany Hall, for the purpose of organizing a Central Seymour Club. Ten delegates attended from each Ward where such clubs have already been formed, and the other Wards were fully represented. Capt. RYNDERS was elected President; THOMAS A. GLOVER and EDWARD MCCONNELL, Secretaries; and one representative from each Ward, Vice Presidents. Resolutions were adopted upholding the veto of Governor SEYMOUR upon the Maine Liquor Law, as a test of his fearless intrepidity and sterling Democracy; condemning that law as an open violation of the rights of the people, and pronouncing, ironically, Judge BRONSON's opinion upon the Veto as an undeniable test of his great capacity and sincerity.

In conclusion they resolved, that it behooves all freemen to throw aside party trammels, and battle, side by side, against a common enemy; and that they would call a mass meeting in the Park, of all the Seymour Clubs and Associations at as early a day as practicable.

A Committee was appointed to arrange preliminaries to carry out their object, and the meeting adjourned till Friday next.

Hard-Shell Nominations.

The Hard-Shell County Convention met last evening, at Stuyvesant Institute—Col. W. B. BURNETT in the chair. The following nominations were made:

Register—J. SHERMAN BROWNELL.
Commissioner of Streets and Lamps—GEORGE C. GLAZIER.
Governor of the Almshouse—C. GODFREY GUNTHER.

Some seats in the First, Fourth, Fifteenth, and Twenty-second Wards were contested. The Convention having decided upon the eligibility of the respective parties, those adjudged eligible took their seats.

The Convention adjourned, subject to the call of the Chairman.

☞ Mr. H. J. SICKLES, late Postmaster at Albion, N. Y., has published a statement in relation to his recent arrest for fraud upon his sister-in-law.

Hon. Sam Houston is one of the appointed lecturers for the Anti-Slavery course this Winter at Boston.

Mrs. Mary E. W. Betts, a popular Western poetess, died at Cincinnati, last Sunday.

Congressional.

In the Twenty-first Congressional District, (Otsego, Chenango and Delaware Counties,) the Hon. O. D. CONNER has nominated OLIVER C. GROSS, Esq., of Bainbridge. The Hards have nominated EDWARD HOPKINS.

In the Twenty-second District, (Madison and Oswego,) SIDNEY T. FAIRCHILD is the Soft candidate for the short term, in the place of GERRIT SMITH, and LEANDER BABCOCK of Oswego for the full term.

In the Twenty-third District, (Tompkins, Chemung and Tioga,) J. M. PARKER, of Owego, is the Whig candidate.

In the Twenty-third District, (Jefferson and Lewis,) WM. A. GILBERT, of Adams, is nominated by the Whigs.

In New-Jersey Dr. GEO. R. ROBBINS has been nominated by the Whigs in the Second District. In the Third District the Democrats have nominated D. SAMUEL LILLY.

Dramatic.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE.—Mr. E. EDDY takes his first benefit to-night and Miss JULIA DEAN takes her last appearance. There are two popular plays, in both of which Mr. EDDY appears, the "Lady of Lyons" and the "Rag Picker of Paris."

On Monday evening, the young American debutante, Miss M. MAKEAH makes her first appearance as Parthenia in "Ingomar." She will be assisted by Mr. W. MARSHALL, a tragedian highly appreciated in the Bay State.

Newspaper Changes.

The Buffalo Commercial Advertiser, one of the oldest and ablest newspapers in Western New-York, has changed hands. Dr. FOOTE and E. R. JEWETT have sold out, and are succeeded by C. F. S. THOMAS and S. H. and J. H. LATHROP. We presume the Commercial will still be indebted largely, as it has been hitherto, for much of its variety and interest, to the facile pen of Mr. T. V. PARSALES, who has long been its principal editor.

The Wayne County Democrat, hitherto a Democratic paper, hoists the Whig State flag and declares its purpose hereafter to support "real democracy." It is in charge of G. D. A. BRIDGMAN.

Baptist Mission—Opposition.

A meeting of members of the American Baptist Home Mission Society, opposed to the action of the Executive Board, in determining to occupy rooms in the building of the American and Foreign Bible Society, and in favor of an independent location for the Home Mission Society, was held last evening in the First Baptist Church, Broome-street. There was a very full attendance. Rev. Dr. COBB explained the objects of the meeting, and introduced Rev. Mr. KEYS, who read the minutes of a preliminary meeting which was held at the same place on Tuesday last. At that meeting a Committee was appointed to draft resolutions to be presented last evening.

Rev. Dr. ARMITAGE, Chairman of the Committee, then read the resolutions, which were to the effect that the measures resorted to for the removal to Nassau street involve disrespect and proscription of a large portion of the above Society; that many of these are withholding their funds for the purpose of entering upon a new organization for the prosecution of Home Missions; therefore they cannot countenance the removal of the Board, and entreat the Board to reconsider their action in the matter, and either remain in the present location or procure an independent one; that if the Board do remove to Nassau-street, they see no other alternative than a permanent organization of a Home Mission Board, independent of all partisan influences.

Accident on the Hudson River Railroad.

A fatal accident occurred at Oakhill, on the 3d inst., on the Hudson River Railroad. The facts are these: The train left New-York at 12 o'clock, and when near Oakhill the engineer discovering a man upon the track, gave the signal, but no attention was paid to it, and the train passed on, killing the unfortunate man instantly. His name was JESSE MULLEN, a carpenter by trade, residing in Durham County.

DR. LEE'S CONSECRATION.—Rev. HENRY W. LEE, D. D., Rector of St. Luke's Church, Rochester, having been canonically elected Bishop of Iowa, his consecration has been appointed to take place in Rochester, a week from Wednesday. Bishop BROWNELL has appointed Right Rev. Bishop HOPKINS, of Vermont, to preside; Bishops BURGESS and EASTBURN to take part in the solemn act of consecration. Bishops DE LANCY and WHITEHOUSE, and the Bishop of Toronto, are expected to be present and take part in the services.

WOMEN'S TEMPERANCE CONVENTION.—A Temperance Convention will be held on the 10th and 11th of this month, at Oswego, under the auspices of the Women's State Temperance Society.

AN English geologist, named G. J. Phillips, now on a tour of mineralogical research, in Berks County, is said to have discovered gold in a vein of quartz, near Reading. The Gazette, of the latter place, which has seen several of the specimens, speaks of the gold as remarkably pure.

The St. Louis Republican speaks of a negro in that city, who was born and brought up in Ireland, and possesses just about the richest brogue to be found among all the emigrants from the Emerald Isle.

The only daughter of Mr. Donahoe, of the Pilot, was received into the order of the Sisters of Mercy, in Providence, on the 27th. The ceremony was witnessed by upwards of two thousand persons of all denominations.

Half the people who burn anthracite coal waste half its heating power. By burning it too fast, a great portion of the heat escapes, and especially by kindling it too rapidly, there is enormous waste.

NEW-YORK WEEKLY TIMES.

Contents for Saturday, Oct. 7.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.
FRANCE—The Conquest of the Baltic Squadron—Napoleon and the Toothache, &c. By Dick Tinto.
CANADA—The Grand Provincial Exhibition—Passage of the Reciprocity Act.
A WANDERER'S GLEANINGS in the Empire State. By Minnie Myrtle.
CHINA—A Visit to the Porcelain Tower at Nanking.
TURKEY—American Vandalism—Conduct of the British Consul at Jerusalem.
THE REPUBLICANS OF SPAIN—Who they are, and how they are trashed.
LONDON—The Objects of the War—Resignation of Mr. Buchanan, &c.
EDITORIALS.
State Politics—The Convention at Auburn—City Politics—Now Set Out a Tree—One more Business Lesson—State Rights—American Workingmen—The Hard Times Mellowing—Governor Seymour's Acceptance—The Rumored Fusion—A Newspaper from Kansas—The Wonders of Womanhood—The Whigs and Slavery—Fearful Mortality—Death of Hon. Presley Ewing—Correctional Discipline in England—The Education of Boys—A Great Escape—Statistics of Health Among Laboring Men.
NEWS, REPORTS, &c.
The New-York State Agricultural Fair.
Opening of the Academy of Music.
Later from all parts of Europe.
Later from Havana.
Interesting from Kansas.
Progress of Mexican Revolution.
Later from Texas.
Opening of Japan.
COMMERCIAL—A fully prepared statement of the Stock, Money and Market transactions of the week, prepared expressly for this paper. Weekly Statement of the Banks of the City of New-York.

THE WEEKLY TIMES is published on Saturdays, at the low price of Two DOLLARS per annum, in advance. Two copies for $3; Five copies for $6 will be sent to one address. Single copies may be had at the counter, in wrappers ready for mailing, at 6¼ cents each.

☞ The postage on this paper to any part of the United States is 26 cents per annum, and within the State of New-York is 12 cents. Published by RAYMOND, HARPER & CO., No. 138 Nassau-st.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

A VOICE FROM THE HOME OF COMFORT AND ECONOMY.—The wearing of durable, healthful and cheap UNDER-GARMENTS AND HOSIERY, is the securing of both comfort and economy. The "voice" says purchase at No. 186 Bowery, where all goods are shown cheerfully, represented fairly, offered at a small advance on the original cost, and submitted to the purchaser's unbiassed opinion. JAMES E. RAY, Importer and Manufacturer of Under-Garments and Hosiery, No. 186 Bowery, near Grand-st.

TO BUYERS OF DRY GOODS.—HAVING DECIDED to put our affairs in liquidation, we are determined to close our large stock of STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS within the ensuing sixty days. We will make great sacrifices to induce purchases of us, as the balance of the stock at the conclusion of the time mentioned WILL BE CLOSED BY AUCTION. MOULTON & PLIMPTON, No. 12 Vesey and No. 6 Barclay-sts., directly rear of Astor House.

WEST END FASHIONABLE HAT AND CAP EMPORIUM.—Gentlemen's, Youths and Children's Fall Fashions for Hats and Caps now ready. A beautiful article. The special attention of ladies is called to our large assortment of Children's Hats and Caps. J. W. KELLOGG, No. 128 Canal-st.

BENVOORT HOUSE, FIFTH-AVENUE, corner of EIGHTH-STREET.—This establishment, conducted exclusively on the European plan, has a restaurant attached for the accommodation of ladies and gentlemen not residing in the Hotel. Dinner and supper will be provided at all times, on short notice, either in private rooms or in the Restaurant.

TWENTY YEARS OF OBLIVION HAS NOT SEEN the date of DESBLERS' New Discovery in Chills and Fever, as it has been of many others' remedies. Its astonishing cures are already cause for it an unexampled demand. For sale by C. H. RING, corner of Broadway and John-st.

LEARY & CO.'S QUARTERLY FOR SEPTEMBER, 1854—THIS DAY will issue (new and original) styles for Gentlemen's Dress Hats. LEARY & CO., Leaders of Fashion, Astor House, Broadway.

DR. HOOFLAND'S CELEBRATED GERMAN BITTERS.—Prepared by Dr. C. M. JACKSON, at No. 120 Arch-st., Philadelphia—Will effectually cure Liver Complaint, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Chronic or Nervous Debility, Chronic Diarrhœa, Kidney and all diseases arising from a disordered liver or stomach, such as constipation, inward piles, fullness, or blood to the head, acidity of the stomach, nausea, heartburn, disgust for food, fullness or weight in the stomach, sour eructations, sinking at the pit of the stomach, swimming of the head, hurried and difficult breathing, fluttering of the heart, choking or suffocating sensations when in a lying posture, dimness of vision, dots or webs before the sight, fever and dull pain in the head, deficiency of perspiration, yellowness of the skin and eyes, pain in the side, back, chest, limbs, &c., sudden flushes of heat, burning in the flesh, constant imaginings of evil and great depression of spirits. For sale in New-York by A. B. & D. SANDS, No. 100 Fulton-st.; C. H. RING, No. 185 Broadway; HAVILAND, HARRAL & RIBLET, No. 59 Warren-st.; ROYE & PAUL, No. 102 Chambers-st.; C. W. CLICKENER & CO., No. 81 Barclay-st.; OLCOTT, McKESSON & RIKER, No. 127 Maiden-lane; Mrs HAYES, Brooklyn; and by druggists and dealers in medicine everywhere.

SCIENCE NEVER ERRS—WHERE SCIENCE IS based upon a sound principle, error must abide its fullest test, and will lose itself in the crucible of truth. The correct chemical principle on which BOGLE'S SUPERBIN FLUID is based, and its corresponding action on the growth of the hair, prove its composition to be established on the most indisputable physical data. Thousands have cured themselves of baldness by its timely application, have restored their hair to its original color, and many have escaped it without profit and pleasure from its use. Sold by WM. BOGLE, at No. 111 Washington-st., Boston.

May be had in New-York of A. B. & D. SANDS, FRANK CHAR. RING & CO., Druggists; RUSHTON, CLARKE & CO., Druggists; CLICKENER & CO., No. 81 Barclay-st., and Chemists and Perfumers throughout the world.

RICH'S IMPROVED SALAMANDER SAFE, WILLARD'S PATENT.—The subscribers respectfully inform the public that they are the only manufacturers of WILLARD'S PATENT SALAMANDER SAFE, in this City. Mr. Rich having purchased Willard's patent to Mr. Willard, and they assume their customers that not a fire-proof safe has ever been consumed (in 12 years) in a safe of their make. They are made in the most faithful manner and secured with Jones' World's Fair lock. Hall's Improved, with a key not larger than a two shilling piece. Day & Newell's celebrated locks. Jones' locks, lowest price. Other that may be desired. A large assortment always on hand and for sale by STEARNS & MARVIN, Nos. 144 and 146 Water-st., Successors to Rich & Co.

WINDOW SHADES AND CURTAIN GOODS, SATIN DE LAINES, WORSTED DAMASKS, LACE AND MUSLIN CURTAINS, GILT CORNICES, CORNICES AND WINDOW SHADES, are offered by the subscribers at very low prices. The inducements we are now offering are appreciated by all close buyers. KELTY & FERGUSON, No. 296½ Broadway and No. 54 Pearl-st.

PIANO-FORTES AND MELODIONS.—TERMS graduated to the times, and made to accommodate every class of buyers. An immense assortment of celeb

POLITICAL NOTICES.

☞ Eleventh Ward.—At a Republican Primary Election, held at the corner of Avenue C and [illegible], the following [illegible] were elected:

MAYORALTY CONVENTION.
Franklin Bloom, L. C. Ayres.

JUDICIARY CONVENTION.
Thos. B. Van Cott, Peter Lemon, S. J. Hammond.

CITY AND COUNTY CONVENTION.
James Lowe, Simon Hazleton, J. C. Harrison.
Enoch Stevens, Seaman Schoor.

CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.
Joseph Abbott, D. D. Wright, Hamilton Wade.
Chas. Perry, Joseph Stratton.

ASSEMBLY CONVENTION.
J. F. Conklin, Simon Hasson, Gerard Beekin.
J. J. Shedd, Wm. Cook, Geo. Bloom.
S. S. Jerolo, Allen Cameron, Horace Smith.
Wm. Sawyer, Robt. Buckmaster.

CHARTER CONVENTION.
[illegible] Acker, Wm. Dodd, Jonathan Lyons.
[illegible] Pelham, J. W. Slocum, James T. Hassell.
Joseph Stevens, D. L. Tompkins, Daniel Willis.
Gabriel Van Cott, Thomas Feulke, J. S. Underhill.
Wm. D. Atkins, Joseph Terry, James McCloud.

WM. GREENE, } Inspectors.
J. S. STILES, }
JAS. LUCAS, }

☞ Eighteenth Ward.—At an Election held at the corner of Grand and Cannon-sts., Oct. 6, the following persons were duly elected:

JUDICIARY CONVENTION.
Ab Trafford, James Mahon, Nelson's Thompson.

MAYORALTY CONVENTION.
John Cooper, Cornelius Lafarge, Lawrence Hussey.

CITY CONVENTION.
David A. Furlong, S. H. Richardson, George W. Gaylor.
William Seaker, Jacob S. Hedges.

ASSEMBLY CONVENTION.
Augustus Moore, Thomas Revels, M. West.
John Parsons, John Wyatt, Samuel Atkinson.
Peter Cornell, Thomas Lambert, Lafarge, John M. Griffin.
Chas. Rochelle, Abijah Abbott.

CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.
George Harris, Joseph Stillman, George Ferris.
Edward Sopher, Anthony J. Allaire, Abram S. Riker.

CHARTER CONVENTION.
Thirty-Third Council District.
Edgar H. Dingee, John White, Jeremiah Kelly.
Henry Johnson, John Godey.
Thirty-Fourth Council District.
David Tappen, Wm. E. Willis, John Kelly.
John Colly, E. Riley.
Thirty-Fifth Council District.
Benjamin Blackall, John Nolan, Wm. Davis.
Oliver Gardner, Geo. Tucker.

WM. E. WILLIS, Chairman.
CORNELIUS LAWRENCE, } Inspectors.
BENJAMIN H. RICHARDSON, }

☞ Seventeenth Ward.—We, the undersigned, do hereby certify that at a Primary Election held at Kimball's Hotel on FRIDAY, the 6th of October, the following named persons were elected to represent the XVIIth Ward in the several Whig Conventions.

MAYORALTY CONVENTION.
Matthew H. Chase, John C. Pinckney, Edwin A. Ware.

JUDICIARY CONVENTION.
Noah T. Hall, Joseph Haight, Cornelius Elmer.

CITY CONVENTION.
Henry C. Miller, Lewis F. Kirk, Reuben C. Mills.
William Ashman, James A. Fraser.

CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.
Nathan G. Ely, J. M. Solem, Jacob B. Young.
James L. Berrian, William Baltz.

ASSEMBLY CONVENTION.
Robert S. Lynn, Charles Hyde, Charles Johnson.
Benjamin Jones, Cyrus Ramsey, Richard Jackson.
J. W. H. Bennett, J. W. T. Van Riper, Samuel Hoffman.
William Shafer, M. E. Townsend.

CHARTER CONVENTION.

Sixth District.	Eighth District.	Ninth District.
J. L. Kingsland,	H. H. Haight,	G. H. Franklin,
John C. Rue,	Stephen Irwin,	Peter Palmer,
Lewis H. Wilsey,	Seth H. Abrams,	W. R. Bisbet,
Richard Wilsey,	Wm. H. Daly,	Wm. Stoutenburgh,
W. E. Valentine,	Daniel M. Todd,	H. B. Cornelison,

Sixth District.	Eighth District.	Ninth District.
John Crosby,	Hilland R. Weeks,
George W. Fuller,	Thomas Brinsmade,
John Lowe,	Royal N. Wilkins,
Jacob Schenckhill,	Henry Bailey,
D. H. Roberts,	Wm. Roberts,

MATTHEW H. CHASE, } Inspectors of Election, appointed by the Ward Committee.
JOSEPH C. PINCKNEY, }
WM. R. BISBET, }

☞ Nineteenth Ward.—At the Primary Election of the Whigs of this ward held on the 6th inst., the ticket here published, and called the Captain Bayles ticket, was elected by 178 majority over the Union and Harmony ticket. The Union and Harmony ticket received 146 votes, the Bayles ticket, 324 votes; the successful ticket, 313 votes.

MAYORALTY CONVENTION.
H. W. Genet, Wm. T. Jennings, J. G. Lightbody.

JUDICIARY CONVENTION.
G. W. Beebe, John H. Van Tassel, G. W. Truss.

COUNTY CONVENTION.
F. S. Bell, Wm. D. Sweet, G. W. Baker.
John MacDonald, James J. Berrian.

CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.
Geo. C. Hazen, Fred S. Clark, Phoenix Seaman.
John Kershaw, Levi Hart.

ASSEMBLY CONVENTION.
Thos. F. Riley, Henry Hunt, P. B. Dingledein.
Chas. Vandewater, David N. Tenbrook.

CHARTER CONVENTION.
Isaac Clark, S. S. Van Brunt, John B. Kerr.
John Hallock, Jacob C. Hornfeck, Geo. C. Conklin.
Wm. H. Hubbard, James Kennedy, G. W. Gooch.
C. E. Acker, Alexander Elder, Wm. J. Speer.
C. E. Acker, Jacob Hook, Andrew Lewis.

POSTMASTER CONVENTION.
Geo. Montgomery, Robert Dexter.
Thomas Maxwell, John G. Hartland.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

☞ The Spontaneous Remedy Never Discovered for chronic coughs, bronchitis, consumption in all stages, hoarseness, tightness of breathing, spitting of blood, and all diseases of the lungs and air passages.

Prof. McCLINTOCK'S PECTORAL SYRUP.

This astonishing efficacious remedy has been used for many years in the private practice of Prof. JAMES McCLINTOCK, of Philadelphia, and has effected thousands of rapid and permanent cures. Sold in pint bottles. Price $1. Depôt No. 128 Fulton-st. For sale by all druggists.

☞ Fruit and Ornamental Trees and Plants.—Including everything necessary to the Garden, Orchard, Nursery and Orchard, with all the recent introductions, at very low rates. Descriptive price Catalogues gratis. Carriage paid to New-York. Ornamental and other planting done in any part of the country. Address B. M. WATSON Old Colony Nurseries, Plymouth, Mass.

☞ Hastings's Bronchial Salve—25 Cents a Box—A British remedy of 30 years' standing—a sure and speedy cure for Burns, Sores, Boils, and all external injuries; recommended by Physicians. Sold by all druggists in the United States. A. B. & D. SANDS, C. V. CLOWNESS & CO., C. H. RING, New-York; and WM. H. SIEGER, Philadelphia. REDDING & CO., Boston.

☞ Ladies, why will you longer be deceived? Mme. BLAKE'S Dye the Premium received. Has world's reputation the much desired. You need no longer wear gray hair. Then go to BALLARD, will not delay. Has a beautiful dark and HR Brown. Where by his nice art the wavy locks play, The polished brow and alabaster neck, And glistens like the threads of lustrous gold, Just wantoned on the cheeks of maids of old. No dye that they white, luxurious and lustrous Can by which naturals entwined bounds. Or bid each curl in Grecian knot confound, Keep gracefully and daily with the wind.

☞ Dr. Hunt's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock, Sarsaparilla and Stillingia, thoroughly tested for the last five years, is now known in almost every household throughout the country, for the complete cure of Scrofula, Rheumatism, Ulcers, Liver complaint, Scrofulous Affections, Mercurial Diseases, and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. Prepared only by C. H. RING, No. 184 Broadway, the Druggist, and sold by druggists generally. Price $1 per bottle.

☞ The Spontaneous Remedy Never Discovered for chronic coughs, bronchitis, consumption in all stages, hoarseness, tightness of breathing, spitting of blood, and all diseases of the lungs and air passages.

Prof. McCLINTOCK'S PECTORAL SYRUP.

This astonishing efficacious remedy has been used for many years in the private practice of Prof. JAMES McCLINTOCK, of Philadelphia, and has effected thousands of rapid and permanent cures. Sold in pint bottles. Price $1. Depôt No. 128 Fulton-st. For sale by all druggists.

☞ Fruit and Ornamental Trees and Plants.—Including everything necessary to the Garden, Orchard, Nursery and Orchard, with all the recent introductions, at very low rates. Descriptive price Catalogues gratis. Carriage paid to New-York. Ornamental and other planting done in any part of the country. Address B. M. WATSON Old Colony Nurseries, Plymouth, Mass.

☞ Hastings's Bronchial Salve—25 Cents a Box—A British remedy of 30 years' standing—a sure and speedy cure for Burns, Sores, Boils, and all external injuries; recommended by Physicians. Sold by all druggists in the United States. A. B. & D. SANDS, C. V. CLOWNESS & CO., C. H. RING, New-York; and WM. H. SIEGER, Philadelphia. REDDING & CO., Boston.

☞ Ladies, why will you longer be deceived? Mme. BLAKE'S Dye the Premium received. Has world's reputation the much desired. You need no longer wear gray hair. Then go to BALLARD, will not delay. Has a beautiful dark and HR Brown. Where by his nice art the wavy locks play, The polished brow and alabaster neck, And glistens like the threads of lustrous gold, Just wantoned on the cheeks of maids of old. No dye that they white, luxurious and lustrous Can by which naturals entwined bounds. Or bid each curl in Grecian knot confound, Keep gracefully and daily with the wind.

☞ Dr. Hunt's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock, Sarsaparilla and Stillingia, thoroughly tested for the last five years, is now known in almost every household throughout the country, for the complete cure of Scrofula, Rheumatism, Ulcers, Liver complaint, Scrofulous Affections, Mercurial Diseases, and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. Prepared only by C. H. RING, No. 184 Broadway, the Druggist, and sold by druggists generally. Price $1 per bottle.

☞ The Rev. Dr. Vinton, Rector of Grace Church, Brooklyn, will preach in the Church of the Epiphany, No. 129 Stanton-st., between Essex and Norfolk-streets, on SUNDAY EVENING, Oct. 5. Service to commence at 7½ o'clock.

☞ Presbyterian Church.—Corner of Houston and Forsyth-sts.—Preaching TO-MORROW by the Pastor, Rev. ISAAC WESCOTT, at 10½ o'clock, A. M., on The Economy of Sabbath. At 7½ P. M., to Young Men—subject, Gaming.

☞ The Rev. Dr. Vinton, Rector of Grace Church, Brooklyn, will preach in the Church of the Epiphany, No. 129 Stanton-st., between Essex and Norfolk-streets, on SUNDAY EVENING, Oct. 5. Service to commence at 7½ o'clock.

☞ Presbyterian Church.—Corner of Houston and Forsyth-sts.—Preaching TO-MORROW by the Pastor, Rev. ISAAC WESCOTT, at 10½ o'clock, A. M., on The Economy of Sabbath. At 7½ P. M., to Young Men—subject, Gaming.

☞ Bleecker-st. Church.—The Rev. T. L. Cuyler will deliver the Fourth of his series of discourses on Prayer for the Spirit TO-MORROW (Sunday) EVENING, at 7½ o'clock, in Bleecker-st. Church. Young men are especially invited.

☞ Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension, South Brooklyn.—This parish is for the present, under the charge of Rev. J. H. HOBART BROWN. Services EVERY SUNDAY at 10½ o'clock A. M., and 7½ o'clock P. M.

☞ Notice.—There is preaching in the Sixteenth Baptist Church, 10th-st., near 6th-av., by the Pastor, Rev. J. W. TAGGART, EVERY SABBATH EVENING, service commencing at 7½ o'clock.

☞ Mr. Henry L. Bishop is to preach TO-MORROW EVENING, at 7 o'clock, at the Christian Israelite Sanctuary, No. 402 3d-st. Subject—Israel's Restoration, Christ's Second coming, 1,000 years of Peace, &c. Seats free.

☞ Broadway Tabernacle.—Afternoon service will be resumed TO-MORROW at 3 o'clock. Preaching by Rev. Isaac Westcott, of the Knight-st. Church.

☞ Rev. Sidney A. Corey will preach in the 8th-st. Baptist Church, 8th-st., near 6th-av., TO-MORROW, Oct. 5, at 10½ A. M., and at 7½ o'clock P. M.

☞ Rev. Henry M. Parsons may be expected to preach in the Fifteenth-street Church, near Irving place, NEXT SABBATH. Services at 10½ A. M. and 7½ P. M.

POLITICAL NOTICES.

☞ Eleventh Ward.—At a Republican Primary Election, held at the corner of Avenue C and [illegible], the following [illegible] were elected:

MAYORALTY CONVENTION.
Franklin Bloom, L. C. Ayres.

JUDICIARY CONVENTION.
Thos. B. Van Cott, Peter Lemon, S. J. Hammond.

CITY AND COUNTY CONVENTION.
James Lowe, Simon Hazleton, J. C. Harrison.
Enoch Stevens, Seaman Schoor.

CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.
Joseph Abbott, D. D. Wright, Hamilton Wade.
Chas. Perry, Joseph Stratton.

ASSEMBLY CONVENTION.
J. F. Conklin, Simon Hasson, Gerard Beekin.
J. J. Shedd, Wm. Cook, Geo. Bloom.
S. S. Jerolo, Allen Cameron, Horace Smith.
Wm. Sawyer, Robt. Buckmaster.

CHARTER CONVENTION.
[illegible] Acker, Wm. Dodd, Jonathan Lyons.
[illegible] Pelham, J. W. Slocum, James T. Hassell.
Joseph Stevens, D. L. Tompkins, Daniel Willis.
Gabriel Van Cott, Thomas Feulke, J. S. Underhill.
Wm. D. Atkins, Joseph Terry, James McCloud.

WM. GREENE, } Inspectors.
J. S. STILES, }
JAS. LUCAS, }

☞ Eighteenth Ward.—At an Election held at the corner of Grand and Cannon-sts., Oct. 6, the following persons were duly elected:

JUDICIARY CONVENTION.
Ab Trafford, James Mahon, Nelson's Thompson.

MAYORALTY CONVENTION.
John Cooper, Cornelius Lafarge, Lawrence Hussey.

CITY CONVENTION.
David A. Furlong, S. H. Richardson, George W. Gaylor.
William Seaker, Jacob S. Hedges.

ASSEMBLY CONVENTION.
Augustus Moore, Thomas Revels, M. West.
John Parsons, John Wyatt, Samuel Atkinson.
Peter Cornell, Thomas Lambert, Lafarge, John M. Griffin.
Chas. Rochelle, Abijah Abbott.

CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.
George Harris, Joseph Stillman, George Ferris.
Edward Sopher, Anthony J. Allaire, Abram S. Riker.

CHARTER CONVENTION.
Thirty-Third Council District.
Edgar H. Dingee, John White, Jeremiah Kelly.
Henry Johnson, John Godey.
Thirty-Fourth Council District.
David Tappen, Wm. E. Willis, John Kelly.
John Colly, E. Riley.
Thirty-Fifth Council District.
Benjamin Blackall, John Nolan, Wm. Davis.
Oliver Gardner, Geo. Tucker.

WM. E. WILLIS, Chairman.
CORNELIUS LAWRENCE, } Inspectors.
BENJAMIN H. RICHARDSON, }

☞ Seventeenth Ward.—We, the undersigned, do hereby certify that at a Primary Election held at Kimball's Hotel on FRIDAY, the 6th of October, the following named persons were elected to represent the XVIIth Ward in the several Whig Conventions.

MAYORALTY CONVENTION.
Matthew H. Chase, John C. Pinckney, Edwin A. Ware.

JUDICIARY CONVENTION.
Noah T. Hall, Joseph Haight, Cornelius Elmer.

CITY CONVENTION.
Henry C. Miller, Lewis F. Kirk, Reuben C. Mills.
William Ashman, James A. Fraser.

CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.
Nathan G. Ely, J. M. Solem, Jacob B. Young.
James L. Berrian, William Baltz.

ASSEMBLY CONVENTION.
Robert S. Lynn, Charles Hyde, Charles Johnson.
Benjamin Jones, Cyrus Ramsey, Richard Jackson.
J. W. H. Bennett, J. W. T. Van Riper, Samuel Hoffman.
William Shafer, M. E. Townsend.

CHARTER CONVENTION.

Sixth District.	Eighth District.	Ninth District.
J. L. Kingsland,	H. H. Haight,	G. H. Franklin,
John C. Rue,	Stephen Irwin,	Peter Palmer,
Lewis H. Wilsey,	Seth H. Abrams,	W. R. Bisbet,
Richard Wilsey,	Wm. H. Daly,	Wm. Stoutenburgh,
W. E. Valentine,	Daniel M. Todd,	H. B. Cornelison,

Sixth District.	Eighth District.	Ninth District.
John Crosby,	Hilland R. Weeks,
George W. Fuller,	Thomas Brinsmade,
John Lowe,	Royal N. Wilkins,
Jacob Schenckhill,	Henry Bailey,
D. H. Roberts,	Wm. Roberts,

MATTHEW H. CHASE, } Inspectors of Election, appointed by the Ward Committee.
JOSEPH C. PINCKNEY, }
WM. R. BISBET, }

☞ Nineteenth Ward.—At the Primary Election of the Whigs of this ward held on the 6th inst., the ticket here published, and called the Captain Bayles ticket, was elected by 178 majority over the Union and Harmony ticket. The Union and Harmony ticket received 146 votes, the Bayles ticket, 324 votes; the successful ticket, 313 votes.

MAYORALTY CONVENTION.
H. W. Genet, Wm. T. Jennings, J. G. Lightbody.

JUDICIARY CONVENTION.
G. W. Beebe, John H. Van Tassel, G. W. Truss.

COUNTY CONVENTION.
F. S. Bell, Wm. D. Sweet, G. W. Baker.
John MacDonald, James J. Berrian.

CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.
Geo. C. Hazen, Fred S. Clark, Phoenix Seaman.
John Kershaw, Levi Hart.

ASSEMBLY CONVENTION.
Thos. F. Riley, Henry Hunt, P. B. Dingledein.
Chas. Vandewater, David N. Tenbrook.

CHARTER CONVENTION.
Isaac Clark, S. S. Van Brunt, John B. Kerr.
John Hallock, Jacob C. Hornfeck, Geo. C. Conklin.
Wm. H. Hubbard, James Kennedy, G. W. Gooch.
C. E. Acker, Alexander Elder, Wm. J. Speer.
C. E. Acker, Jacob Hook, Andrew Lewis.

POSTMASTER CONVENTION.
Geo. Montgomery, Robert Dexter.
Thomas Maxwell, John G. Hartland.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

☞ The Spontaneous Remedy Never Discovered for chronic coughs, bronchitis, consumption in all stages, hoarseness, tightness of breathing, spitting of blood, and all diseases of the lungs and air passages.

Prof. McCLINTOCK'S PECTORAL SYRUP.

This astonishing efficacious remedy has been used for many years in the private practice of Prof. JAMES McCLINTOCK, of Philadelphia, and has effected thousands of rapid and permanent cures. Sold in pint bottles. Price $1. Depôt No. 128 Fulton-st. For sale by all druggists.

☞ Fruit and Ornamental Trees and Plants.—Including everything necessary to the Garden, Orchard, Nursery and Orchard, with all the recent introductions, at very low rates. Descriptive price Catalogues gratis. Carriage paid to New-York. Ornamental and other planting done in any part of the country. Address B. M. WATSON Old Colony Nurseries, Plymouth, Mass.

☞ Hastings's Bronchial Salve—25 Cents a Box—A British remedy of 30 years' standing—a sure and speedy cure for Burns, Sores, Boils, and all external injuries; recommended by Physicians. Sold by all druggists in the United States. A. B. & D. SANDS, C. V. CLOWNESS & CO., C. H. RING, New-York; and WM. H. SIEGER, Philadelphia. REDDING & CO., Boston.

☞ Ladies, why will you longer be deceived? Mme. BLAKE'S Dye the Premium received. Has world's reputation the much desired. You need no longer wear gray hair. Then go to BALLARD, will not delay. Has a beautiful dark and HR Brown. Where by his nice art the wavy locks play, The polished brow and alabaster neck, And glistens like the threads of lustrous gold, Just wantoned on the cheeks of maids of old. No dye that they white, luxurious and lustrous Can by which naturals entwined bounds. Or bid each curl in Grecian knot confound, Keep gracefully and daily with the wind.

☞ Dr. Hunt's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock, Sarsaparilla and Stillingia, thoroughly tested for the last five years, is now known in almost every household throughout the country, for the complete cure of Scrofula, Rheumatism, Ulcers, Liver complaint, Scrofulous Affections, Mercurial Diseases, and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. Prepared only by C. H. RING, No. 184 Broadway, the Druggist, and sold by druggists generally. Price $1 per bottle.

☞ Fire Alarm.—[illegible] & Co respectfully [illegible] Works of Art, at their [illegible] attention of Artists, Connoisseurs, and the public to the advantages offered in the use of their [illegible] light. Due notice will soon be given of their first regular advertisement.

☞ Mercantile Library Association.—Classes 1854-55.—The Board of Directors have the pleasure to present to the members of the Association the following programme of Classes proposed to be arranged for the ensuing season.

In French Language, Prof. A. BARETTI, Instructor.
In Spanish Language, Prof. JUAN DE LA ROSA.
In German Language, Mr. M. HEINRICH.
In Italian Language, Prof. W. WILLY FORESTI.
In Bookkeeping, Mr. THOMAS JONES.
In Penmanship, Mr. A. H. WHEELER.
In (McLaurin's system) Mr. A. H. McLAURIN.
In Phonography, Mr. F. C. LELAND.
In French Literature, Prof. J. W. J. HOSTE.
In Fine Artistic Drawing, Mr. PAUL F. DUGGAN.
In Mathematics, Mr. THOMAS JONES.
In Vocal Music, Signor F. BAILLIO.
In Gymnastics, Mr. C. W. OTTINGER.
In Horsemanship, Mr. W. A. DIBBROW.
In Fencing, Mr. A. SERVATIUS.

The new class rooms have been arranged with special reference to the comfort and convenience of those who may join the class. The gentlemen selected to take charge of the various classes are well known as successful instructors; the terms are reduced to the lowest rate, and it is hoped that the members generally will avail themselves of the opportunity offered. All necessary information will be given by the Librarians, and subscriptions will be received at Clinton Hall, Astor place, or at the down town office, No. 8 Nassau-st.

FRANK W. BALLARD, Chairman of Class Committee.

☞ Health, Life and Vigor Restored.—Dr. MOSES'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL will relieve with wonderful rapidity, every disorder incident to the digestive apparatus; restore the appetite, renew the strength, hardens the muscles, braces the nerves, gives elasticity to the spirits, restores the mental energies, imparts vigor to the system, removes the effects of tobacco, mercurial medicines, and many maladies without mentioning, by the female, unnatural, or too close application to labor of any kind, or quickly removed by its action, and better enjoyed in sedentary occupations, and subjected to the most unfavorable climates, will find it a safe and healthy stimulant. Where the functions of the blood is stagnant, or any of the functions of the body are suspended or imperfectly performed, it will restore the natural action and communicate permanent energy to the secretive and distributive organs.

CAUTION.

DR. MOSES'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL has been counterfeited by some unprincipled persons.

In future all the genuine Cordial will have the proprietor's facsimile pasted over the cork of each bottle, and the following signature blown in the glass:

DR. MOSES'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL.
C. H. RING, PROPRIETOR, N. Y.

The Cordial is put up, highly concentrated, in pint bottles.

Price $2 per bottle, two for $3, six for $10.
C. H. RING, Proprietor, No. 184 Broadway, New-York.

☞ New-York City Literary Union.—The first Quarterly Session of this Union of Literary Societies will be held next week, in the Lecture Room of the Mercantile Library Association, Clinton-place, commencing on TUESDAY EVENING, and continuing for three successive evenings.

The following Societies take part in the exercises: The Hamilton Literary Union, Metropolitan Debating Society, Columbia Debating Society (of Jersey City), Lyceum Literary Society, Clinton Union, and Pro Bono Society.

Question for Debate the second evening—Do the interests of the times demand the existence and support of an exclusively American Party? The public are invited to attend.

DOUGLAS LIVINGSTONE, President.
D. CRAWFORD, Secretary, pro tem.

☞ A Whisper to the Ladies.

Are your cheeks with pimples marred?
Is your brow with freckles starred?
Are there blotches on your neck?
Or does the tell-tale speak?
Is your skin of sallow tint?
If so, we would gently hint,
Beauty may again be yours,
Use the Balm of Thousand Flowers.

For sale by Fetridge & Co., Boston; C. H. RING, No. 184 Broadway. Price 50 cents.

☞ Special Attraction at New-Haven, Conn.—The first Annual Show of the Connecticut State Agricultural Society will be held at New-Haven on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday (Oct. 10, 11, 12). Extensive arrangements are completed for the exhibition of all varieties of Stock, Agricultural and Mechanical productions, &c. A fine track of half a mile has been laid for the exhibition of horses.

The several Railroads centering in New-Haven will bring stock and articles for exhibition free of charge.

☞ South Williamsburg.—The members of this Association are informed that there will be a meeting held at No. 184 Rutledge-st. TUESDAY EVENING, Oct. 3, at which time all the 3 cents that have not been paid for in full will be sold at auction, to pay the assessments due thereon. It is expected that several of the most eligible building sites in the village will be offered, affording an unusually fine opportunity for members or others to make a profitable investment. MARK A. WILKES, Vice President.

BENJ. W. WILSON, Secretary.

☞ Daily Times Guard.—ATTENTION.—The above Company will meet at the Drill-room, Centre Market, THIS AFTERNOON, at 4 o'clock, for the purpose of drill and other business. Punctual attendance by all the members is earnestly requested. By order of THOMAS DOWNIE, Captain.

J. A. JONES, Orderly Sergeant.

☞ The Regular Weekly Public Meeting of the Second Ward Whig Association will be held at their rooms, No. 179 Bowery, on MONDAY EVENING, Oct. 6, at 7½ o'clock. The public is respectfully invited to attend. JOHN WILSON, President.
CHAS. YOUNG, Secretary.

☞ A Know-Nothing.—FREE SHOW, at No. 449 Broadway, N. Y.—The HAPPY FAMILY and a KNOW-NOTHING in the CAGE. Go and see the Know-Nothing.

WANTED.

SITUATIONS WANTED.—A young married couple wish situations together in some respectable family; they have no incumbrance; the man is fit for groom or gardener or understands farming, and would be willing to make himself generally useful, if required; the wife is a good plain cook, first-rate washer and ironer, and understands dairying perfectly. The best of references given. No objection to City or country. Call at No. 27 Hill-st., near 2d-av. Can be seen for two days.

SITUATIONS WANTED.—By two Protestant young Germans; one to cook, wash and iron; the other for housework; has excellent baker. Can give best of City references. Also, a Protestant orphan, 14 years old, who is willing to go to a respectable family for her board; she is a neat plain sewer, and accustomed to children. Can be highly recommended by ladies who have known her some time. May be seen till engaged at No. 209 7th-av.

SITUATION WANTED.—As chambermaid or waitress by a respectable, neat and intelligent young girl; has the best of recommendation from the lady she lived with. A respectable place more an object than wages. Address M. A. R., No. 499 12th-st., between Avenues A and B, in the Dry Goods Store.

SITUATIONS WANTED.—As cook, and to wash and iron, or to do housework of a private family in one, and as a nurse, chambermaid, or as chambermaid and seamstress in the other. Two sisters; are experienced, and have excellent City references. Call at No. 78 8th-av., in the bookstore.

SITUATIONS WANTED.—As chambermaid and seamstress, or as chambermaid and fine laundress, in a private family by a very experienced girl, with good City references; and as a good cook, and to wash and iron in another; very comes well recommended. Call at No. 78 8th-av., in the Bookstore.

SITUATION WANTED.—By an experienced woman, who is a member of the Episcopal Church, as housekeeper in a gentleman's family, or as ladies' school in this City, the best of reply, or unexceptionable given. Apply at No. 199 East 12th-st.

SITUATION WANTED.—By a respectable girl as chambermaid and to assist in making and mending; is willing to make herself generally useful. Can be seen until engaged at her last place, No. 127 West 14th-st.

SITUATIONS WANTED.—To cook, wash and iron, or do general domestic work, by two tidy, active girls, with good City references. Call at No. 210 Sullivan-st., front basement.

SITUATION WANTED.—By a respectable young German woman, as wet nurse. Call at No. 215 1st-av.

PROTESTANT YOUNG WOMAN.—Wanted immediately, in a clergyman's family in the country, to do general housework; must understand washing and ironing. Family of only two persons. Good references required. Address H., Box No. —, at this office.

PROTESTANT GIRL WANTED.—An American or Scotch or English Protestant Girl, as assistant and chamberwoman, in a family of two. Call at No. 1 Amity-place, near Carmine-st., South Brooklyn, between the hours of 9 and 12 A. M. Good references required.

AN AMERICAN OR GERMAN GIRL WANTED.—One who understands general housework and wishes to go West, with all the advantages of a good permanent home, may apply at No. 56 Livingston-st., Brooklyn, from 8 A. M. till 1 P. M.

HOUSEKEEPER.—Wanted, by a young lady of high respectability and good family, a situation to superintend and take charge of a gentleman's house. Has had experience, and would take an interest in making her easy. Would not object to leave the City, and can produce and will receive references of the first respectability. Address A. T., General Post-Office, ladies' window.

HOUSEKEEPER.—A lady, a resident of Boston, Mass., of the highest respectability, wishes a situation in a private family as housekeeper; is well qualified to take charge of a gentleman's house, or would have no objection to travel as a companion to an invalid lady. The best of references given and required. Address H. V., No. 429 Broadway, or at this office.

COMPANION.—A young lady, of agreeable manners and well connected, to an elderly lady or invalid. Compensation not so much an object as a pleasant home for the sister. References of unexceptionable character. For further information address COMPANION, General Post Office, ladies' window.

TO CHURCHES WANTING AN ALTO SINGER.—A young lady, possessing a thorough musical education, and and read at sight; who has capacity of voice for a large church, would like to make the area of music for that purpose; also can, if required, preside at the organ in the absence of the organist. For sale, an Organ with four stops suitable for a church or parlor, which will be sold for $150 cash. Address Box No. 2,081, Post-Office.

TEACHER.—A young man of classical education and who has already had a successful experience in teaching the French, (his native tongue,) and Italian Languages, Drawing and the Classics, is desirous of obtaining a situation either in a private family or school. Apply at Mr. BORSALLI, bookseller, No. 777 Broadway.

TEACHER.—A lady experienced in teaching wishes a situation in a private family to teach the English branches and music. The best of references given. Address M. M., office of the New-York Daily Times.

FOUR MACHINE AND SIX HOUSE CARPENTERS WANTED, FOR TORONTO, CANADA.—Constant employment and the highest wages will be given to the advertiser to the above number of one carpenter. None but steady and good workmen need apply. GEO. K. BURGOWS, Builder and Machine Carpenter, Toronto, Canada. For references apply to

J. J. GARCIONE, No. 279 Pearl-st., New-York.

TWO GERMAN GIRLS.—Two Scotch, and one English girl, are at No. 14 6th-av., wanting situations. Wanted, a young woman to travel to the West Indies to children; maid. Apply as above.

MALE AND FEMALE HELP of all kinds may be obtained at the office of the AMERICAN AND FOREIGN REGISTRY, PROTECTION AND EMPLOYMENT BUREAU, No. 20 Greenwich-st., and No. 128 Sudbury-st., corner of Broadway.

WANTED.

SITUATIONS WANTED.—A young married couple wish situations together in some respectable family; they have no incumbrance; the man is fit for groom or gardener or understands farming, and would be willing to make himself generally useful, if required; the wife is a good plain cook, first-rate washer and ironer, and understands dairying perfectly. The best of references given. No objection to City or country. Call at No. 27 Hill-st., near 2d-av. Can be seen for two days.

SITUATIONS WANTED.—By two Protestant young Germans; one to cook, wash and iron; the other for housework; has excellent baker. Can give best of City references. Also, a Protestant orphan, 14 years old, who is willing to go to a respectable family for her board; she is a neat plain sewer, and accustomed to children. Can be highly recommended by ladies who have known her some time. May be seen till engaged at No. 209 7th-av.

SITUATION WANTED.—As chambermaid or waitress by a respectable, neat and intelligent young girl; has the best of recommendation from the lady she lived with. A respectable place more an object than wages. Address M. A. R., No. 499 12th-st., between Avenues A and B, in the Dry Goods Store.

SITUATIONS WANTED.—As cook, and to wash and iron, or to do housework of a private family in one, and as a nurse, chambermaid, or as chambermaid and seamstress in the other. Two sisters; are experienced, and have excellent City references. Call at No. 78 8th-av., in the bookstore.

SITUATIONS WANTED.—As chambermaid and seamstress, or as chambermaid and fine laundress, in a private family by a very experienced girl, with good City references; and as a good cook, and to wash and iron in another; very comes well recommended. Call at No. 78 8th-av., in the Bookstore.

SITUATION WANTED.—By an experienced woman, who is a member of the Episcopal Church, as housekeeper in a gentleman's family, or as ladies' school in this City, the best of reply, or unexceptionable given. Apply at No. 199 East 12th-st.

SITUATION WANTED.—By a respectable girl as chambermaid and to assist in making and mending; is willing to make herself generally useful. Can be seen until engaged at her last place, No. 127 West 14th-st.

SITUATIONS WANTED.—To cook, wash and iron, or do general domestic work, by two tidy, active girls, with good City references. Call at No. 210 Sullivan-st., front basement.

SITUATION WANTED.—By a respectable young German woman, as wet nurse. Call at No. 215 1st-av.

PROTESTANT YOUNG WOMAN.—Wanted immediately, in a clergyman's family in the country, to do general housework; must understand washing and ironing. Family of only two persons. Good references required. Address H., Box No. —, at this office.

PROTESTANT GIRL WANTED.—An American or Scotch or English Protestant Girl, as assistant and chamberwoman, in a family of two. Call at No. 1 Amity-place, near Carmine-st., South Brooklyn, between the hours of 9 and 12 A. M. Good references required.

AN AMERICAN OR GERMAN GIRL WANTED.—One who understands general housework and wishes to go West, with all the advantages of a good permanent home, may apply at No. 56 Livingston-st., Brooklyn, from 8 A. M. till 1 P. M.

HOUSEKEEPER.—Wanted, by a young lady of high respectability and good family, a situation to superintend and take charge of a gentleman's house. Has had experience, and would take an interest in making her easy. Would not object to leave the City, and can produce and will receive references of the first respectability. Address A. T., General Post-Office, ladies' window.

HOUSEKEEPER.—A lady, a resident of Boston, Mass., of the highest respectability, wishes a situation in a private family as housekeeper; is well qualified to take charge of a gentleman's house, or would have no objection to travel as a companion to an invalid lady. The best of references given and required. Address H. V., No. 429 Broadway, or at this office.

COMPANION.—A young lady, of agreeable manners and well connected, to an elderly lady or invalid. Compensation not so much an object as a pleasant home for the sister. References of unexceptionable character. For further information address COMPANION, General Post Office, ladies' window.

TO CHURCHES WANTING AN ALTO SINGER.—A young lady, possessing a thorough musical education, and and read at sight; who has capacity of voice for a large church, would like to make the area of music for that purpose; also can, if required, preside at the organ in the absence of the organist. For sale, an Organ with four stops suitable for a church or parlor, which will be sold for $150 cash. Address Box No. 2,081, Post-Office.

TEACHER.—A young man of classical education and who has already had a successful experience in teaching the French, (his native tongue,) and Italian Languages, Drawing and the Classics, is desirous of obtaining a situation either in a private family or school. Apply at Mr. BORSALLI, bookseller, No. 777 Broadway.

TEACHER.—A lady experienced in teaching wishes a situation in a private family to teach the English branches and music. The best of reference given. Address M. M., office of the New-York Daily Times.

FOUR MACHINE AND SIX HOUSE CARPENTERS WANTED, FOR TORONTO, CANADA.—Constant employment and the highest wages will be given to the advertiser to the above number of one carpenter. None but steady and good workmen need apply. GEO. K. BURGOWS, Builder and Machine Carpenter, Toronto, Canada. For references apply to

J. J. GARCIONE, No. 279 Pearl-st., New-York.

TWO GERMAN GIRLS.—Two Scotch, and one English girl, are at No. 14 6th-av., wanting situations. Wanted, a young woman to travel to the West Indies to children; maid. Apply as above.

MALE AND FEMALE HELP of all kinds may be obtained at the office of the AMERICAN AND FOREIGN REGISTRY, PROTECTION AND EMPLOYMENT BUREAU, No. 20 Greenwich-st., and No. 128 Sudbury-st., corner of Broadway.

WANTED.

A GENTLEMAN WANTED.—Two hundred copies to canvass with the exception of 8 cents a copy, with the exception of 8 cents a copy, with the article with an agent, [illegible] by the very act of [illegible] A. ROBINSON, Clinton-st., Brookly

NEW-YORK CITY.

Board of Aldermen—Monday, Oct. 6.

The President, Darwin L. Sherman, Esq., in the Chair.

The first order of business was the final reading of bills. The following were among the ones passed:

Paving Streets.—To flag Twenty-fourth-street between Ninth and Tenth-avenues; First-avenue, between Third and Sixth-streets; Thirty-ninth-street between Eighth and Ninth-avenues; Twelfth-street, between avenue C and Dry Dock-street; Delancy, between Kings and Pitt-streets; Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth-streets, between Sixth and Seventh-avenues; Mangin-street, Ninth street, between avenues C and D; Thirty-fifth-street, between Lexington and Fourth-avenues; Canal, between Broome and Delancy-streets; Twenty-third-street, between Third and Madison-avenues; corner of Bayard and Forsyth-streets; Eighty-fifth-street, between Tenth and Eleventh-avenues; Nineteenth-street, between Sixth and Fifth-avenues; Spring-street; Thirty-second-street, between Sixth and Seventh-avenues; Madison street, between Montgomery and Gouverneur-streets; Sheriff, between Broome and Rivington-street; Twenty-seventh-street, between Sixth-avenue and Hudson-street; Ninth-avenue, between Thirtieth and Thirty-fifth-streets; Elder-street, between Rivington and Delancy-streets; Thirty-ninth-street, between Third and Fourth-avenues; Attorney-street.

Fencing Lots.—To fence Lots in Thirty-third-street, between Seventh and Eighth-avenues; corner of Thirty-fourth-street and Sixth-avenue; in Twenty-third-street, between Seventh and Eighth-avenues; Fifteenth-street between First-avenue and Avenue A; Second and Third-avenues, and Thirteenth and Fourteenth-streets; Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth-streets, and Sixth and Seventh-avenues; Thirty-fourth-street, between Tenth and Eleventh-avenues; Thirty-third-street between Seventh and Eighth-avenues; No. 149 Third-street; Sixth-avenue, between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth-streets; Second-avenue between Thirty-sixth and Thirty-seventh-streets; Thirty-third-street between Lexington and Third-avenue; Thirty-second-street between Ninth and Eleventh-avenues; Ninth-avenue between Thirtieth and Thirty-first-streets; Thirty-first-street between Broadway and Fifth-avenue; Thirty-fourth-street between Seventh-avenue and Broadway; corner of Seventh-avenue and Twenty-second-street; Fifteenth-street between First and Second-avenues.

Lighting Streets with Gas.—To light with Gas the following streets: Theatre-alley; Oyster-alley between Water and South-streets; Thirty-fifth-street between Lexington and Fourth-avenues; Twenty-sixth-street between Third-avenue and East River; Twenty-seventh-street between Fifth and Madison-avenues; Ninth-avenue, between Thirty-third and Forty-fourth-streets; Thirtieth street between First and Second-avenues.

Fire Department.—To build an Engine for Engine Company No. 50; to build a new house for Hook and Ladder Company No. 5; to build an Engine for Engine Company No. 3.

Regulating Streets.—To regulate Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth-streets between Fourth and Lexington-avenues; Thirty-third-street between Tenth and Eleventh-avenues; Thirty-sixth-street between Tenth and Eleventh-avenues.

Grading Streets.—To grade Fifty-fourth-street.

Filling Sunken Lots.—To fill sunken lots in the Eighteenth, Twentieth, and Nineteenth Wards.

Sewers.—To construct sewers in Second-avenue between First-avenue and the Bowery; Greenwich-street from Murray-street through Barclay to East River; Grand-street between Lewis-street and East River; also a basin and culvert corner of Avenue A and Fifth-street.

Donations.—To donate $100 to the New-York Female Magdalen Asylum; $150 to Robert V. Mackey for injuries received while at a fire.

Constructing Piers.—To construct a pier at the foot of Twenty-fourth-street, East River.

Miscellaneous.—To remove wreck of Joseph Walker from foot of Dover-street; to place a well and pump on Sixty-fifth-street between First and Second-avenues.

The Board adjourned to meet on Monday next.

The Harlem Railroad Accident.

The inquest on the body of JOHN STARRS, who was run over by one of the freight trains of cars of the Harlem Railroad Company on Wednesday last, was held yesterday at the Bellevue Hospital by Coroner HILTON.

After hearing the evidence the jury rendered a verdict that he came to his death by fracture of the leg by being run over by a freight car of the Harlem Railroad. The deceased was twenty-three years of age and a native of Pennsylvania.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

COURT CALENDAR—SATURDAY, OCT. 7.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT—Motions.
SUPREME COURT—Special Term—Motions.
SUPERIOR COURT—Motions.
COMMON PLEAS—Part 1—Adjourned to Tuesday. Part II—Nos. 682, 1316, 1334 to 1339, 1341 to 1346, 1348.

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM.—Oct. 6.

Before Hon. Judge Morris.

The Habeas Corpus case reported in the TIMES of yesterday, involving a right to the custody of children, which was adjourned to yesterday morning at 11 o'clock, was again postponed until Wednesday next, at 10 A.M., at the request of Mr. Fullerton who had another engagement.

ORDERS:

Carlisle vs. McCall—Motion granted with $10 costs.
Watt vs. Parker—Order of 30th Oct. confirmed.

Before Hon. Judge Clerke.

Hopkins vs. Bryce.—Motion for a receiver granted, and motion to dissolve injunction denied.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

OCTOBER TERM—Fifth Day, Oct. 6.

Before Hon. Recorder Tillou.

The Court was occupied yesterday in trying two cases ordinary enough in their nature, but which were rendered interesting by the testimony, and in the second instance by the manner in which the testimony was elicited.

ASSAULT OF A HUSBAND ON HIS WIFE—A REGULAR TERMAGANT.

Abby Sears was sworn: Her testimony was as follows:—I was married Feb. 22, 1853; I have not lately lived in the same house with my husband; before we lived altogether apart, we did not occupy the same room; my baby was born in February last; my husband paid my board-money till within the last two months; on Aug. 2 he came to the daguerreotype rooms of Mr. Phillips, No. 111 Bowery, where I was working, and asked to see the child; I told him he should not see it, whereupon he seized me by the arms and threw me against a hack-rest used by daguerreotypists; I was hurt in the back, and could hardly walk the next day; I cried out at the time, and a boy came up, whom I sent for an officer; my husband ran out of the room, and was arrested the next day.

Cross-examined by Mr. Ahern, the counsel for the prisoner:—After marriage, we kept house in several places; at last we broke up housekeeping, and went to board in Chrystie-street; afterwards we were in White-street; my husband was sick once during this time, but we hardly had not occupied the same room; I never swore to be revenged upon him; never said I would stab him; never said I gave him "a crack" with a hair-brush; never threatened to poison him or to take his life; never told Mr. and Mrs. Dean that I would either kill him or send him to the State Prison; I don't wish to live with him; he is not a man for any woman to live with; I never saw him drunk; he does not drink; by occupation he is a stage-driver; I am a daguerreotypist; when he came to the gallery of my employer, in the Bowery, he came to see the child; I would not let him carry it, because for a month he had not supported it.

By Assistant District Attorney—He has thrown me down once before; he was jealous of me, and hurt my ankle by taking them up.

Mr. Ahern stated that this case was one that is too frequent; wherein husband is robbed and driven to desertion, and wife is illegitimated thereby. His client had paid his wife's board, notwithstanding her general bad conduct, until she threatened to send him to the Sheriff. Friday, that she might get a divorce, and marry another husband. She further went to see his own child, and the mother refused. The District Attorney had seen that this case was a flagrant one. Yet, he was glad that it was a case like this—one of those where a wife maliciously deprives her husband of his child. Most wives, in the Court, did have, when their husbands had been arrested for assault upon them, done after they, by complaints, to have mercy to the husbands who were in prison.

Abbie Sears testified by Mr. Ahern:—I live at No. 102 Elizabeth-street; I know Mr. and Mrs. Swan; they have frequently threatened her husband; she has told me and my husband that she would poison him, if he was not a fool; she was charged with hitting him; she said, "I wonder what she struck him, he should not take back;" she wished me to tell him that the rent of the rooms was $4 instead of $3, and to give him the difference; and the same difference in the price of their board. Swan was a drinking man; the once got a carving and conveyed all his furniture, which she sold; she sold all for the straw that was in the bed; she carried away the covering of the straw, and left only the straw for him to sleep upon when he returned from a long and hard day's work at midnight.

By Assistant District Attorney—She used to beat him violently; I once saw her throw tea to pieces by the throwing she had given him; she beat him with a tin wash-boiler, battering the boiler all to pieces, while she called him by the vilest of names.

The District Attorney said he should not press for a conviction in the case, and the jury instantly acquitted the prisoner.

CHARGE OF GRAND LARCENY—INTERESTING TESTIMONY.

Joseph Woodworth was charged with stealing a gold watch worth $100 from Mrs. Catherine Bell, the keeper of a boarding-house at No. 108 Hudson-street, on the evening of Decembers. The prosecutrix testified that the prisoner was a boarder in her house at the time the watch was missed. The prisoner was detected in the act of [illegible] the watch, and was arrested in the house, and taken to the station-house; [illegible]

On Sunday afternoon, Aug. 31, I was sitting in my parlor, with my friend Mrs. Davis and Mr. Woodworth; I opened a tin box, in which I kept daguerreotypes, trinkets, letters, and the watch in question; I showed the watch to Mrs. Davis, who handled it; Mr. Woodworth; while Mr. Woodworth was examining it, the bell of the street door rang, and, my servant being busy, I went to open it; three ladies came in; I stepped into the hall, speaking to them; when they went away, the door-bell rang, and I hurried to go round to the table; I locked up the box without seeing whether the watch had been replaced, and I did not think anything more about it till the following Wednesday evening, when I was preparing to go to church; I then wanted my watch, and on opening the box, found it gone.

The prosecutrix was rigidly and somewhat irrelevantly cross-examined by Mr. Spalding, for upwards of an hour and a half. Mr. Spalding was frequently censured by the Court for the nature of his questions, which bore, by inuendo, on the character of the prosecutrix, and of the house which she kept. We regret that we have not space for a portion of this cross-examination. Among other things, she said that the prisoner had represented himself to be the head bookkeeper of the Astor House, and that when he was charged with taking the watch, he suggested that a servant, who had just left the house, must have taken it; because, said he, "Mrs. Bell, Mary was red-headed, and all red-headed people are dishonest; my mother had a red-headed servant, who robbed her of spoons, knives, forks, sheets, blankets, everything; red-headed Mary was your match." Mrs. Bell, in the course of her evidence, said she was very delicate in asking boarders for money, because, she remarked, "Gentlemen always leave when their week is up," a remark which the Assistant District Attorney approvingly corroborated.

It seemed from the lengthy and protracted evidence, according to the prosecutrix, that the prisoner owed two week's board before the watch was missed. The morning after he had examined it he went out before breakfast, which was an unusual thing with him; afterwards he paid the prosecutrix $10, and seemed to have plenty of money left. He was called for the watch on the Thursday morning; he did not call another week in the house after he was thus asked; he slept in the house on Thursday night, but on that night his goods were mysteriously removed, and he never came there again. He was arrested on the following Sunday. He said he had had a letter from his mother, containing money, and he wrote a letter to Mrs. Bell, stating that his mother was sick, and he must go into the country to see her.

For the defence it was proved by Rebecca Reed, that Mrs. Bell and Mrs. Davis had both confessed that they could not remember whether the watch was or was not restored to the box on the Sunday evening that it was shewn to Mr. Woodworth. This witness had also heard Mrs. Bell say that she took of the box was broken, but that she could not say whether she had done it herself in unlocking it, or not; Mrs. Bell had a mysterious gentleman, whom she called her brother, that used to sleep in the house on occasions, and have his breakfast taken up to Mrs. Bell's bedroom in the morning; a great many gentlemen used to call at the house. It subsequently appeared that this witness had been expelled from the house for conduct not to be named to ears polite.

Another witness for the defence was Catherine Brown, who testified to strange doings in Mrs. Bell's house. She had known Mr. Woodworth and Mrs. Davis locked in a room together; she was one of the ladies who called on Mrs. Bell, on the day the watch was alleged to have been stolen, when Mrs. Bell went to open the door; Mrs. Bell had sworn that she talked to these ladies ten minutes in the hall leaving Mr. Woodworth in the room with the watch, whereas this witness swore that they did not speak for one half-minute with Mrs. Bell, but passed up stairs immediately she opened the door.

Several very respectable witnesses were called to testify to the character of the prisoner. They had mostly known him and his family many years, and all gave him an excellent character.

Catherine Woodworth, the prisoner's mother, was then placed on the stand. She testified to having sent her son money before the day on which the watch was alleged to have been stolen, and also, two days after, but before it was missed.

Mr. Spalding addressed the Jury for the prisoner, at some length, and commented on the insufficiency of the evidence. The watch had never been found; and if it was ever taken, why might not others have taken it? The witnesses had contradicted Mrs. Bell's testimony in many important particulars.

The Assistant District Attorney replied very ably, bringing the facts of the case very lucidly together, after which the Recorder proceeded to address the Jury. At a late hour the latter had not rendered their verdict. The examination occupied several hours.

FIRST DISTRICT COURT.

Before Judge Conover.

TRYING A SET OFF.

Michael Silk against Daniel L. Pettie.—This action was brought to recover the sum of $64 80 for iron sold and delivered the defendant.

The plaintiff proved by Thomas Silk, his father, that he, witness, sold defendant through his agent, Wm. H. Wilson, a lot of old iron at $35 a ton, to be sent for by the defendant, and that defendant sent for and took it away; it was to have been paid for in cash on delivery. He sold the iron from the plaintiff's place, and where he had transacted business for several years, and was the property of the plaintiff at the time of the sale, and had never belonged to witness. The plaintiff then called as a witness Wm. H. Wilson, the agent, who swore that he weighed the iron and found it to weigh about one ton and a half; it amounted in value to within about a dollar or two of a judgment defendant has against witness Silk, which was $40; witness, on his cross-examination, said that he was to send over carts for the iron; I did so; and when the iron was brought the witness Silk told him that the iron belonged to himself; I did not agree to pay cost on delivery; witness Silk first came for the money and told the defendant he was out and we could not then pay him; he called again the next day, when we told him we would set off the judgment against the claim.

The Judge decided that the judgment against the witness Silk could not be set-off against the plaintiff's account, as the iron sold belonged to the the latter at the time of the sale, and was sold from his usual place of business, so that the defendant as his agent, could not then have been deceived as to the ownership. The alleged representation of witness Silk was not made until after the sale and did not form any inducement for him to purchase.

The Court therefore ordered judgment for the plaintiff for $32.50 damages and costs of suit.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT—Oct. 5.

Before Judge Betts.

James McDonald and four others, seamen on board the ship John Rutledge, and indicted for an endeavor to make a revolt, whatever their plea of "Not guilty," and pleading "Guilty," were sentenced to fifteen days' imprisonment.

The entire day was occupied in the trial of Edward Brown, for counterfeiting—Mr. Clinton summing up the case for the accused, and the U. S. District Attorney for the prosecution. The Judge charged the Jury at some length. They had not brought in a verdict at the adjournment of the Court.

OCT. 6.—The Jury came in at the opening of Court this morning, having been out all night, and stated that it was impossible for them to agree, whereupon the Court ordered them to be discharged. The Court then adjourned.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

Before Judge Daly.

John A. Meehad vs. Charles Morris.—In this case the Jury had not agreed at the hour of adjournment, and a sealed verdict was ordered for Saturday morning.

LONG ISLAND.

Brooklyn Court Calendar.

General Term Calendar, (Brooklyn,) for this day, Nos. 107, 21, 28, 32, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 46, 47, 48.

MARKET REPORTS.

Markets—Carefully reported for the N. Y. Daily Times.

FRIDAY, Oct. 6—6 P. M.

ASHES—There were 50 bbls. sold, to-day, at 6¾ for Pots, and 6c @6c 25 for Pearls, ⅌ 100 lbs.; indicating an unaltered market.

BRICKS—Good Hard North River are in moderate supply and fair demand, at $4 ⅌ 1,000.

COTTON—Has not varied. The steamer's news is considered unfavorable,—but it does not discourage owners; 1,000 bales were reported as having been disposed of, to-day, within our range:

NEW-YORK CLASSIFICATION.

	Upland.	Mobile.
Ordinary to good. ⅌ lb.	7½@ 8	7½@ 8
Low Middling	8½@ 8½	8½@ 8
Middling	9 @9½	9 @9½
Good Middling	9½@ 9¾	9½@10
Middling Fair	10 @10½	10½@11
Fair	11 @11½	11½@12

FEATHERS—Prime Live Geese continue quiet, but firm at 45c. @48c. for Western, and 45c. @50c. for Southern, ⅌ lb.

FISH—Dry Cod are still abundant and rather cheaper. 1,700 qtls. have been purchased since our last at $3 50@$3 75 ⅌ cwt. Large Mackerel are scarce and wanted at $18 for No. 1, $16 for No. 2, and $9 for No. 3 ⅌ bbl. Small Mackerel and Pickled Herring are unchanged. Some 1,400 boxes Smoked Herring found buyers at 50c. @75c. for scaled, and 25c. @30c. for No. 1, ⅌ box.

FLOUR AND MEAL—State and Western brands are even less freely offered and are 12½ cts. ⅌ bbl. higher. The steamer's accounts are encouraging, but they have not, as yet, occasioned any export purchases. The rates current at the other side do not equal those prevailing here, and the orders by the Canada are limited to a range of prices, which are far below the claims of our factors. There are the reasons why no alluring inquiry worth noticing, exists. The Eastern and local demand is good. The days transactions comprise near 10,000 bbls. We quote:

Superfine	$6 00 @$6 25
Extra, No. 2	6 12½@ 6 62½
Inferior State	6 75 @ 6 87½
Ordinary State	6 87½@ 7 12½
Straight State	7 12½@ 7 25
Favorite State	7 25 @ 7 50
Mixed Western	7 25 @ 7 37½
Common to good Western and Michigan	7 37½@ 7 50
Fancy Michigan	7 50 @ —
Common to good Ohio	7 25 @ 7 50
Fancy Ohio	7 50 @ 7 62½
Extra Ohio	7 75 @ 8 75
Extra Indiana and Michigan	7 50 @ 8 00
Fancy Genesee	7 37½@ 7 62½
Extra Genesee	8 00 @ 9 25

Canadian is rare, and now held at $7 50, in bond, ⅌ bbl., but there is nothing doing in it. Southern is brisk and buoyant. The day's Business includes 2,900 bbls., chiefly at $7 37½@$7 67½ for mixed to good, and $7 87½@$8 50 for favorite to fancy and extra, ⅌ bbl. We have nothing new to notice in Rye Flour or Corn Meal.

GRAIN—Wheat is even less abundant, and is held with greater firmness, but it is not active, though millers are making pretty earnest inquiries for desirable parcels. We have only to report sales of 4,600 bushels good Red and Mixed Southern, at $1 50@$1 52½, mostly at the latter rate. Rye is without essential change. There have been 2,800 bushels Rivet obtained at $1 17. Barley remains as last noticed. State and Western Oats are in fair demand, at 45c. @46c., according to quality.

[illegible]

GROCERIES—Are best active, yet firm. The stocks have been somewhat [illegible] Sugar at Sterling and 10½@10¾c. for Cuba, 10¾@11c. for Porto Rico, and 11@11½c. for Havana. Molasses is 2½@3 gallon; 150 hhds. do. Sugar at Sterling, and 200 Cuba do., chiefly to go out of the market, at 10½@10¾c. ⅌ lb. Teas remain as last represented.

HAY—Continues in active demand. The day's sales reach 2,800 bales River at 80c. for shipment and 70@75c. for local use ⅌ 100 lbs.

HOPS—No improvement is discernible in this line. Small lots bringing 30@40c. for new, and 15@20c. for old ⅌ lb.

LATHS—Eastern still sell readily at $3 37½c. ⅌ thousand. The stock continues limited.

LIME—Rockland is in fair demand, at 90c. for Common, and $1 20 for Lump ⅌ barrel.

METALS—Copper is quiet, yet firm. There were 250 tons Scotch Pig iron disposed of during the day, at $36 50@$37 50, usual credit, per ton,—showing a slight improvement in the market. Lead is in moderate request, at 6¾@6¾c. for Spanish; 6¾ 37½@6¾ 50 for English and German, and 6¾ 62½@6¾ 75 for Galena, ⅌ 100 lbs. The supplies are not large. Steel and Tin are unchanged. We subjoin a comparative statement of the value of the imports of Metals, during the three months ending with September 30:

	1854.	1855.
Copper	$ 177,600	$ 25,070
Sheathing	143,549	250,288
Iron, bar	1,001,695	1,451,332
Iron, pig	274,461	343,127
Iron, railroad	1,563,022	1,566,413
Iron, sheet	159,258	153,002
Lead	450,250	631,705
Spelter	3,002	138,136
Steel	303,060	406,459
Tin	678,702	1,013,003
Zinc	125,534	150,760

NAVAL STORES—Crude Turpentine is scarce and quiet at $4 75@$4 87½ ⅌ 280 lbs. There were 250 bbls. Spirits do. sold at 54c., 90 days' credit, ⅌ gallon. Tar remains quite [illegible] supply and held above the views of most buyers.

OILS—Crude Whale and Sperm are rather more inquired for, but are unchanged in value. Manufactured kinds are in moderate request at steady rates. Other descriptions appear quiet, yet firm. Sales transpired of 100 baskets Olive at $1 30 each, and some small lots of Linseed, from store, at 74c. @75c. ⅌ gallon.

PROVISIONS—Pork is in pretty good demand at about previous figures. The day's transactions embrace 700 bbls. at $19 50@$19 75, and 1,000 bbls. Prime on terms not disclosed. Cutmeats are without essential variation. Lard is very active and rapidly [illegible]. There were 175 bbls. fair to strictly prime Western at 10½c. @10½c. ⅌ lb. Beef is inactive and declining in value. Only 125 bbls. changed hands to-day, at $11 for Country Mess, $14@14 50 for City do.; $15@$15 50 for repacked Chicago, do.; and $16@$18 25 for extra do. ⅌ bbl. Prime Mess Beef and Beef Hams have not varied. Butter is not so brisk at 21c. @22c. for Ohio, 17c. @20c. for Western New-York, and 21c. @24c. for Orange Co., ⅌ lb. Cheese is moderately inquired for at 9c. @10½c., ⅌ lb.

RICE—Sales of 100 tierces fair to good were effected at $3 25@$3 75 ⅌ 100 lbs.

SEEDS—Clover is in rather better request at 11c. @12½c. ⅌ lb. Flax and Timothy rule scarce and quiet. Their value is uncertain.

SPICES—Some demand exists for No. 1 Nutmegs at $1@$1 05; Mace at $1; Cassia, in mats, at 32c. @35c.; Cloves at 15c.; and Sumatra Pepper at 10½c. ⅌ lb.

TALLOW—There have been 10,000 lbs. Prime taken at 12½c. ⅌ lb.

TOBACCO—Remains in fair request at steady prices. The past three days' sales include 125 hhds. Kentucky at 9½c. @9½c.; 165 cases State, Ohio, and Connecticut Seed Leaf at 9½c. @14c.; 325 bales Havana at 20c. @60c.; with 250 bales Baracoa, St. Jago, and Vuelta, 65c. to come St. Domingo, and 50 Amboina—the two last for export—on private terms.

WHISKEY—is dull and drooping. The day's business does not exceed 100 bbls. Ohio at 40c.; 150 Prison at 40c. @41c. cash, and 30 bbls. Drudge at 40c., time with interest added, ⅌ gallon.

FREIGHTS—For Liverpool, the engagements included 300 bales Cotton at ¼d. ⅌ lb.; and 30,000 bushels grain at 9½d., in bulk, and 9½d. in ship's bags, ⅌ bush. For London, there were taken 50 tons Oil Cake on private terms. For other European ports, we heard of no additional engagements. For Australia, the ship Niagara was filling up, and appointed to sail on the 20th; and the Queen Squall, having nearly completed her cargo, was expected to sail at an early day. For California, measurement goods were sparingly taken at 35c. ⅌ foot. The ship Queen Victoria was chartered to load with Lumber at Mobile for a port in France at 72s. 6d. for masts and spars, and 65s. 6d. for planks, &c.

WATCHES AND JEWELRY.

GOLD FOB CHAINS—FOR GENTLEMEN'S WEARS, 1, 2, 3 and 4 strand.....$14 to $25
LONG LINK FOB CHAINS.....10 to 20
BELCHER CHAINS.....10 to 20
FLAT LINK, PAD-FILLED.....15 to 40
CHASED LINK, FILLED.....11 to 20
FLAT LINK, ENGRAVED.....15 to 20
LONG LINK, DOUBLE.....12 to 20
LONG LINK, ENGRAVED.....10 to 20
WOVE FOB CHAINS.....10 to 20
CHASED AND FRESCOED FOB CHAINS.....12 to 25
And all other kinds of Fob Chains, Vest and Guard Chains for sale, at retail, at much less than the usual prices.
ALSO—A LARGE VARIETY OF GOLD PENS.
Importer of Watches and Jewelry, wholesale and retail, No. 11 Wall-st., 2d floor, near Broadway.

GOLD SHIRT STUDS—KNOW-NOTHING GETUPS.....$4 50 to $6
SARDONICS.....3 50 to 15
CAMEO.....3 50 to 15
ODD FELLOWS.....3 50 to 15
MASONIC.....3 50 to 15
GOLD STONE.....3 50 to 15
ONYX.....3 00 to 15
AGATE.....4 50 to 15
EMBOSSED GOLD.....2 50 to 15
PLAIN.....3 50 to 15
All descriptions of Studs at very prices.
GEORGE C. ALLEN, Importer,
No. 11 Wall-st., second floor, near Broadway.

GOLD WATCHES AND STERLING SILVER WARE, together with a rich assortment of DIAMONDS and all kinds of fine Gold Jewelry.
Below Judge Conover.
GOLD WATCHES, Patent Lever.....$20 to $40
SILVER WATCHES, Jewelled.....10 to 20
PLATED TEA SETS, double plated.....[illegible]
PLATED CAKE BASKETS.....5 to 20
All our goods are warranted to be as represented.
SQUIRE, LANDER & CO., No. 77 Fulton-st., N. Y.

INDEPENDENT SECOND WATCHES.—Very fine Lever watches, in gold and silver cases, full jewelled and plain, due time-keepers, for sale, wholesale and retail, at less than usual prices. G. C. ALLEN, No. 11 Wall-st., second floor, near Broadway, Importer of Watches and Jewelry.

PATENT LEVER WATCHES.—Fine English patent lever watches, in gold and silver cases, full jewelled and plain, due time-keepers, for sale, wholesale and retail, at less than usual prices. G. C. ALLEN, No. 11 Wall-st., second floor, near Broadway, Importer of Watches and Jewelry.

NOTICE TO GAS CONSUMERS—IMPORTANT REDUCTION IN THE COST OF GAS.—At the present season, when coals are rising in price, and winter, with its long evenings and dark days, is approaching, gas consumers are anxiously enquired to hear and will doubtless be pleased to learn, that a very important reduction, equal to about 40 per cent., is to be made in their gas bills by the adoption of the new system of Gas Manufacture, invented by F. FIRMIN of No. 84 Stewart, between 10th and 11th-sts., whose success at the largest works in this City are certainly entitled to the highest praise, and which is its results, assuring the most perfect light at smallest cost.
At the New-York Daily Times, where the Gas Regulator has been in operation and where the gas burners were of the best and most economical kind, where no one has any interest to deceive, FIRMIN'S system has effected a saving of 40 per cent. in Gas, and Aug. 1, 1854, and Feb. 1, 1855, the Gas Company charged in August and September, giving a better light of their Gas. Certificates, Editors' Rooms, Correspondence and Proofs.
All agree that the light on the new system is fully equal to their usual light, while it is usually certain that it costs nearly one half less. Consumers of Gas will rejoice to learn that this is by Gas Companies, as an exceptional case, but that, on the contrary, a saving of 75 to 100 per cent. on the necessary cost of the Gas is frequently effected.
At one of the largest hotels in this City, also at one of the largest Public Institutions in Brooklyn—the Naval Hospital—where greater savings and improvements have been effected, indeed, there is scarcely a Gas consumer who cannot be benefited by the system to a similar extent, the Gas Regulators having been applied, as they have been in all cases, with the same success.
At another large establishment a saving of 50 per cent. equal to about $4,000 per year, has been effected, in addition to a former 50 per cent. saved by FIRMIN'S GAS BURNERS, in conjunction with FIRMIN'S GAS REGULATOR, which, by the way, is a most valuable adjunct to effect 50 per cent. on the ordinary cost of the Gas, with a clearer and better light in every respect.
By FIRMIN'S system, any quality or quantity of light may be obtained and preserved invariable at any given pressure, or fluctuating without perceptibly influencing any other light in the same premises.
By this system, where the street pressure or supply has been deficient, it has been increased sufficiently to preserve almost perfect uniformity of supply, where all the experiments of gas burners, gas inspectors, patent burners, and tests have failed.
This system is not expensive, even at first cost, perfect operation of all burners, which need not necessarily be altered, is in no instance less than one inch; in most of cases where the light is deficient, it is increased by the mere introduction of the Regulator, without any other alteration whatever, no blowing off of the gas, no light pipes, no through the water-lowering of distinct regulators, no fancy contrivances to the light required, so far as ordinary gas is concerned, is the light required, so far as ordinary gas is concerned, is perfection in the light required, so far as ordinary gas is concerned.
FIRMIN'S system has removed the difficulty—the lights are now just as they should be—steadily sufficient, steady and pleasant, they are equable and steady, better and stronger than they were before the change.
AUG. 28, 1854. WM. P. CLAWSON.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the Comptroller's Office, for a loan of $500,000 of "PUBLIC BUILDING STOCK No. 2," authorized by an act of the Legislature of this State, passed June 12, 1854, and by an ordinance of the Common Council approved by the Mayor, Sept. 29, 1854. The said stock will embrace ONE THOUSAND SHARES, the par value of which will be $500 each share, and will be an interest bearing stock at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, payable quarter yearly; and the principal payable on the 1st day of November, 1865, and $50,000 on the 1st day of November, 1866. The proposals will state the number of shares desired, and the sum that will be paid for each share. The terms of payment, whose proposal shall be accepted, will be required to pay for the stock awarded to him, or them, within three days after being notified by this Department. Each proposal should be sealed up and addressed to the subscriber, "Proposals for Public Building Stock No. 2;" and the proposals thus sealed up and directed are to be opened on the 16th day of October, at noon, and directed to [illegible]
JACOB A. WESTERVELT, Mayor,
F. TILLOU, Recorder,
A. C. FLAGG, Comptroller,
W. M. EMMONS, Chamberlain,
WM. CHAUNCEY, Cty Finance Com. Bd. Ald.
WM. CUMMING, Cty Finance Com. Bd. Ass.
Board Cities, Department of Finance Comptroller's Office, New-York, Sept. 27, 1854.

FINANCE DEPARTMENT, New-York, Sept. 27, 1854.

NEW-YORK CITY BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

Dissolution and Wind-up Sales.
BOWEN, McNAMEE & CO. (Hay, A. Joh.) 113 Broadway.
French, Swiss and Germany Dry Goods.
ARCOUT WEYDEN (Importer).....10 Broad-st.
Dundee Linens, Sail Duck, &c.
CAMERON & SUTE (Importers).....[illegible] Broad-st.
WM. BRAND & CO. (Importers).....[illegible] and 14 Pine-st.
Linen, Military Goods, Embroideries and Trimmings.
S. SHAMLHEIM & CO. (Importers).....[illegible] Broadway.
Ladies' Dress Trimmings, Worth Wool, Fringes, Gimps, Tassels, Buttons, &c.
KOHLSAAT BRO'S. (Importers and Jobbers) 3 John-st.
CHAS. FRICKERS.....[illegible] Dey-st.
Gentlemen's Furnishing Goods.
J. M. DAVIES, JONES & CO., Inp. & Manf. 28 Warren-st.
C. E. HATCH & CO., (Imp'rs and Man'f.)....97 William-st.
Clothing and Furnishing Goods at Wholesale.
HANFORD & ERO.....20 Park-row, opposite Astor House.
French and German Fancy Baskets.
C. RINN & CO., No. 3 Middle-lane, Importers of French and German Fancy Traveling Baskets and Manufacturers of Cane and Colored Willow Furniture and Fancy Lead Workstands, &c.
Fancy Goods and Hosiery.
ENGELMANN & CO., No. 3 William-st., Fancy Goods, Buttons, Cotton and Woolen Hosiery. No cash buyers, only as we pay cash, not profit on the importing prices. For your own benefit call and see.
Architects.
F. DIAPER.....[illegible] Wall-st.
JOHN W. RITCH.....[illegible] Broadway, corner Bleecker-st.
Gold Leaf and Gold Foil.
J. L. WAUGH.....No. 113 Franklin-st.
Agricultural Warehouse.
R. L. ALLEN (late A. B. Allen & Co.) 189 and 191 Water-st.
Average Adjuster and Insurance Broker.
WALTER R. JONES, Jr.....[illegible] Wall-st.
Architects.
H. DANIELS (Landscape Gardener).....491 Broadway.
American and Foreign Rubber Goods.
UNION INDIA RUBBER CO., Manufactory 41 John-st.
American Soap Company.
Manufacturers Superior Family Soaps. 384 Washington-st.
Advertising Agents.
S. M. PETTENGILL & CO.....119 Nassau-st.
Beer and Ale Bazaar.
INGERSOLL'S.....[illegible] South-st.
From 200 to 300 kinds always on hand. A liberal discount allowed to those who buy to sell again.
Ballard's Premium Hair Dye.
The cheapest and best. For sale everywhere. O. M. BALLARD'S Improved Hair Dye, 355 Broadway, up stairs.
Brokers, Bill or Note.
D. M. FARNUM.....2 Jamacy-court, Wall-st.
GEO. C. SMALLEY.....62 Wall-st.
Booksellers and Publishers.
A. S. BARNES & CO. (National School Series) 51 John-st.
Britannia and Plated Ware, Cutlery, Japanning, &c.
J. & C. BERRIAN (Wholesale and Retail Dealers) 681 Broadway, Cooking Utensils, Tin, Wood and Willow Ware, Refrigerators, Meat Safes, &c.
Blacking and Inks.—Dunlap's Vegetable.
C. G. EVERITT, (sole Proprietor.) Manufacturing Chemist, 56 Gold-st. Sold by Druggists. Dealers in Fancy Goods, Perfumery, &c. Dunlap's Vegetable Blacking is unsurpassed in quality, superior to the best, cheaper than the cheapest; also Druggists Ink ware in general.
Carpetings.
PETERSON & HUMPHREY.....279 Broadway.
Druggists.
KINSLEY & DARLING, (Wholesale Dealers) 68 Fancy-st.
Daguerreotypes.
J. GURNEY.....349 Broadway.
The oldest and most extensive in the United States.
Defiance Safetymander Safes, and Goddin's Dead-lock Locks and Cross Bars.
ROBT. M. PATRICK (Manufacturer).....193 Pearl-st.
Dyeing Establishment.
BARRETT, NEPHEWS & CO., Staten Island Fancy Dyeing Establishment, 3 John-st., New-York.
Dentistry.
JOSEPH W. VER VALEN.....51 St. Mark's-place (4th-st.)
Engravers, (Wood.)
J. W. ORR, (the best work done here).....75 Nassau-st.
W. HOWLAND.....520 Broadway, above Astor House.
Encaustic Tiles and Garnskirk Chimney Tops.
MILLER, COATES & YOULE (Importers) 379 Pearl-st.
Expressers, Shipping Merchants.
EDWARDS, SANDFORD & CO. (Foreign) 34 Broadway.
Engravers, (Card.)
J. N. GIMBREDE, 548 Broadway and 5 Metropol'n Hotel.
HICKS & APPLICK.....193 Broadway, corner of Walker-st.
Lithographers.
GEORGE HAYWARD.....128 Water-st.
Doors, Sashes and Blinds.
N. P. KIMBALL, (Wholesale and Retail) 75 Beekman-st.
French Window Glass.
J. H. FOULON & CO. (Importers).....34 Barclay-st.
Fishing Tackle.
J. B. CROOKE & CO. (Imp'ts and Man'f's)....80 Fulton-st.
Furs.
C. G. GUNTHER & SONS, (Importers and Shippers,) No. 46 Maiden-lane.
Grate and Fender Makers.
W. H. JACKSON, (formerly W. & N. Jackson, & Sons,) No. 381 Broadway, one door above Walker-st.
Grindstones.
J. S. WHITNEY & CO.....4 South, and 32 Washington-st.
India Rubber Shoes, Whips, Clothing, Balls, &c.
NEWARK INDIA RUBBER Manuf. Co., 36 Maiden-lane.
Hardware, Cutlery, Edge Tools, &c.
C. S. LITTLE, (Imp. & General Dealer,) 21 & 24 Fulton-st.
Looking Glasses and Picture Frames.
JOHN S. WILLIAMS.....444 Pearl-st., near Chatham.
Law Booksellers and Publishers.
BANKS, GOULD & CO.....144 Nassau-st.
Lightning Rods.
A. M. QUIMBY & SON...122 East 27th-st. and 142 Nassau-sts.
Insulated Lightning Rods.
LYON Manufacturing Co., Insulated Lightning Conductors for buildings and ships, (Otis Patent).....343 Broadway.
Lamps and Gas Fixtures

AUCTION SALES.

ALBERT H. NICOLAY, Auctioneer.

SEVENTY-FOUR-HAM & OYSTER AUCTION.—GILBERT E. NICOLAY will sell, on TUESDAY, Oct. 10, at 12 precisely, on the ground, without reserve to the highest bidder, seventy desirable lots, situated in the hamlet of Pleasant Ridge, Westchester County, N. Y., on the line of the Harlem Railroad, about 18 or 20 minutes' ride from the City of New-York, and within five to eight minutes' walk to the Railroad Depot. These are 25 trains to and from the City daily, and the communication is only about 11 cents per day. These beautiful lots will be sold without reserve to close an interest, on the following liberal terms: 10 per cent. and the auctioneer's fees on the day of sale, and 10 per cent. a month thereafter, until the whole amount is paid, or purchasers may, after paying 50 per cent., receive their deeds by executing a bond and mortgage for the balance payable in three equal yearly payments, with interest. Title indisputable. Trains leave the City Hall on the morning of sale at 7, 8 and 10½ A. M., stopping at all the Harlem stations. Tickets, 25 cents. Another train leaves Harlem at 10 A. M. Apply to GILBERT E. NICOLAY, Auctioneer, No. 4 Broad-st., New-York.

P. S.—Should it storm on Tuesday, Oct. 10, the sale will take place on the same hour at the Merchants' Exchange, New-York.

D. S. Brown, Auctioneer.

HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE.—D. S. HOUGH will sell this day, and every afternoon of Household Furniture at No. 79 Warren-st. (Hubert's place), PRECISELY AT 2 o'clock A. M., comprising handsome French oval glasses, pictures, jaro window drapery, fine Italian centre tables, rosewood piano, corner etageres, rosewood secretaries, inlaid tables, Sèvres and Dresden China, rosewood suites in damask, brocatelle, imperial, Brussels carpeting, velvet rugs, Persian ottomans, white damask dinner sets, Bohemian ware, Chinese vases, mantel ornaments, mahogany extension tables, chamber furniture, mahogany sofas, decorated and plain Parisian pitchers, cut water bottles, tumblers, wine glasses, goblets, salts, fruit and preserve dishes, &c.; fancy cutlery, table linen, dining chairs, hall chairs, &c.; fancy cabinet, Brussels, Dresden and other China, fine carved hair-mattresses, blankets, counterpanes, fancy pickle, covered preserved tureens, &c. Also, mahogany and walnut chairs, plain French dining tables, marble top washstands, mahogany bedsteads, hair cloth sofas and other seat chairs. The sale will take place without reserve to close.

F. Colton, Auctioneer.

HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, CARPETS, OIL CLOTHS, OIL PAINTINGS, MIRRORS &c.—F. COLTON will sell THIS DAY, (Saturday,) Oct. 7, at 10 o'clock, at the auction rooms No. 123 Bleecker-st., a large assortment of new and second-hand furniture, consisting of several suites of parlor furniture in brocatelle and hair cloth, rosewood and mahogany French bedsteads, wardrobes, work-stands, mahogany chairs of all kinds, sofas and sofa bedsteads, cornices, tables, tetes, marble top furniture of all patterns, Yorkshire and Gothic chairs, dressing plate glasses, marble top washstands, dining and breakfast tables, bedroom furniture, feather beds, &c., at the same time, about 300 pieces of oil cloth, suitable for the trade and all other who may require; also, the balance of carpets from Twenty-ninth-st.; also, several dozen carpets, from a manufacturer; also, a large quantity of stationery and other goods; also, oil paintings; also, curl maple and black walnut do. Sale peremptory.

Wm. Irving, Auctioneer.

HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE.—WILLIAM IRVING & CO. Auctioneers, will sell at auction, on SATURDAY, Oct. 7, at 10 o'clock, at the salesroom, No. 392 Pearl-st., feather beds, a large number of double and single hair mattresses, feather bolsters and pillows, Brussels and ingrain carpets, oil cloths, mahogany and walnut bedsteads, rosewood and mahogany mantelpiece centre and pier tables, oak and cherry, mahogany marble-top dressing bureaus, rosewood marble top dressing bureaus, mahogany marble-top washstands; also, sheets, blankets, quilts, counterpanes, chairs, crockery and glassware; plated ware, work tables, etageres, kitchen furniture, &c.

Also, fine French plate pier and mantel frames, ornamental plaster of Paris and tinted; also, superb suite of rosewood parlor furniture, covered in silk brocatelle, and other French plate, blue and painted chamber sets, Chinese vases, bisquite figures, medallions, &c., together with a general assortment of ordinary furniture, kitchen tables, chairs, crockery and glassware.

Jno. J. Vanderwater, Auctioneer.

HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE IN BROOKLYN.—ON SATURDAY MORNING, Oct. 7, at 10 o'clock, at the auction room, (formerly occupied by Bennett, Hall & Co.), No. 1 Fulton-st., Brooklyn, E. D., consisting in part of rosewood piano-fortes, rich tapestry, ingrain and brussels carpets; hall and stair do., sofas, divans, elegantly carved oval mirrors, rosewood centre and side tables; cane, elegant, spring seat chairs, bureaus, tables, bedsteads, bedding, feather beds, bolsters, pillows, splendid hair mattresses, palliasses, feather beds and bolsters, mahogany clock, rose cane, walnut, cherry and other bedsteads, mahogany wardrobes, wash stands, dressing bureaus, dining tables, chairs, sofas, Brussels and other carpets, oil cloths, crockery, glassware, kitchen furniture, &c. Also, a lot of new and second-hand furniture, plain and fancy goods, clocks, all paintings, engravings, books, &c.

Alex. Snow and James by Chickering; do by Worcester.

HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE IN BROOKLYN.—ON SATURDAY, SOON AFTER 10 o'clock, at the store, No. 12 Fulton-st., Brooklyn, E. D., consisting in part of rosewood piano-fortes, rich tapestry, ingrain and brussels carpets; hall and stair do., sofas, divans, elegantly carved oval mirrors, rosewood centre and side tables; cane, elegant, spring seat chairs, bureaus, tables, bedsteads, bedding, feather beds, bolsters, pillows, splendid hair mattresses, palliasses, feather beds and bolsters, mahogany clock, rose cane, walnut, cherry and other bedsteads, mahogany wardrobes, wash stands, dressing bureaus, dining tables, chairs, sofas, Brussels and other carpets, oil cloths, crockery, glassware, kitchen furniture, &c. Also, a lot of new and second-hand furniture, plain and fancy goods, clocks, all paintings, engravings, books, &c. Sale peremptory.

C. W. Holding, Auctioneer.

ELEGANT HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE AT AUCTION.—C. W. HOLDING will sell, THIS DAY, (Saturday, Oct. 7, at 10 o'clock, at the salesroom, No. 116 West 26th-st., between 6th and 7th-ave., comprising elegant rosewood parlor furniture, rosewood book case, tapestry, three ply and ingrain carpets, Kidderminster carpets, rich damask and brocatelle curtains, rosewood marble-top tables, elegant rosewood marble-top tables, mahogany chairs of all kinds, sofas and sofa bedsteads, cornices, tables, tetes, marble top furniture of all patterns, Yorkshire and Gothic chairs, dressing plate glasses, marble top washstands, dining and breakfast tables, bedroom furniture, feather beds, &c., at the same time, about 300 pieces of oil cloth, suitable for the trade and all other who may require; also, the balance of carpets from Twenty-ninth-st.; also, several dozen carpets, from a manufacturer; also, a large quantity of stationery and other goods; also, oil paintings; also, curl maple and black walnut do. Sale peremptory.

Wm. Irving, Auctioneer.

HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE.—WILLIAM IRVING & CO. Auctioneers, will sell at auction, on SATURDAY, Oct. 7, at 10 o'clock, at the salesroom, No. 392 Pearl-st., feather beds, a large number of double and single hair mattresses, feather bolsters and pillows, Brussels and ingrain carpets, oil cloths, mahogany and walnut bedsteads, rosewood and mahogany mantelpiece centre and pier tables, oak and cherry, mahogany marble-top dressing bureaus, rosewood marble top dressing bureaus, mahogany marble-top washstands; also, sheets, blankets, quilts, counterpanes, chairs, crockery and glassware; plated ware, work tables, etageres, kitchen furniture, &c.

Also fine French plate pier and mantel frames, ornamental plaster of Paris and tinted; also, superb suite of rosewood parlor furniture, covered in silk brocatelle, and other French plate, blue and painted chamber sets, Chinese vases, bisquite figures, medallions, &c., together with a general assortment of ordinary furniture, kitchen tables, chairs, crockery and glassware.

Jno. J. Vanderwater, Auctioneer.

PARLOR FURNITURE AT AUCTION.—J. VANDERWATER will sell on SATURDAY, Oct. 7, at 11 o'clock, at the store, Nos. 38 Pine and 36 Cedar-st., a very fine assortment of parlor furniture, rich damask and brocatel from the old manufactory, Kidderminster and other carpets, oil cloths, &c. Also, a lot of fine new and second-hand furniture, which will be sold without reserve to close an interest.

Jno. J. Vanderwater, Auctioneer.

FANCY GOODS.—JOHN J. VANDERWATER will sell on TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY, Oct. 10 and 11, at 10½ o'clock each day, at the store, No. 38 Pine and No. 36 Cedar-st., a magnificent assortment of rich damask damasked vases, dinner sets, tea and coffee sets, card receivers, gilded and plain cups and saucers, vases, decorated and plain Parisian pitchers, cut water bottles, tumblers, wine glasses, goblets, salts, fruit and preserve dishes, &c.; fancy cutlery, table linen, dining chairs, hall chairs, &c.; fancy cabinet, Brussels, Dresden and other China, fine carved hair-mattresses, blankets, counterpanes, fancy pickle, covered preserved tureens, &c. Also, mahogany and walnut chairs, plain French dining tables, marble top washstands, mahogany bedsteads, hair cloth sofas and other seat chairs. The sale will take place without reserve to close.

C. Colton, Auctioneer.

HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, CARPETS, OIL CLOTHS, OIL PAINTINGS, MIRRORS &c.—F. COLTON will sell THIS DAY, (Saturday,) Oct. 7, at 10 o'clock, at the auction rooms No. 123 Bleecker-st., a large assortment of new and second-hand furniture, consisting of several suites of parlor furniture in brocatelle and hair cloth, rosewood and mahogany French bedsteads, wardrobes, work-stands, mahogany chairs of all kinds, sofas and sofa bedsteads, cornices, tables, tetes, marble top furniture of all patterns, Yorkshire and Gothic chairs, dressing plate glasses, marble top washstands, dining and breakfast tables, bedroom furniture, feather beds, &c., at the same time, about 300 pieces of oil cloth, suitable for the trade and all other who may require; also, the balance of carpets from Twenty-ninth-st.; also, several dozen carpets, from a manufacturer; also, a large quantity of stationery and other goods; also, oil paintings; also, curl maple and black walnut do. Sale peremptory.

Geo. Gardner, Auctioneer.

HORSES.—NEW-YORK HIPPODROME.—Will be sold at auction THIS DAY, at 10 o'clock, on the premises, Madison-square, the entire stud of Horses, consisting of 12 of the fine matched carriage horses, 3 fine well bred saddle horses, 2 fine Turkey Hunters and 2 new horses, 2 fine bridles, &c. Also, several fine stout horses. A favorite pair without reserve.

R. Sutherland, Auctioneer.

GREAT SALE OF FINE WINES, PURE GRANDIES AND CHOICE CORDIALS, &c.—Also, 1 pipe Madeira, imported Havana cigars received per last steamer, will be sold THIS DAY, at 11 o'clock, at the Calcoran, No. 18 Park-row. EDWARD SHERWOOD.

R. Sutherland, Auctioneer.

DESIRABLE FURNITURE AT AUCTION.—THIS DAY, at 10 o'clock, at No. 17 Wall-st., will be sold the entire furniture of a gentleman leaving the City, consisting of Parlor, Bedroom, Dining Room and Kitchen Furniture, Plate, Plated Ware, Cutlery, Bedding, Carpets, Oil Cloths, Stoves, Ice Chest, Refrigerator, Tools, Implements, Ladders, Hose, Garden Tools, Implements, Ladders, Hose, Garden Tools, Implements, Ladders, Hose, Garden

The New-York Daily Times.

STATE AGRICULTURAL FAIR.

SCENE OF THE THIRTEENTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION

ADDRESS OF HON. JOHN P. HALE.

THE CLOSING SCENES.

The New-York State Agricultural Fair closed yesterday afternoon, after three days of fair weather, one of storm, and a large average attendance throughout. Twenty thousand persons visited the Fair on Thursday, and nearly the same number during yesterday. Opinions were unanimous, so far as we heard, in praise of the management and good order of the Exhibition. The Thanks is indebted to Mr. ELON COMSTOCK and the Managers for facilities afforded. The Police arrangements have been remarkably thorough during the week; upwards of a hundred detailed officers having been in attendance daily. In consequence of the degree of care exercised, but little trouble from the light fingered people has been experienced.

HORSES.

The Horses were brought out again for exhibition at noon. The stands overlooking the Course were crowded with spectators, and the merits of the nags were freely canvassed. It is worthy of remark that the names of the stallions Liverpool and Norman are not found in the list of premiums, in the case of the former, the pedigree was not considered sufficiently proven to justify the Committee, in their opinion, in classing him among horses of pure blood: his excellence seems to have been admitted. In the latter, the prize was actually awarded to Norman as a horse from other States or Canada, (he having been raised in Canada,) but the owner, Mr. DERRICK, having property or residing on Long Island, he was transferred from that class, and was unsuccessful in the one in which he was placed.

Much differences of opinion existed as to the propriety of the decision and the merits of the subject of it; but this, of course, is always the case. The Judges have a difficult and thankless office to perform, and it is not in human power to please every man, or to obtain a unanimous coincidence of opinion.

The carriage horses described yesterday, by a typographical omission, as dark, instead of dark-gray, were the property of Mr. WILLIAM TILDEN, and were awarded a premium.

THE BULLS.

The first prize for a three years old imported bull was closely contested between Messrs. MORRIS & BEGAR, who exhibited, "BARON," (short-horned,) and Mr. SPENCER, of Westchester, who entered Augustus, a very fine animal, imported; and as in the case above described, their relative merits were much discussed, and many were inclined to appeal from the decision of the constituted Judges, who yielded the palm to MORRIS & BEGAR, of New-York City. Of the imported Ayrshires, Kilsyth, mentioned yesterday, bore away the first prize.

THE FLOWERS.

We rambled yesterday among the Flowers. There were both fruits and flowers in abundance. The displays of Exotics was very good; the Dahlias were exquisite; the Roses large; the Apples many, mellow and luscious; the Pears unapproachable (literally) and numerous. Cacti and plums, Hollyhock and grapes, Verbenas and Morris whites, lay in tempting, luscious plenty about the trade benches and upon the covered tables. Touch not, taste not, handle not, however, was the rule; and it was stringently enforced by the very attentive guardians of the peace, who swarmed about the grounds during the continuance of the Fair, like so many bees (drones.)

There was a splendid display of Exotics from the Conservatory of A. F. CUMMINGS, Esq., our publisher of the Observer, whose specimens of the Night-blooming Cereus caused serious reflections in our mind a few nights ago. Mr. CUMINGS' gardener had arranged a number of pots containing the choicest treasures of the greenhouse. Among them was the Silk-Cotton tree, a young and spreading specimen; with an Allspice (Pimenta Vulgaris,) an East India Ginger-plant (Zenziber Officinalis,) a Tree Club Moss (Lycopodium Arbores,) and a Hanchbeet Fern (Dicnitis Cumingiana.) The Cactuses exhibited were the Cereus Senilis, Flexus Indicus, Cereus Brasiliensis, and others.

Of Roses, there was a small but very good display. One of the freaks of the exhibitors was a Rose-tree of more.

MATTHEW DONALDI, of Astoria, entered for exhibition so fine an assortment of Dahlias as we have ever seen. Some of them were of great size, and the fruits gorgeous. Nature could hardly get anything finer out of a single root.

As to the Apples, we desire to say as little as justice to the reader demands. The mouth waters at the recollection. There were upon the tables Strawberry and Newtown, Northern Spy, Pound Sweet, Holland, Boxford, Brittle Sweet, King and other sorts, in wonderful profusion. There was a sweet "savor of apples" all about that tent.

There were several pairs of Pears, which to all appearance were perfection. Two on each plate. Two hundred varieties on exhibition by a single exhibitor, who claims that he cultivates not less than 300 kinds. The Bartlette made altogether the finest show.

The crackers who said that Fruits had failed should have glanced in at Floral Hall.

OUTSIDE SIGHTS.

It would have been a pity, by going to the Fair on the Harlem cars, to lose an observation of the sights and sounds outside the grounds, on the side flanked by Third-avenue. A giant man, a giant hall, and small oysters, were huddled under separate canvas in one corner. The "pop-gun man," the measuring man, and the weighing-machine, were on the opposite side of the pathway. Stands for cider, booths for fruits, pleasant Irish women, very sour and turbid men, squalling girls, men who polished pewter pieces till they shone, and boys whom no rubbing would ever cause to shine, lent a variegated aspect to the Fair "out-of-doors."

PUBLIC MEETING.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the closing proceedings were held in the large circular tent, before an immense audience. On a platform in the centre of the structure were seated the officers and judges of the Society, and a large number of ladies, and distinguished gentlemen, among whom were ex-President TYLER, Hon. JOHN P. HALE, Sir CHARLES GREY, British Colonial Secretary, Hon. JOHN A. KING, President of Columbia College, ex-Governor SEYMOUR, Dr. HERRI of the Imperial Academy of Sciences, St. Petersburg, Rev. Dr. ADAMS, Mr. RAY, President of the Board of Aldermen, Mr. BROWN, President of the Board of Councilmen, ROBERT KELLY, Esq., JOHN JAY, Esq., and very many others.

Mr. WILSON KELLY, President of the Society, called the meeting to order, and announced that the business of the day would be prefaced by prayer.

After prayer by Rev. Dr. ADAMS,

The President again arose, and said it was admitted by some at first, that the State Fair, if held in New-York City, would prove a failure. The warm interest, however, which it had evinced from the citizens generally, and the vast numbers of intelligent visitors by whom the various articles on exhibition had been inspected, proved that these anticipations were formed without a knowledge of the subject. In coming to this City, the Society did not know what kind of reception they would meet with; but the reality had far exceeded anything they could have expected. The Corporation had freely granted them the ground on which the Fair was held, and on all sides the Society received the warmest and readiest assistance. To the Presidents of the Boards of Aldermen and Councilmen the thanks of the body were specially due; nor should they forget that the New-York Horticultural Society and the American Institute had withheld their own Exhibitions, in order, by their contributions and aid, to add more largely to the successes of the New-York State Agricultural Society on this occasion. The speaker concluded, amid applause, by introducing Hon. JOHN P. HALE, Orator of the Day.

ADDRESS OF HON. JOHN P. HALE.

Mr. HALE's address was long and eloquent. He expressed his doubt as to the expediency of establishing Agricultural Schools, on the ground that such Institutions would not tend to [illegible] ed, on the contrary, the advantages of practicing at home and these schools, as one of the essential branches of a popular Education. He deprecated the prevalence among young men, and young women too, of the impression that agricultural pursuits are not honorable, or respectable, or genteel, or so refined or refining in their character as many others, such as the learned professions, as they are sometimes facetiously called. On the folly of this opinion, and the mischief to which it sometimes leads, he dwelt emphatically. After proving the elevating influences which the indulgence of a taste for agricultural pursuits is calculated to exert over men, both individually and in the mass, he proceeded to combat the objections raised to the business of husbandry on the ground that it has a tendency to repress the martial spirit necessary to a free people for the preservance of their popular institutions and Democratic forms of Government.

PREMIUM LISTS.

B. P. JOHNSON, Secretary of the Society, read the Judges' Report on the Awards of Premiums. Some of the Committees on minor articles had not concluded their labors when the shades of evening closed upon the scene and they were compelled to adjourn to the City.

TO-DAY.

A sale of improved stock will take place at the Fair grounds at 10 o'clock to-day. Several of the "fast" horses are up for a market. The lumber used in enclosing the grounds will also be put up at auction; the amount employed being four hundred thousand feet. These concluding exercises of the Fair will render the Square as busy a place to-day as yesterday.

THE RESULT.

The receipts of the Fair have been in the close vicinity of ten thousand dollars. The Premium List amounted to about $8,000; but of this sum, probably not more than $6,000 will be called in. The place for holding the next exhibition is not decided upon. The selection lies with the Society at Albany. The indications are that Syracuse or Utica will be the place.

FIRE MARSHAL'S OFFICE.

Arrest of a Female Charged with Arson.

On the 22d of September last a fire took place at No. 40 Lispenard-street, occupied by Mr. CHATTERTON. It was discovered between 4 and 5 o'clock in the morning, in the rear kitchen, and outside of the main building, occupied as a dwelling-house; but by the timely arrival of the firemen the flames were extinguished before they had penetrated to the inside of the house. An Irish girl, who had recently been discharged from the house for some misconduct, was suspected of being guilty of setting the premises on fire, as she had been known to have made threats to that effect. Since which time the matter has been under investigation by the Fire Marshal and Justice OSBORNE, and yesterday officer SPICER, one of the special officers of the Court of Sessions, acting under instructions, arrested the girl on the charge of Arson. She was taken before Judge OSBORNE, who committed her to prison to await an examination. The Fire Marshal will continue the investigation to-day.

☞ The controversy upon the question at issue between Rev. ISAAC WESCOTT and Rev. THOMAS J. SAWYER was concluded at the Tabernacle last evening. Eight evenings have been devoted to the discussion. The attendance throughout was very large.

☞ Tivoli Hose Company, of Albany, paraded the streets yesterday on return from Philadelphia. They stopped at the Irving House.

(Advertisement.)

☞ There is very little doubt that the great majority of "broken constitutions" so called, may be traced to protracted attacks of Fever and Ague, and to the use of the powerful remedies prescribed for that distressing complaint. Those who have witnessed the disorder, have noticed that it destroys bodily vigor, prostrates the energies of the mind, and that its after effects are in many cases hypochondria, dyspepsia, nervousness, fainting, neuralgia, dizziness, and a long train of ailments. The peculiarity of DRAKE'S Pills consists in their remarkable anti-periodic and tonic properties. They almost instantly break up the periodic and constantly recurring attacks that characterize Chills and Fever. And those who have taken them uniformly remark that they immediately increase the appetite, steady the nerves, restore strength, and invigorate the system in a most agreeable and permanent manner. As a general rule, the Fever and Ague will cease from the first dose; though in some obstinate cases there have been several chills before the complaint was finally broken. DRAKE'S Pills are sold by W. D. CROMBIE, corner of Broadway and Fourteenth-street; F. C. WELLS, & Co., No. 257 Eighth-avenue; JAMES W. SMITH, corner court-street and Montague-place, Brooklyn, and C. D. DRAKE, New-Brunswick, N. J.

(Advertisement.)

NEW AMERICAN PICTORIAL, PRICE FOUR CENTS.—The Illustrated American Journal, by WILLIAM S. DANIELL, Boston, is just issued. It is a neat Quarto of eight pages, fine paper, with designs by BILLINGS. It opens with a picture of LUTHER, at the Diet of Worms, and will advocate a Free Bible, Free Schools, Free Speech, A Free Press, and immediate legislation to neutralize foreign influence in our Government and Institutions. It will be published weekly. The name American, which our Journal bears, gives the keynote to our enterprise. We shall aim to illustrate and defend these principles and these free institutions which we glory in as distinctively American, and to awaken afresh among the people an earnest American spirit, especially in view of the dangers which threaten our liberties from foreign and papal influence. For sale by all News Agents.

(Advertisement.)

☞ A good Phrenologist will prove it to your own consciousness, by delineating your character, talents and peculiarities far more accurately than your own mother could do. Phrenology embodies the only true Science of Mind and Philosophy of Human Nature ever divulged. It analyzes all the human elements and functions, thereby showing of what materials we are composed, and how to develop them. Bishop WHATELEY, the greatest logician of his time, says:

"Even if all connection between the brain and mind were a perfect chimera, the treatises of Phrenologists would be of great value, from their employing a metaphysical nomenclature far more logical, accurate and convenient than LOCKE, STEWART, and other writers of their schools."

Examinations daily by Prof. FOWLER, at No. 308 Broadway.

(Advertisement.)

IMPORTANT TO STRANGERS AND VISITORS TO THE FAIR.—It is a mistake to suppose that the best bargains are made by under-bidding the asking prices at clothing stores. To test this question, bid down a suit to the lowest figure at any two price concern, and then go to Union Hall, the great one price clothing warehouse, corner of Fulton and Nassau-streets, and you will find the first price asked there cheaper than the one you had arrived at by haggling and bargaining. Just try the experiment.

(Advertisement.)

☞ PHALON'S PARISIAN LOTION has not only a City reputation, but is used by the daughters of our farmers and ladies generally throughout the country. As a means of removing irritations of the skin, and freshening, clearing and beautifying the complexion, it is (as Madame ANNA THILLON says) entirely unapproached.

(Advertisement.)

HAVE YOU SEEN EUSTACHE?—Have you yet witnessed this great moral and romantic play that has created such a popular sensation? If not, go and see it at once. It is only performed now at BARNUM'S Museum, where crowds of delighted people witnessed it nightly. To-day it will be performed there both in the afternoon and evening.

(Advertisement.)

WRITING AND BOOK-KEEPING.—The subscriber will receive new pupils daily, this week, for a thorough course of instruction in the art of Penmanship and double-entry Book-keeping.

OLIVER B. GOLDSMITH, No. 202 Broadway.

(Advertisement.)

WORTH SEEING.—The most splendid show of Stereoscopic Pictures ever made in this country may be seen at ROOT's magnificent Gallery, No. 363 Broadway, corner of Franklin-street.

NEW-JERSEY.

Description from a French War Vessel.

On Thursday evening as the ferry boat Gregory was crossing from New-York to Jersey City, the voice of a man was heard in the water. Upon reach a Frenchman, one of the sailors who had escaped from one of the French war steamers in port, was found in the water with a pack of his clothes upon his back, swimming for life and liberty. He was landed in Jersey City, and obtained no little sympathy from the fact that he had been, as he said, impressed on board; and vastly preferred his freedom to service for LOUIS NAPOLEON.

[illegible]

☞ An action, brought last week in Detroit for [illegible] a young man from his theatre, for missing a [illegible] against the doctor—McFARLAND—who was fined $20. The Justice gave it as his opinion that an auditor had a perfect right to hiss an actor or actress on the stage, if he had reason for so doing; and that no person had a right forcibly to eject a man from the theatre until he had first been requested to leave. So "popular sovereignty" triumphed.

MARRIED.

[illegible]

DIED.

[illegible]

COMMERCIAL AFFAIRS.

For Market see Sixth Page.

Sales at the Stock Exchange....Oct. 6.

$3,000 Ohio 6s '80	104	250	Cumber. Coal Co.	s 30
1,000 New-York 6s '52	114	100	do	30	29
1,000 California 7s, '51	100	100	do	30	29½
1,000 City 5s, '70	104	200	do	30	29½
1,000 Harlem 1st M. 6s	93	100	do	30	29½
1,000 Erie Income Bds	42	100	do	30	29½
1,000 Hud. R. M. M. B.	85	100	do	30	29½
1,000 do	85	100	do	30	29½
10,000 Ill. C. R. R.	85	100	do	30	29½
4,000 do	85	200	Phenix Mining Co.		7
5,000 do	85	25	New-York Cen. R. R.	s	97
1,000 N. Y. Cen. R. R.	93	50	do	s	97
1,000 do	93	100	do	s	97
5,000 Sac. R. & S. R. R.	80	200	Erie Railroad	opg	44
4,000 do	85	200	do	s3 pbc	44
12 Amer. Exch. Bank	107½	100	do	s60	44
18 Ex. Bank scrip	98	100	do	s30	44
10 Bank of Commerce	104	50	do	s60	44½
34 Del. & Hud. C. Canal	117	25	do		44½
10 Hanover Ins. Co.	92	100	Reading Railroad	s60	74
10 Continental Ins. Co.	105	200	do	s60	73
20 Canton Company	40	100	do	s60	73
100 do	s10	100	do	s10	73
200 Flor. R. R. 1st Mtg.	81½	100	do	s30	73
100 Nic. Transit Co.	10	100	do	s10	73
100 do	s10	225	do	s3	73
20 Mich. Central R. R.	88	100	do	s10	73
20 do	88	50	Cleve. C. & Cin. R.	s	104

SECOND BOARD.

$8,000 Hud. Riv. 1st M.	102	200	Long Island Railroad	s	18
1,000 N. Y. & N. H.	96	200	Erie Railroad	opg	44
10 Ohio Life & Trust Co.	75	50	Harlem Railroad	s3	31
100 Canton Company	39½	100	do	s10	31
100 Nic. Transit Co.	10	100	do	s30	31
200 do	10	50	Mich. Central R. R.		88
50 Cumberland Coal Co.	30	200	New-York Cen. R. R.	s	97
100 do	30	100	Reading Railroad	s3	73½
100 do	30½

FRIDAY, Oct. 6—P. M.

The mails by the steamer Canada, at this port, from Liverpool, September 23, were delivered at an early hour this morning. Her arrival has painfully increased the interest felt for the safety of the fine steamer Arctic, of the Collins line, as she is reported to have left Liverpool on her regular day—September 20—with 200 cabin passengers, among whom are a number of Wall-street gentlemen and their families. There are various surmises as to the cause of delay, the more common one being that some accident may have befallen her machinery early in the voyage, and that she put back, in consequence, to Liverpool. The Arctic, during the past Spring, or early in the Summer, ran upon a rock on the Coast of Ireland the first day out, and made Liverpool, in a disabled condition, before the Cunarder left for New-York the succeeding Saturday; but such a casualty could scarcely have happened this time, and the fact failed to be known before the sailing of the Canada. The latter encountered no unusual weather. Six or seven members of the family of Mr. JAMES BROWN, of BROWN BROTHERS, are on board the Arctic, and the wife of Mr. COLLINS, the chief proprietor of the line. Mr. W. W. GILBERT, of GILBERT, COE & JOHNSON, is also on board. The steamer is now in her 17th day.

The market and money accounts by the Canada are one week later than by the previous arrival. They advise a further advance in Flour and Grain. The American and other Foreign supplies in Liverpool were much reduced, and as the English farmers and millers were not supplying the market fully, Western Canal and Canadian Flour was up to 30s. and Southern brands 32s. Wheat 4d. higher; Indian Corn 33s. 6d. @35s., a rise of 1s. 6d. over the previous quotations. The sales of Cotton were 35,000 bales; prices not strong, and we hear that the orders to this side by this steamer are at reduced limits. The manufacturing districts were not in a cheerful condition. The late failures had a depressing effect at Manchester. The War in the East and the reduced orders from this country and South America were having their influence on the trade in Cotton Goods. Iron was also lower. The Linen and Woolen prices without much change. Raw Wool was on the rise, which caused manufacturers to be indifferent to sales, except at full rates. The harvest weather continued fine. The English Funds, after selling at 96 ⅞ cent., closed 95¾. Money in active request at 4¼@4½ ⅞ cent. The Bank report shows a further loss of $250,000 against large receipts into London from Australia and the United States. The demand for Silver for China was actively renewed, and Gold was going to the Continent in sums which were unaccountable to the Bankers, who write to their friends on this side that the Continental Exchanges do not justify the movement as one of apparent profit to the remitters. The enormous expenses of the Allied armies in the East are supposed by some to demand this Gold, while others ascribe it to certain negotiations for the great Governments beyond the Rhine. American eagles were worth 76s 3d. the ounce, and gold bars, standard, 77s. 9d. The French as well as English Funds were strengthened by the reported successful landing of the Allied troops in the Crimea. A heavy failure, $500,000, is reported at Moscow, LUBIN & SCHATOFF, in the cotton manufacturing trade. The export of grain from Odessa was still embargoed. Last year the movement of Wheat from the Black Sea was four millions English quarters, of eight bushels, averaging $10 the quarter; while this year, with an unparalleled harvest, there is said to be no possibility of selling it at home, even at $2 50 the quarter.

The Foreign markets for American Bail-

[illegible]

very Beautiful Art Medals, imported in the city [illegible] and issued for this occasion; [illegible] of medals, with every place of conference in the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Some excellent speeches were made in praise and not in large water. The advices from New-York were to 6th September, when Erie was quoted 43 ⅞ cent., and the Bonds in proportion. Our correspondent remarks, "There is quite a fancy here for dealing in Erie Shares and Bonds at the low prices, and we shall be much surprised if the orders hence do not assist the recovery of your market." The limits are 99 to 43 for Shares; 83@84 for Third Mortgage. At Hamburg and Berlin—a large proportion of the Erie Convertible Loan of 1853 being held in the latter city—so serious distrust was created by the breakdown in prices here, but at Frankfort, where American Bonds are regularly quoted on the Public Exchange, there was quite a disposition to force sales on receipt of the New-York advices of the 1st September, and the figures accepted in some cases were lower than ours. This was expected to be remedied by the subsequent mails. In State Stocks very little appears to be doing on the other side. The circular of BARING notices a few sales. Our own market to-day was lower for Indianas, Virginias, and Louisiana, these being on sale, to a partial extent, for account of the Western Bankers.

The evident tightening of the Money market, which has grown out of the recent loss of Specie to the Banks, was again felt on business, generally, in Wall-street, to-day. It increases the difficulty of speculation on the Stock Exchange, and embarrasses the Banks themselves in the distribution of loans and discounts to their regular dealers, as well as to transient applicants. That it will, however, soon have the desired effect of checking the export of Specie, there seems to be little doubt. Foreign Exchange is not active at the outside rates, and the sum of Gold arranged for the Hermann to-morrow, quite moderate. With the Bill Brokers, business paper is in free supply, and the best lists of Dry Goods notes, three to six months to run, are not taken under 12 ⅞ cent. A few favorite signatures, go at 10 ⅞ cent. The negotiations to-day were large; the outside money lenders being put in funds by the payments of the 4th October.

The business at the Stock Board shows an improvement in Reading Shares, and in Illinois Central Bonds, over the sales of Thursday. Erie Stock and Bonds were also firm, without much movement. New-York Central Shares closed ½ ⅞ cent. lower. There are one or two constant sellers (supposed short) of this Stock, cash or on contract, who supply the bids freely; notwithstanding a rumor that offers have been made from London to supply the Company with money on their new Convertible Bonds, and which, if true, would at once remove the unpaid dividend declared in July. The offers are said to come through the Boston agent of Messrs. BARING. We cannot learn that they have really been received or acted upon at Albany. Most of the Western Roads, trunk lines and in through operation, are making fine traffic returns for the month of September. Both the Michigan Roads will exceed $200,000. The Southern Company report $210,000. We have already published the returns of the Cleveland and Toledo, Milwaukee and Mississippi and Ohio and Pennsylvania.

The present week's Dry Goods Import is a very small one. The entries amount to $441,785, of which $195,021 went into public store. The entries the same period last year were $1,506,322. The following is the summary:

	Pkgs.	Values.	Pkgs.	Values.
Man. of Wool	347	$109,457	161	$36,656
Man. of Cotton	347	86,326	57	15,693
Man. of Silk	246	196,724	118	94,464
Man. of Flax	137	34,886	37	8,380
Miscellaneous	149	64,288	51	19,236
Total	1,226	$491,681	424	$174,429
Total Entered		$441,785	Total Marketed	$195,021

Decision in Admiralty.

From the Philadelphia Ledger, Oct. 6.

DECISION IN THE OSPREY CASE.—The suit of the British brig Fanny against the steamer Osprey, running between Boston and Philadelphia, for a collision in Boston harbor, was tried in the U. S. Circuit Court in that city, on Monday. Judge SPRAGUE said the rule in America is well established that, when a steamer meets a sail vessel, the latter is to keep her course; and the steamer is to take upon herself all the labor and risk of avoiding her. The rule is of general application, without reference to the tack the vessel may be upon, or her being close-hauled or free; and in executing her duty, the steamer is not restricted to going to the right of the vessel, but may go on either side, as circumstances may render most judicious and convenient. In this case, the brig violated the rule in keeping off, and the steamer was acting within the rule in keeping to the left. The decision was a decree dismissing the libel, with costs. The cross libel, promoted by JOHN LINTON & Co., of Philadelphia, owners of the steamer Osprey, against the brig Fanny, for the same collision, was decided at the same time, and upon the same evidence and principles. Decree in favor of the libellants, the amount of damage to be referred to an assessor.

Markets by Telegraph.

ALBANY, Friday, Oct. 6.

At our market this morning sales were made of Barley at $1 15 for four rowed, and $1 14 for two rowed on the spot, and $1 16 to arrive.

SALES OF STOCKS AT PHILADELPHIA—Friday's First Board—$5,000 City 6s, '96, 94; $1,000 City 6s, '81, 91; $1,000 do, 91; $1,000 do, 91; $4,000 Schuylkill Navigation 6s, '96, 72½; $300 Camden and Amboy 6s, '42, 97; $300 Lehigh 6s, '70, 93½; 14 Pennsylvania Railroad, 45½; 46 Girard Bank, 18½; 26 Mine Hill Railroad, 45½; 18 Norristown Railroad, 55½; 10 Manufacturers' Bank, 18½; 10 North Pennsylvania Railroad, 17; 48 Schuylkill Navigation, Preferred, 26½; 10 Lehigh Navigation, 34½; 50 Morris Canal, 17½; 150 Long Island Railroad, 14; 100 Reading Railroad, 37½; 400 do, 37½; $3,000 Pittsburg Coupon 6s, 98; $600 Lehigh Elect. 1½.

Second Board—$300 Pennsylvania 5s, 94.

Second Board—$1,000 Pennsylvania 6s, 94; $700 City 6s, '82, 93½; $300 Lehigh 6s, '70, 93½; $1,000 Susquehanna Canal Bonds, 61; $1,000 do, 61; Coupon 6s, '82, 24,000 City 6s, '70, 93½; 10 Pennsylvania Railroad, 44½; $1,000 Schuylkill Bonds, 67½; $3,000 N. L. Coupon 6s, 93½; $3,000 City 6s, '81, 91; 300 Lehigh Elec. 1½.

After Board—$4,000 Reading Railroad 6s, '70, 73.

Closing Prices—United States 6s, '68, 111@113; do, '67, 117@118; Pennsylvania 5s, 94; do 6s, '96, 94; Reading Railroad 6s, '70, 73@73½; Reading Railroad 6s, '44, 93@93½; Pennsylvania Railroad Sixes, 45@45½; Morris Canal, 16@17; Schuylkill Navigation 6s, '96, 72@77; Schuylkill Navigation Sixes, 1882, 61; Schuylkill Navigation Preferred, 26½; Reading Railroad, 44@44½; Vicksburg Railroad, 35@36; Girard Bank, 17½@18½; Lehigh Elec., 1½@2; Union Canal, 16@17½.

Sailing of Ocean Steamers.

Steamers	Leaves	For	Day
Arctic	Liverpool	New-York	Sept. 20
Union	Havre	New-York	Sept. 27
Europa	Liverpool	Boston	Sept. 30
Baltic	Liverpool	New-York	Oct. 4
Hermann	New-York	Bremen	Oct. 4
Africa	Liverpool	New-York	Sept. 20
Petrel	New-York	Glasgow	Oct. 7
Black Warrior	New-York	Havana & N. O.	Oct. 9
Washington	Southampton	New-York	Oct. 11

Passengers Arrived.

In steamship Canada, from Liverpool—Mr. Tilton and lady, Mr. Heinrich and lady, Mr. Ellis and lady, Miss Mitchell, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Stanton and Miss Stanton, Mrs. H. Stowell, 3 Misses Gerrell, Dr. J. C. Stuart and lady, George Brown and sister, Misses Paul, James Magee, Thomas Byrne, G. Lewis, Gerrit Smith, T. M. Maggott, J. H. Morrison, Charles Green, Gustavus Vorsilt, Sunday, Gustavus Boyer, Charles Gale, Otto Otesel, Mr. Wilson and lady, Mr. M. Reill, Mr. Hyltin, Mr. Hoffman and lady, Mr. Thomas, James Gilmore, Wm. Carey and lady, Messrs. Fisture, Manders, Peace, M. Roman, Noguero, Mason, Cayley, Vanauen, Mr. Schmidt, Morales, Capt. Rounds, Capt. Tompkins, R. Wells, Chas. Wells, 19 Misses, Sisters of Mercy, 4 gentlemen, Robert G. Allen, G. Hunt, A. Hodge, J. Hodge, H. Hardie, J. F. Cooper, Julienevez, Knickerbocker, F. J. Cole, Hawkins, D. Jacks and lady, Southee and lady, E. Tyte and lady, J. Gregory and lady.

In steamship Alabama, from Savannah—Dr. E. Ellery, A. Davis, Mr. Epting and lady, Rev. C. A. Farley, Mrs. J. H. Plummer, C. H. Robinson, Capt. A. Macklinn, Dr. A. West—and 7 in the steerage.

MISCELLANEOUS ANALYSIS—THIS DAY.

Sun rises.....6 02 | Sun sets.....5 32 | Moon rises.....6 36
HIGH WATER—THIS DAY.
Sandy Hook.....8 46 | Gov. Island.....9 30 | Hell Gate.....11 11

MARINE INTELLIGENCE.

PORT OF NEW-YORK, FRIDAY, OCT. 6.

Cleared.

Steamships Alps, Moodie, Liverpool, E. Cunard; Hermann, Higgins, Bremen, C. H. Leeds.

Ships Vanguard, Hewes, New-Orleans, J. W. Elwell; N. B. Palmer, Bradbury, Canton, A. A. Low & Bro.

Barks Franklin Thompson, Matanzas, W. F. Schmidt; Delpark (Br.), Byers, Portland, Dwight & Livingston; Veteran, Jackson, Rockland, W. F. Schmidt.

Brigs Kennebec, Hill, Attakapas, Sturgess & Hunter; Orient, (Br.,) Bennett, Carthagena, Nid. J. B. Cooper & Co.; Rosario, Hicks, St. John's, N. B., Gillespie, Grant & Co.; Palermo, (Br.,) Henry, St. John, N. B., Dwight & Co.

Schrs. Alba, Thomas, Wilmington, N. C., Sewell, S. P. Smith; Derrickson, Wilmington, Pollitz & Potter; Milan, Hawkins, Wareham, C. H. Smith; Globe, Kile, Salem, E. Ferris; Meteor, Sturgess, Norfolk, J. S. Forbes & Co.; Pacific, Perry, Wilmington, Dwight & Co.; Ann Eliza, Smith, Charleston, S. W. Lewis; J. N. Wharton, Chapman, New-Haven, master; Lady Adams, Davis, Fall River, J. M. Morse; J. Hoxie, Hoxie, Providence, master; Oceola, do.; Helen McLean, Beardsley, Chicago, Bunn & Co.

Brown Early Bird, Hillsboro, J. H. Berry; Charles Sewell, Fall River, J. M. Morse; Cowell, Mourtland, Philadelphia, J. W. Hand; Black Locust, Dunham, Boston, master; J. S. Ide, Shaw, Philadelphia, Bunn & Mitchell; Rio Rico, Hall, Boston, master.

Propeller Nebraska, Gaskill, Philadelphia, W. H. Thomson; Oneida, Rockwood, Philadelphia, J. & M. Briggs.

[illegible]

MILLINERY.

[illegible]

LOST AND FOUND.

[illegible]

MAGNETIC POWDERS.

[illegible]

FARO PLAYING CARDS.

[illegible]

BUSINESS CHANCES.

[illegible]

HOTELS.

[illegible]

EXCURSIONS.

[illegible]

AMUSEMENTS.

[illegible]